Governor Busy With Pen, Bills

ALBANY — Gov. Hugh Carey has signed into law measures to give state aid to soil and water conservation districts and to disregard federal training allowances in computing public assistance payments.

Carey also signed bills dealing with the rights of the blind, prison release and furlough programs as well as nursing homes.

Drought Continues Through Europe

LONDON — There seems to be no end to it.

That's the word of weather forecasters in Europe looking at Europe's worst drought in generations. The continent has been staggered by more than two weeks of heat and the lack of rainfall.

Carter Is Wading Through Hopes

PLAINS, Ga. — Jimmy Carter's criteria for a running mate are clearer now as the almost certain Democratic presidential candidate wades through his face-to-face meetings with those being considered for job.

Carter spent Monday with Maine Senator Edmund Muskie and told reporters a final decision will not be made until next week.

Leftists Attack Christian Town

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Thousands of leftist and Palestinian troops attacked the Christian town of Chekka today to avenge the 15-day siege of a Palestinian refugee camp.

Action on all fronts gave Lebanon the bloodiest fighting of the 15-month-old war and destroyed the latest Arab League peace efforts.

OAU Summit Ends With New Crises

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius — A four-day summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity ended today in disarray, failing to solve major continental problems and facing several new crises.

Delegates said it was one of the most disappointing and divisive meetings of heads of state in OAU history, attended by a record low number of seven leaders.

Lake George Is Normal Again

LAKE GEORGE — Things were back to normal Monday in Lake George following a July 4 disturbance in which an estimated 3,000 youths clashed with police for 90 minutes before order was restored.

Eleven arrests had been made in connection with the incident, mostly on charges of disorderly conduct. Two arrests also had been made for possession of marijuana.

LONELY HALLS

An empty hallway at Myron J. Michael Jr. Junior High School, which not long ago resounded with pitter-patter and pupil's chatter, stands lonely and silent as the summer sun streaks through the doorway. Vacation time beckoned and not even Little Sir Echo stayed around.

Nine Dutch Sloops Arriving Tomorrow

KINGSTON—At 3:30 tomorrow afternoon, nine Dutch sloops will ghost their way up the Rondout Creek and moor at the pier in Rondout for an overnight visit.

The cruise is really a pilgrimage, retracing the route of Hudson. The graceful ships all boast flat or round bottoms especially designed for shoal-draft waters. Leeboards in the shape of fins on either side provide stability when the sloops heel with the wind.

The oldest of the craft, the Minke Lokke, will be 100 years old in 1978. Roughly half are vintage boats lovingly maintained and sailed by their owners. The rest are replicas, the most recent was launched in 1975. They range in size from 25 to 50 feet.

Kingston's host families will entertain the crews on their overnight stay. On Thursday morning they will tour landmarks associated with the deep Dutch roots in the area. After a luncheon at the Colonade, they'll set sail for their next port of call.

The Kingston Indians Drum and Bugle Corps will be on hand Wednesday to orchestrate the city's welcome. They have been trying to master the Dutch National Anthem in time for the occasion.

Although the ships will not be open for inspection, the public is invited to the Rondout at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday to welcome the pilgrims cruising in the wake of the Half Moon.

'Bobcat' Sighting Sets Off Search in Shadaken

SHADAKEN — A reported bobcat sighting on Garfield Road here touched off a search by the local constables, the Ulster County Sheriff's Department and other officials over the holiday weekend.

Sheriff's Deputy Tom Johnson said a long-time summer resident in the area called police to say she'd seen a "large furry animal" resembling a bobcat near the road by her home while she was preparing breakfast.

The search failed to turn up any sign of the animal, which Town Constable Chris Lays believes could have been "an extremely large domestic cat."

The Department of Environmental Conservation was notified of the report, however, and Johnson said today his department is interested in hearing from any other residents of the area who might sight the creature.

Bobcats once roamed the Catskills freely and, a century or so ago, occasionally turned up wandering down Fifth Avenue in New York City, according to Johnson. Although the small, fierce-looking wildcats are not as numerous as they once were in the Catskills, they sometimes surface.

Three bobcats were taken in the Shadaken area last year during hunting season, although there is no season on the animals. An exceptionally big one was reported on a hunter's car at a DEC deer checking station on the Thruway locally during the most recent hunting season, and last year a Sawkill hunter was savagely attacked in the Shadaken woods by a bobcat dropping from a tree.

In parts of Ulster County where bear are more frequently sighted, bobcats have been known for vicious attacks with teeth and claws when cornered, said Sgt. Harry Van Vliet, who is conducting the investigation on the most recent possible sighting for the Sheriff's Department.

Law Keeps Mobster Study under Wraps

ALBANY — Secrecy provisions in state law prohibit the airing of the New York Organized Crime Task Force Special Report which Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101st Dist., wants made public.

A full airing of the underworld's attempts to move in on garbage removal operations in Ulster, Dutchess and Orange counties is being called for by the assemblyman, much to the dismay of local prosecutors who see the proposal as compromising ongoing investigations.

Hinchey believes otherwise.

The harsh glare of publicity and public scrutiny may cause the mobsters to discontinue their activities, he claimed. He disagrees that disclosure would hinder the investigations, contending that much of what is in the task force secret intelligence memorandum has been leaked to the news media and has been the topic of conversation for months.

He called upon the state attorney general to set the record straight.

But Organized Crime Task Force Chief Maxwell Spont said this morning that his office cannot, by law, release its report, which outlines underworld extortion and blackmailing activity in the garbage business.

While Spont refused to comment further, Ulster County First Assistant District Attorney Michael Kavanagh was annoyed that Hinchey failed to contact District Attorney Francis J. Vogt or him if he was interested in seeing the report. As an elected official, he would be entitled to see it, Kavanagh suggested, but he feels it would serve no legitimate purpose to make the information public.

As yet, none of the information in the report has been presented to the Ulster County Grand Jury because more convincing evidence is needed, Vogt said.

"The fact that people own a business is not a crime in itself," Kavanagh explained, agreeing that until subsequent investigation turns up more evidence, making the report public is inadvisable.

Hinchey's reference to the report having been leaked to the press is believed to stem from a Dutchess County reporter's attempts to have his publisher print the contents of the task force report which he managed to obtain.

Objection to the assemblyman's attempt to alert the public to the growing crime menace in the local area also came from Orange County Prosecutor David S. Ritter, who said most legislators have respected the police-prosecutorial area of responsibility and are against disclosure.

"Usually the only people you are helping are those being investigated," he said.

Queen's Visit Starts

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth II of England and her husband, Prince Philip, the Duke of Edinburgh, arrived today aboard the royal yacht Britannia on the first leg of a seven-day visit to the United States.

As the royal couple came down the gangway of the yacht berthed at Penn's Landing they were greeted by Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, Mayor Frank L. Rizzo and other dignitaries.

After brief ceremonies at the landing, the couple departed by motorcade for City Hall where a formal welcome was held.

Philadelphia was hardly prepared for the arrival of the royal visitors after the weekend's celebration of America's 200th birthday. Its main streets were still littered with thousands of tons of trash — empty beer bottles and cans, sandwich bags and unending vistas of paper dumped in the streets by the weekend's celebrants.

By no means all Philadelphians were aware just who today's visitors were. A taxi driver said he thought the city could have done better cleaning up to welcome such visitors as "King Philip and the Queen of England."

The royal visitors were due to berth at the ocean gateway to Philadelphia, Penn's Landing, aboard the royal yacht Britannia at 10 a.m. to visit the city's most historic spots and to dine and wine its most prominent citizens and to be dined and wined in return.

Among the Queen's stops were to be the Liberty Bell Pavilion and the Penn Mutual observation deck, from which she could enjoy a breathtaking view of Philadelphia.

The highlight of her visit was to be the presentation in the afternoon of a specially cast Bicentennial bell she will present to the city in her only speech of the day.

In the afternoon, she was to entertain the governors attending the National Governor's Conference at nearby Hershey, Pa., along with their wives, and at night to attend a banquet at the Art Museum given by the city.

After spending the night aboard Britannia, the royal couple fly to Washington Wednesday morning.

Fireman Stops Gas Blaze

SAUGERTIES — Quick action by fireman James Armstrong of the Centerville Fire Company was credited with putting out a potentially dangerous flash fire at a local filling station Sunday that could have resulted in tragedy.

Kerin Campbell, assistant manager of the Gasland station, said a New Jersey car towing a boat trailer gassed up at the station during the mid-morning. The driver allegedly pulled away from the pump with the pump hose still in his gas tank. Campbell said the trailer side-swiped and pulled down one pump and twisted another, rupturing a gas line. Apparently a spark ignited the flowing gas.

Responding to a fire alarm, volunteer firefighter Armstrong used a small dry powder fire extinguisher, which he carried in his car, to contain the flames until the arrival of six pieces of apparatus from the Centerville Company.

Fire Chief Warren Benz praised Armstrong for helping to avert what could have been a costly or tragic fire through his quick action in extinguishing the gas pump blaze. Several other vehicles at the pumps narrowly escaped the conflagration because of Armstrong's presence, he said.

Chief Benz closed the station until repairs could be made.

DEC Bars Target Shooting in Mangled Grove of Trees in the Town of Hurley

TOWN OF HURLEY — The Department of Environmental Conservation Tuesday morning posted a warning sign on a badly shot up area on Dug Hill Road in an effort to protect it from further damage by illegal target shooters.

Norman Van Valkenburgh, DEC Region 3 director, and Frederick Faerber III, president of the Ulster County Sportsmen's Federation, nailed the sign to a post on state forest preserve land along sparsely settled Dug Hill Road. The extent of the problem was apparent in the sign's support post, which had been shot five times since being installed Friday.

DEC has received numerous complaints from people living along Dug Hill Road about target shooting there, and conditions at the site support their complaints. A miniature "battlefield" has been chewed out of the wooded setting for a depth of more than 100 yards from the road, with trees as large as 18 inches at the butt severed and felled by shotgun blasts, rifled slugs, and high velocity bullets of all calibers.

Faerber, VanValkenburgh and the sign.

Faerber pledged the "full might" of the federation in cooperating with conservation authorities to fine violators, jail them, or confiscate their guns.

"If the people doing this (shooting) will contact me, I'll put them in a club so they can shoot in a bona fide shooting range," Faerber promised.

Van Valkenburgh went along with the idea. "We don't deny the right to target shoot, but not like this," he said. "They can join a club."

Forest Ranger Roger Blatter noted that even if a tree is not severed by shooting it is likely to be killed.

"Once a tree is damaged, it is more susceptible to damage from insects and diseases," he said.

Regional Forester Paul Keller said he was making arrangements to have the badly littered area cleaned up by workers from the Youth Conservation Corps Camp in Sundown. The youths arrived last weekend and Keller said he hopes to have them on the scene and working by next week.

There will be no lack of work for them to do. The area is littered with beer cans, broken glass, shell casings and other debris. Paper targets have been nailed to numerous trees and a large bundle of newspaper inserts is just off the highway in the woods.

Town of Hurley highway foreman Tony Naccarato was at the sign posting and pledged the cooperation of his crews in helping identify illegal shooters.

Bishop McManus Dies, Was Episcopal Vicar

LONG BRANCH, N.J. — Bishop James E. McManus, former Roman Catholic episcopal vicar of Sullivan and Ulster Counties, died Thursday at the Monmouth Medical Center, Long Branch, N.J. He was 69 years old and had been living in retirement in Opalocka, Fla.

Bishop McManus, a Redemptorist, served as Bishop of Ponce, Puerto Rico, from 1947 to 1963. He was transferred to New York as Auxiliary Bishop to Francis Cardinal Spellman in 1963.

Born in Brooklyn, he was ordained at the Redemptorist Seminary of Mount St. Alphonsus at Esopus in 1927 by Patrick Cardinal Hayes of New York, and two years later was assigned to the Puerto Rican mission of Caguas. He returned to the United States to study at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., and took his doctorate in Canon Law there in 1937.

In 1945, he was appointed pastor in Mayaguez, Puerto Rico. He was engaged in these parish duties when he was named the third Bishop of Ponce in 1947.

Upon his return to New York in 1963, Bishop McManus served as pastor of St. Cecilia's Parish in Manhattan. He was named episcopal vicar of Sullivan and Ulster Counties, the position he held until his retirement in 1970.

He is survived by his sister, Mrs. O'Leary of Tamarac, Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and two nieces.

A concelebrated funeral Mass was offered at St. Patrick's Cathedral today at 10:30 a.m. with Terence Cardinal Cooke as the Principal Celebrant. Bishop-elect Ronald G. Connors was the homilist. There was also a Mass of the Holy Eucharist at his home parish of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, Brooklyn on Monday at 8 p.m. Bishop John Boardman presided at the Mass. Bishop McManus will be buried at Mount St. Alphonsus, Esopus.

Local arrangements were under the direction of the Henry J. Bruck Funeral Home, 411 Albany Avenue.

PICTORIAL REVIEW OF LOCAL BICENTENNIAL

Drowning Victim's Body Recovered

ELLENVILLE — The body of a Queens man missing since Sunday afternoon was recovered Monday from Lake Ulster by state police divers. The death of Alex Androszewski, 24, of 85-19 123rd St., Kew Gardens was an "apparent" accidental drowning, state police said.

He was last seen swimming in the lake Sunday, and a person who saw him sink called state troopers, who dragged the lake Sunday night to no avail. An autopsy is pending.

Four Arrested

Four young men were arrested Monday in connection with the theft and unauthorized use of two all-terrain vehicles (ATVs) from the Pine Grove Ranch in Kerhonkson Sunday.

State police officer Douglas Diamond after an investigation arrested David Krom, 16, and Matthew Sahler, 17, both of Kerhonkson on two charges of third degree burglary, a felony. Steven Ennenga, 17, of Accord, was charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, while a Kerhonkson juvenile was also charged with burglary.

The three adults were arraigned before Warwarsing Town Judge Harold Lipton and released in their parents' custody pending a court appearance before Rochester Town Judge Harold Lipton tomorrow. The juvenile was released in his parents' custody pending a Family Court appearance at a later date.

Expensive Ticket

Tearing up a traffic ticket led to a $25 fine on a charge of obstructing governmental administration for Sonny Fletcher, 23, of Woodstock yesterday, and the arrest of Gloria Katz, 40, also of Woodstock on the same charge.

Officer Ludwig Baumgarten placed a ticket for obstructing traffic on the windshield of a car operated by Fletcher and owned by Ms. Katz. After Fletcher tore up the ticket, Officer Baumgarten tried to arrest him, but the suspect fled to Ms. Katz's home.

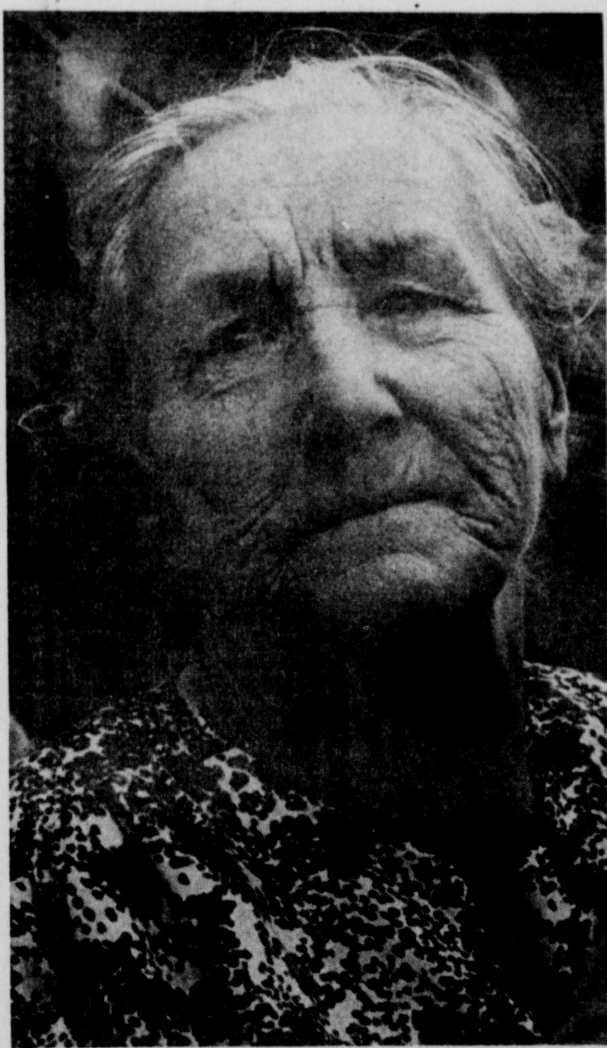

She refused to turn Fletcher over to Woodstock policemen for two hours until the police obtained a search warrant. Her lawyer then produced Fletcher. The two were arraigned before Judge Kevin Sweeney, who fined Fletcher

$25 after he pleaded guilty. Ms. Katz, who pleaded not guilty, was released on her own recognizance pending a future court appearance.

Dutchess Barn Fire

An early morning barn fire on the Dutchess County fairgrounds in Rhinebeck resulted in the death of one Black Angus heifer and minor damage to the 4-H shed where the fire broke out at 5:34 a.m. today.

The blaze began in a pile of hay which had apparently been ignited by a short circuit or spark from an electrical fan in the barn, according to Rhinebeck Fire Chief Jeff Strong. Thirtyseven Rhinebeck firemen fought the fire until 6:15 a.m.

Gov. Carey Gives a Hand to the Blind

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Hugh Carey has signed into law measures to give state aid to soil and water conservation districts and to disregard federal training allowances in computing, public assistance payments, it was announced today.

Carey also has signed bills dealing with the rights of the blind, prison release and furlough programs, and nursing home ownership, it was announced earlier.

One newly-signed measure would provide up to $4,000 to conservation districts to pay 50 per cent of the cost of a conservation field technician, district manager or supervisor.

Effective retroactively to April 1, the law provides $80,000 for the program statewide.

Another new law would require that federal training incentive allowances of $30 weekly be disregarded in determining the amount of public assistance for which a person is eligible. The measure also bars a recipient of the federal training allowance from receiving a $30 monthly state training allowance.

Denying the use of a public facility or employment to someone simply because he is blind would be a violation of the state's Civil Rights Law under one bill signed. The measure guarantees unrestricted access for blind persons to public and private transportation, educational facilities, housing and entertainment.

A program for the temporary release of inmates for work, education and medical attention would be extended for one year under another bill signed by Carey. Also given a one year extension was a furlough program for prisoners at local correctional facilities to maintain family ties and solve family problems.

Another measure limits liability for nursing home damages and violations to those with an ownership interest, excluding county and municipal officials, administrators or employees. The bill also authorizes revoking a nursing home administrator's permit on a finding of intentional conduct endangering the health and safety of patients.

New Skyjacking

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — A group of dissident Libyans hijacked a Libyan passenger jetliner today and forced it to land at a military airfield in Algeria, government officials said.

It was not immediately known how many passengers were aboard the Boeing 707, en route from Tripoli to Benghazi when it was hijacked.

The hijackers first tried to land in Tunis, Tunisia, but officials closed the airport.

They also were refused landing rights at the civilian airport at Daar-El-Beida, Algeria, before landing at Boufarik military airport 17 miles from the capital.

Algeria has warm relations with the leftist Libyan regime.

The hijackers identified themselves as members of a Libyan opposition movement called "Ech Chaab Al Ouai" (Vigilant Youth).

Government officials told reporters they could not enter the military airfield.

When the Boeing 707 sought "with insistence" to land in Tunisia at 3 a.m. EDT, the Tunis airport was immediately closed and the landing strips blocked, the sources said. Truckloads of police sped to the airport but they withdrew after the spurned jetliner headed to neighboring Algeria.

The airport remained closed at midday.

Relations between Tunisia and Libya have deteriorated sharply in recent months.

Lake George Normal

LAKE GEORGE, N.Y. (UPI) — Things were back to normal Monday in this upstate resort community following a July 4 disturbance in which an estimated 3,000 youths clashed with police for 90 minutes before order was restored.

Eleven arrests had been made in connection with the incident by Monday afternoon, mostly on charges of disorderly conduct. Two arrests had been made for possession of marijuana, police said.

Steven Sano, one of the village police commissioners, said, "I don't think anybody will ever know" what prompted 2,000 to 3,000 youths to clash with police from four agencies about 1 a.m. "Everybody was having a good time," Sano said. "It was just spontaneous combustion."

One report from a person at the scene said the wrangle began after police asked a group to stop playing Frisbee in a heavily traveled street, but Sano said it was not known just how or why the trouble began.

Windows were smashed and tires slashed on police cars from several agencies and tow trucks had to be called for some cars, but Sano said there was little overall damage.

One store window was broken by a tossed beer bottle, Sano said.

Fire hoses were trained on the crowd at one point to disperse it. Village police, aided by state troopers, Warren County Sheriff's deputies and town of Queensbury police, arrested about two dozen persons, according to initial reports from Police Chief Clay Baudette.

Sano estimated that 15-20 "instigators" prompted others "who happened to be in the right place at the wrong time."

Hospital Strikes Imminent

NEW YORK (UPI) — The union representing 42,000 non-medical employees at 48 voluntary hospitals in the area delayed a threatened walkout at 13 nursing homes, but says strikes at the 48 hospitals at 6 a.m. Wednesday are "inevitable."

Since no new talks have been set in the months-old contract dispute, "it appears at this moment that a strike is inevitable without a contract agreement" by the deadline, a spokesman for District 1199, National Union of Hospital and Health Care Workers, said Monday.

Later, the union spokesman said that the walkout at the 13 nursing homes represented by the League of Voluntary Hospitals and Homes will not begin until 6 a.m. Saturday.

On Monday, Gov. Hugh Carey's office announced that Kevin Cahill, a special assistant for health matters, has sent Matthew Nimetz as an observer in the dispute.

Cahill said, "Although the state administration is not now nor has ever been a party to the collective bargaining process, the state will do everything it can to avoid a health crisis."

Meanwhile, hospital administrators were recruiting volunteers and management employees to do the strikers' work, a spokesman for the league said.

Each hospital is suspending elective surgery, turning away non-emergency cases and moving the elderly and infirm to places where they can be cared for, the spokesman added.

The last actual face-to-face negotiations were held in late May. Each side has met separately with a federal mediator several times since then but there has been no report of progress.

Big Purchase
Over one-third of the present United States came by way of purchasing the territories of Louisiana and Alaska, in 1803 and 1867, respectively. The combined price for the two purchases, totaling approximately $22.5 million, averages out to a little over $15 per square mile.

Weather: Mostly sunny and very warm

The Temperature
The lowest temperature recorded on The Freeman thermometer during the night was 62 degrees. The highest figure recorded up to noon today was 84 degrees.

Weather Forecast
ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — New York State zone forecasts:
Hudson Valley, Mohawk Valley — Mostly sunny and very warm today, with highs in the mid 80s to around 90. Fair tonight. Lows, upper 50s to mid 60s. Continued sunshine Wednesday, with a chance of scattered afternoon and evening thunderstorms.

Showers Deluge South

Showers and thunderstorms stretched over most of the nation early today and heavy rains brought the threat of some localized flooding.

Rains fell along the Gulf Coast and the southern Atlantic Coast. Other storms roamed the Northern Plains and the Southern Rockies and light showers damped the Pacific Northwest.

A band of rain and thunderstorms darkened the holiday's windup day Monday from eastern Texas eastward through the Carolinas.

The National Weather Service said a tornado dipped from a severe thunderstorm belt near the southeast Texas town of Orange but there were no reports of damage or injuries.

Some rivers in southeastern Kansas and southwestern Missouri remained out of their banks and recent rains were expected to push Arkansas' Black, the White, and the Arkansas rivers well over floodstage.

The National Weather Service warned that locally heavy rains could trigger localized flooding in portions of Texas, Louisiana, the Carolinas and Georgia.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 47 degrees at Phillipsburg, Pa., to 95 at both Blythe, Calif., and Phoenix, Ariz.

W-U Hike Hearing Due

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Hearings on rate increases proposed by the Western Union Telegraph Company for its Teletypewriter Exchange (TWX) service and telegram service within the state will begin later this month, State Public Service Commission officials announced Monday.

The commission said Western Union was asking permission to increase its basic telegram rates, including charges for money orders, by $1 each, and its TWX rates from 10 cents to 15 cents a minute.

Western Union estimated the proposed hikes would increase its revenues by $437,861 annually based upon present business volume.

The company proposed the new rates be put into effect August 8, but the commission has suspended their effectiveness until it decides what rates are proper. Present rates will remain in effect pending the decision, which must be reached by next June.

In a letter accompanying its filing, Western Union said the increases will bring the rates for services within New York State up to the level approved by the Federal Communications Commission for interstate service in 1974.

Hercules Pact Is Spelled Out

GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Steelworkers at the Hercules Inc. color pigment factory in nearby Queensbury ended a three-day strike by ratifying a new two-year contract over the weekend, but they may be prevented from returning to work by other unions' picket lines.

Members of United Steel Workers Local 12962 voted Saturday 175-129 to accept a new offer from the company. President Lawrence J. Ives said the contract provides a 57-cent-an-hour, across-the-board wage boost in the first year and a 50-cent across-the-board raise in the second year.

The pact also includes increased fringe benefits the first year and a shoe allowance in the second year for the 560 production and laboratory workers, Ives said.

The steelworkers and five craft unions representing about 80 maintenance workers struck the plant at midnight Wednesday.

George Sartwell, vice president of local 389 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said the negotiating committee for the five crafts unions are scheduled to resume talks today but will be picketing then.

The steelworkers "very probably will" remain out of work, Ives said. He said his unit would not cross the other unions' picket lines.

The maintenance workers include the IBEW, plumbers local 773, carpenters local 229, painters local 466 and machinists local 722.

Sheriff 'Games' Victim

GENESEE, N.Y. (UPI) — Sheriff Douglas Welch of Livingston County died Sunday while participating in bicentennial activities.

Welch, 44, suffered a heart attack while riding a horse during bicentennial "cavalry games" in Genesee.

He was taken to Strong Memorial Hospital in Rochester, and was dead on arrival.

Welch had been sheriff of Livingston County since 1971, and had been with the department since 1961.

STAFF'S CHANCE

A Modest Proposal

My grandmother once told me the trouble with my generation was that we had never fought our way overland in a Conestoga wagon despite drought, blizzards and hostile Indians. We remembered her words recently when we went to Rhinebeck to see the Bicentennial Wagon Train and its prairie schooners.

A few weeks later, when we visited the Bicentennial Barge in Kingston, it occurred to us the lack in our upbringing also extended to never having suffered through a canal trip into virgin lands at a mile-and-a-half an hour, while sharing deck space with spare animals and being knocked down by low bridges at indecent intervals.

Indeed, what has my generation ever done but speed along on four-lane superhighways? So, if this Bicentennial year has brought covered wagons and barges to our area, what shall we of Ulster County today build for our posterity? What should we now begin preparing for the country's 400th birthday celebration, so people then will understand what sort of people now forged the legacy handed down to them?

My proposal is that a few stretches of today's primeval highway be set aside immediately along the Thruway or Route 28 here in Ulster so that in 2176, people will know how it used to be. They'll know how it was to spend an hour behind three tailgating trucks or a motorcycle gang riding six abreast.

Let them experience firsthand the glaring lights of oncoming traffic in the eyes and the vision-confusing blinking of portable neon signs. Instead of resurrecting chuckwagons, spinning wheels, weaving looms, wooden plows and handmade chisels and axes to show them their heritage, as we are doing today, let's allow them to enjoy the speed trap and tire check, the thrill of an S-curve under 15 inches of Catskills snow, and the 25-mile detour around Traver Hollow Bridge.

Never mind covered wagons on unexplored mountain passes or barges pulled along towpaths by straining mules. Today, before it's too late, let's set aside a few sections of Ulster highway in its current condition. It will be, I'm sure, very educational in attracting tourists here 200 years from now.

People who are traveling long distances this year to see Kingston's pioneering Old Stockade and quaint Huguenot Street in New Paltz will pour into Ulster during the Quad-centennial and pay admission to travel on a road just like the one their great granddaddies used to maneuver.

Before the Thruway or Route 28 go the way of the Santa Fe Trail and the Delaware and Hudson Canal, let's preserve them. We must if we expect those who follow us to have any respect for the sufferings, struggles and rigors of these olden days.

UWP Enjoyed Kingston

Dear Editor:

I had the pleasure of meeting you briefly during my two-week stay in Kingston. As advance coordinator for Up With People's visit to your city, I was able to meet and get to know many fine citizens of Kingston.

During my five years of traveling with Up With People I've worked and lived in several hundred cities in a number of countries, but I can truly say I've never experienced more warmth and enthusiasm than I found among the residents of Kingston.

The whole community seemed to be aware, open and willing to help make our stay successful. The Kingston Trust Company, our sponsor, really went all out to make Up With People's visit to the city the highlight of their Bicentennial activities for the community.

The local media, service organizations, churches, and general public all lent their support to making our time in Kingston rewarding. It's a city each cast member will long remember as one of the highlights of their year with Up With People. Many lasting friendships were made.

Up With People is looking forward to returning to Kingston in the not-too-distant future. Till then, I'd like to thank the Freeman for all the support given us and everyone in your beautiful city who contributed to the success of our visit.

Thank you and all the best from Cast Bill of Up With People.

Ford: Surrender to Reagan

Dear President Ford:

Democratic scandals might give Republicans hope nationwide, but your delegate count is misleading. Surrender the Republican presidential nomination to Reagan.

The New York State delegates were delivered to you by high-tax-Rocky and his cohorts. Rosenbaum, etc. None of these people presently represent the grass root Republicans of New York State.

Rocky and his cohorts' "moral obligations" seemingly bankrupt New York State. Rocky and his cohorts did not allow New York State Republicans a primary. He does not represent the New York State Republicans or Independents. Knowing the apparent amoral character of the so-called "moral obligation" citizens, I wouldn't be surprised if you could win the Republican party nomination with Rocky's finagling and the New York

State delegation's support. Your vote tally in New York State might be zero to 1,500,000 on election day — you with the zero and Carter the winner. Your moral obligation supporters probably wouldn't even vote for you.

White collar crime is supported, grandfathers' mayhem, murder and avarice is condoned, and silver spoons are in the mouths of some people that are born.

We have Rocky.

So far as I know Reagan is not a crook; he is not a part of the Washington establishment or "morally obligated" and he is not amoral. He might be a winner.

Regardless, I will vote against Rocky and/or you because I had no primary. Reagan I would vote for.

IBM Not Moving to Endicott

Dear Editor:

In a recent letter, Mr. Jack Walter of Endicott stated that IBM is moving its manufacturing facilities in Ulster County to Endicott, New York and he suggested that the reason for the move is that IBM will receive lower electric rates because it will be served by a municipal electric system in that city.

Mr. Walter is incorrect in both instances.

First, IBM's manufacturing operations in Ulster County are not being moved to Endicott. Approximately 80 per cent of IBM's manufacturing employees will continue to work in the Mid-Hudson area, and some of the remaining 20 per cent will be transferred to Endicott or Raleigh, North Carolina.

Second, IBM's existing facilities in Endicott are served by New York State

Electric and Gas Corp., an investor-owned electric company similar to Central Hudson. Furthermore, even if IBM's manufacturing facilities in Ulster County were to be moved to Endicott, they would not be eligible for service from the local municipal company, according to the regulations of the power authority of the State of New York, which supplies power to the municipal system.

It appears that Mr. Walter misunderstood the IBM announcement and made an incorrect assumption regarding the operation of the Endicott municipal system.

Political Torture in Cuba

Pursuant to my commitment to give presumptive credence to tales of torture that satisfy three conditions: 1) They must allegedly have taken place in a closed society; 2) the society in question must have declined to permit an investigation of them; and 3) the operation must not give off an overwhelming ideological stink — I report on a massacre said to have taken place at the federal prison of Puerto Boniato in Oriente Province, Cuba, last September 1.

It was 11 a.m. in Ward 4. One hundred political prisoners are listening to Laureano Valdes-Gallardo in cell 13 howling in pain from a tetanus infection caused when he hammered out two of his teeth with a prison spoon. The prisoners have been in solitary for six years; naked; locked inside windowless steel-planked cells. Several have lost their minds. One is blind. The howling of Valdes-Gallardo increases. His fellow inmates start to hammer with their aluminum plates and mugs at the heavy steel planks that cover the windows, to draw attention to the sick man.

11:30 a.m. Patrols surround the building. Machine guns are mounted and pointed at the steel windows. Visitors spending time with the non-political prisoners are ordered to leave the prison because a mass escape is allegedly under way. The premises cleared, the guards break into Ward 4, open up the cells, take out the prisoners, hitting them with rifle butts, fracturing skulls with machetes. They are pushed to the end of the hallway.

Gerardo Gonzalez-Alvarez, a Protestant minister, opens his arms and intones the sacred phrase, "Forgive them Lord, for they know not what they do." Lt. Paul Perez de-la-Rosa orders a machine gun burst. It cuts off the head of the minister. Enrique Diaz-Correa rushes to his friend. Three bullets pierce his body. He falls dead over the minister's corpse. The blind man, Wilfredo Martinez, is whiplashed with a thick steel cable; he too is mortally wounded.

Others among the survivors are savagely beaten. One cell door has remained shut. The cell's occupant shouts out, protesting the massacre. Lt. Figueroa opens the door and shoots Evelio Hernandez. The guards pick up the body and throw it into the hallway.

3 p.m. Six of the wounded have been transferred to the hospital. The remaining 64 wounded are piled seven or eight per narrow cell. The guards hose down the bloodstained floors and walls and begin to fill in the bullet holes.

September 6, 12:00 noon. Guards wielding sledge hammers break down the doors to Ward 4. Other soldiers, dressed in yellow uniform and underwear and armed with rods and chains, stage a mock mutiny. They attack the guards as if attempting a mass escape. Guards fall to the ground. The scene is filmed and photographed by cameramen from the Ministry of the Interior. It is a grotesque effort to justify the murders of the previous week.

Way back on November 13, Senator Jesse Helms put that story into the Congressional Record. He was not, he said, himself in a position to guarantee the authenticity of the document that brought him the allegations.

"If anyone has any doubt that these events took place, then let him apply to Castro for permission to go to Cuba and see for himself. Indeed, let a whole group of Newsmen go, newsmen representing a broad political spectrum and different countries. Let them have permission to go where they like to talk to whomsoever they like, without intimidation of witnesses. Then we shall know the truth."

It is time now, six months later, to note the record. No delegation constituted, no committee from the United Nations, no public clamor. From Amnesty International (in reply to a query from the quarter) only this: "Al. is currently attempting to ascertain the authenticity of the allegations."

Remember the rule: Under the circumstances, presume Castro guilty.

Search for Carter Gears Up

WASHINGTON—The New York Times is now in the process of searching for the Loch Ness monster. It has underwritten a scientific expedition with underwater TV cameras, sonar equipment and other monster gear heretofore unknown to man. So far they haven't found him/her/it, but if they do, it could be the story of the year—well, almost. There is another search going on right now by almost everyone to find the real Jimmy Carter.

Unlike the Loch Ness monster, Jimmy Carter has not only been seen, but photographed. Scientists who have studied the photographs say he probably comes from the South, and his jaw and teeth indicate his main source of food has been peanuts and Democratic presidential candidates.

One anthropologist told me, "We know he smiles a lot, but we have no idea what is behind the smile. It's hard to believe we have so much information and yet know so little about him."

Another scientist said, "If we could only figure out what was going on in his brain I think we could find out what kind of animal he is, but we can't tell from pictures or television. We'd have to capture him and study him closely in a cage, and I don't think the public would go for that."

I said, "Jimmy Carter has been showing up everywhere. He's been sighted in 48 of the 50 states. Is it possible that there are more than one of him?"

"We don't think so," the scientist replied. "We believe the sightings have all been of the same thing, but nobody can make head or tail of it. A few years ago no one knew a Jimmy Carter existed. But suddenly he showed up out of nowhere. It could be a new species of presidential candidate, or an old species that just looks different."

"The question is why did he surface now and how has he managed to capture the imagination of the American people?"

"Perhaps the people are getting tired of the same old species of President and are looking for something new. Maybe they see in Jimmy Carter something that isn't there."

"We scientists can't deal in hypothesis," he replied. "We have to stick with what we know. We know he chewed up all the other presidential candidates. We found their bones in almost every state where there was a primary. We also know that the only place he avoids is Washington, D.C. If we can find out what it is in Washington, D.C., that keeps him away, we might unlock the mystery."

"Is he dangerous?"

"The Republicans think he is. They're scared silly of him, after what he did to his own kind in the primaries. The Republicans thought the South was safe, but now with Jimmy Carter roaming around they're afraid to go near the place."

"How does he protect himself?"

"With his teeth. Whenever he gets hungry he just opens his mouth and chomps off whatever is standing in his way. Then he smiles as if nothing happened."

"What about his skin?"

"It's very tough. Anyone who has tried to get under it has been sorry he tried. A year ago the regular Democrats tried to stop him with every machine they had. But now everyone, including those who run the machines, is eating out of his hand. They don't understand it themselves, but they're going along with it, because they don't have a choice."

"Do you think you can get a closer look at him and find out more about him?"

"Well, he's going on display at the Democratic Circus in Madison Square Garden next week, and we've got a special team stationed there to make a new study to observe him, and find out if there is anything we overlooked. But we're not optimistic. He may remain a mystery until he gets to the White House."

"The White House. But that's in Washington, D.C."

"We know that. But that seems to be where he's trying to get to now. If he gets there the mystery of who or what a Jimmy Carter is may finally be solved."

Where Has U.S. Aid Loot, Gone?

WASHINGTON — Just about every nation in real or apparent need has received an outpouring of economic and military aid from the United States. But all too often, the American taxpayers have offered handouts to hands that have been only too quick to pick their pockets.

The United States has showered Nicaragua, for example, with hundreds of millions of dollars. But not until we documented last year how Nicaragua's pot-bellied potentate, Anastasia Somoza, has wound up with most of the economic benefits did Congress start to ask critical questions.

We reported that Somoza even managed to make a profit off the 1972 earthquake that devastated his capital city of Managua. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, thereafter, dispatched two investigators to Nicaragua to determine what happened to the $100 million that the United States donated to help the earthquake victims.

The investigators brought back enough disturbing information that Sens. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., and Clifford Case, R-N.J., have now asked the General Accounting Office (GAO) to conduct a careful audit. Here are just a few of the facts that the two Foreign Relations Committee investigators uncovered:

— The United States put up $3 million to help build an emergency housing project called Las Americas. The homes are hopelessly inadequate wooden duplexes resembling oversized matchboxes. We have personally received a petition signed by 134 residents of Las Americas, asking us to investigate the substandard construction of their homes.

— The Inter-American Development Bank may loan Nicaragua $24.4 million for the construction of a superhighway around the capital city. The lion's share of this longterm, low-interest loan, about $16 million, would come out of the U.S. till. To no one's particular surprise, the new highway would increase the value of Somoza's personal property by millions of dollars.

— The Senate investigators have also raised questions about other loans to Nicaragua from international financial institutions, which depend heavily upon U.S. contributions.

On the House side, a foreign affairs subcommittee headed by Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., has been investigating Somoza's police state tactics. If serious human rights violations are discovered, the law requires that U.S. military and economic aid be cut off.

Fraser's inquiry brought a quick, quiet reaction from Managua. U.S. Ambassador James Theberge flew to Washington and met with Rep. Edward Koch, D-N.Y., a Somoza critic who could influence the attitude of Congress. To his knowledge, swore Theberge, there were no "systematic violations of human rights in Nicaragua."

The Big Banana himself also asked for a private meeting with Koch. The congressman and the dictator met in New York City's Waldorf-Astoria, where Somoza had taken a penthouse suite.

The Fraser investigation, complained Somoza, was inspired by persons engaged in an "international effort" to wreck U.S.-Nicaraguan relations. The dictator added ominously that Fidel Castro was supporting the insurgents who sought to depose him.

Classified Pentagon intelligence, on the contrary, reveals that the guerrilla movement in Nicaragua is so inconsequential that it can't be taken seriously.

Rep. Fraser, nevertheless, went ahead with hearings. But there was one hitch. His star anti-Somoza witness, a courageous Nicaraguan newspaper publisher named Pedro Joaquin Chamorro, never appeared. Somoza had refused to let him leave the country.

We have seen a portion of the testimony Chamorro would have given. On February 11, he was dumped into jail on libel charges brought by a Somoza flunky. He was prepared to testify that he had seen two hooded prisoners being led to a nearby cell. Thereafter, he heard moans and screams and pleas ... I also heard loud crashes as if someone were being thrown against a metal door and a strange sound similar to the cracking of a whip."

Chamorro was later taken to the police barracks where he saw "a series of more than 15 small cells, each about two and one-half square meters in size and each holding a man. All of the men were silent, in different positions, emaciated and seemingly out of touch with reality. In this well-lighted section, the scene resembled a collection of living dead men, each in his own tomb."

To add credibility to his statement, the newspaper publisher swore out an affidavit before the archbishop of Managua, Monsignor Miguel Obando y Bravo.

Footnote: We asked Nicaraguan Ambassador Guillermo Sevilla-Sacasa for a full explanation of why Chamorro wasn't allowed to testify before the Fraser committee. "I don't know why," he said. But he promised to find out. That was May 19. We are still waiting for the ambassador's response.

MEDICARE MESS: Under the medicare program, most physicians' fees are paid by the Federal Bureau of Health Insurance. As an economy measure, the agency has been reducing the claims submitted by elderly patients.

This has cut down on the taxpayers' outlay. However, statistics show that it isn't the doctors but their patients who are taking the cut. The doctors merely have been demanding more money from their elderly, often impecunious patients.

Thomas Tierney, the bureau's director, conceded that the problem is serious. But determining an equitable formula for physician payments, he contended, is a complex task.

Soviet Weaknesses

Last week I promised some thoughts the weaknesses of our enemy, the USSR, weaknesses which I see us not as interested in as our own. To me, their converting Marx's version of a society governed "by the people and for the people" into one run by a tiny self-perpetuating clique has sown seeds of its own destruction. These are already well sprouted in the European Communist parties which are beginning to follow Tito's lead in breaking away from the discipline demanded by the Russians. There is no need to remind anyone of how their first great convert, China, feels about their hypocrisy. The Maoists' description of Russian as an imperial power with world conquering ambitions is an accurate one.

Clearly, that leaves them with only their armed forces to sustain their expansion and this is still a pretty big world to police, Russian - or any other - style.

But I see an even more basic flaw in their arrogant confidence that a few people know what's best for the future of millions whom they happen to have under their thumb at the moment. I just don't think that, in the long run, it will work. There was the same flaw inherent in the inbred monarchical system. They might, indeed, remind themselves that it was that kind of thinking that produced the Czarism which their forefathers overthrew.

Human beings have survived on Earth because they got new ideas, which enabled them to meet new problems — and master old ones. But the human gene structure is much too complicated for any individual or small group to know who is going to come up with one.

To bet your nation's survival — as the Russians are — on being able to squeeze the originality out of its people — and make them accept conformity to your ideas — is to doom your country eventually to running short of the nonconformity which is the foundation of every "new" idea.

QED: when the changes which are inevitable in the process of survival on this Earth come, you will find your people — and yourselves — unable to meet them successfully.

Karl Marx began it all with big talk about the contradictions in the capitalist system. Those who inherited his ideas should do a little pondering on the conflicts in their own.

A lot has happened to all of us since Marx's day. The doctrinaire Marxist might ask himself whether the state nourished only by his ideas or the one whose bicentennial we are now celebrating had proved the abler in adjusting to new circumstances. Our founding Fathers' ideas were as impractically idealistic as his. Of course they were full of contradictions and imperfections. Just as obviously they still are. But how much skill in the art of adjustment to a changed world has Marx's society demonstrated in the last 50 years, compared to ours?

If one of Marx's foundation stones was his belief in the workers' inherent right to own what he created, how much does the average worker in The Soviet Union own of what he is under orders to produce - compared to his opposite number here? As I understand it, the largest owners of equity stock in the largest companies in The United States are their workers' own pension funds. (If I'm wrong, it is not by much.) So who has the best track record for adapting?

Well, enough speculation is enough. It all adds up to my feeling that, if we don't let ourselves get sucked into an old-fashioned shoot-out with the USSR (to our mutual annihilation), history will undo it without our help. To me, doctrinaire Soviet Communism is coming, and fairly rapidly, to look more and more like the mammoth dinosaur which pigmy man didn't have to dispose of because its own nature did the job for him.

Liberals Boycot New Spanish Cabinet

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — A boycott by outgoing liberal ministers today postponed formation of conservative Prime Minister Adolfo Suarez Gonzalez' government.

Associates who at first said the cabinet would be announced today pushed the date back until at least Wednesday.

Suarez, 43, took the oath of office Monday, swearing "absolute loyalty" to King

Juan Carlos and "strict fidelity to the principles of the National Movement," the Franco-era party of which Suarez was general secretary.

Afterwards, he conferred for more than three hours with the king.

Influential economist Ramon Tamames, a Communist, predicted Suarez would reorder Spain's priorities in favor of the economy, temporarily abandoning reform of the authoritarian Franco machinery.

The slogan of the new government will probably be "first resolve Spain's economic crisis and bring democracy later," Tamames said.

Interior Minister Manuel Fraga Iribarne, Foreign Minister Jose Maria Areilza and other liberal ministers under former Prime Minister Carlos Arias Navarro said they would refuse to participate in the new cabinet.

Fraga and Areilza, chief architects of the reform program, sent letters to Suarez communicating their attitude. Areilza said he took his decision "to keep intact my ideological convictions," the national news agency Cifra reported.

Opposition members predicted technocrats of the Catholic lay organization

Opus Dei who ran Spain in the 1960's were on the way back in. But political sources said Suarez was trying to balance his cabinet by naming one or two leftists.

The new chief of government also met Monday with Social Democrat Antonio Garfia Lopez and Cifra said Garcia Lopez was under consideration for a post.

Is The Flu Battle Doomed?

By CRAIG A. PALMER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's campaign to inoculate every American against swine flu may be doomed.

The plan is beset with uncertainties such as the proper vaccine dose for children, and a big political certainty — Congress will not touch it because of insurance problems.

After two days of work on a bill "to provide indemnification against claims for injury related to inoculation with vaccine," Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., told lawyers, insurers, vaccine manufacturers and health officials Thursday they should look elsewhere.

"That ought to be handled by agreement rather than by law, because I don't think the committee (working on the bill) is in a position to write a law at this time," Rogers said.

Government officials and corporate lawyers representing vaccine companies are to resume their talks this week.

There have been other problems:

— One drug company made the wrong kind of vaccine.

— Dr. Albert Sabin, developer of one of the polio vaccines, said the government should vaccinate only older and high-risk persons suffering from chronic illness.

— Some states complain their share of a $135 million aid bill for the distribution of vaccine is inadequate.

— Nobody knows whether Americans will line up this fall for shots against an epidemic, which may not come this winter.

The toughest problems come with insurance.

Because of "virtually unmeasurable" risks of lawsuits, insurers are reducing or eliminating coverage of swine flu vaccine.

Drug companies say they must have some protection this month against suits not related to their own negligence if they are to continue making vaccine.

The mass vaccination program got its start last February when several hundred Army recruits at Fort Dix, N.J., became ill — one died — from a virus confined to pigs and the butchers and hog farmers, who work with them.

The virus resembled that, which caused the 1918-19 world epidemic and killed 20 million, including 548,000 Americans.

GOP Governors Favor Ford 11-2; Unsure About Reagan,

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As GOP governors met at the National Governors' Conference this week, earlier presidential endorsements appeared firm, but some aren't sure, or won't say they will support the nominee if their man loses.

From a survey by UPI of the 13 Republican governors attending the conference in Hershey, Pa., today, the following picture emerged:

The governors are still 11-2 in favor of President Ford over Ronald Reagan, but some are reluctant to pledge unequivocal support to whoever is the nominee.

Gov. Jay S. Hammond of Alaska: A Ford man, so strongly that he says about the possibility of a Reagan nomination, "I haven't really thought about supporting Reagan."

Gov. Otis R. Bowen of Indiana: A Ford backer, but "I will support whoever comes out of the convention." Bowen and Reagan have worked together at national governors' conferences and are cordial to each other.

Gov. Robert D. Ray of Iowa: Still a strong Ford man. He will go with the nominee, whoever it is.

Gov. Robert F. Bennett of Kansas: A whole-hearted backer of Ford now as before, was asked if he could support Reagan if he is the nominee. "Yes," he said, without elaboration.

Gov. William G. Milliken of Michigan: A strong backer of Ford's. He believes "the President is going to take it on the first ballot." As for supporting Reagan, Milliken said, "I will face that issue should it develop — and I don't think it will."

Gov. Christopher S. Bond of Missouri: A firm supporter of Ford in a state where Reagan has a 30-16 lead in delegates. Bond told UPI that if Reagan is the nominee he will support him as vigorously as he does Ford.

Gov. Meldrim Thomson Jr., of New Hampshire: A strong Reagan backer, who is imprecise on whether he could go for Ford if the President wins the nomination. Gov. James

E. Holshouser Jr., of North Carolina: A strong Ford backer, who managed Ford's southern campaign. He would support Reagan if he wins the nomination. "I intend to support the Republican nominee and I expect that to be President Ford."

Gov. James A. Rhodes of Ohio: Still supports Ford. But Rhodes would not comment when UPI asked him if he could support Reagan if nominated.

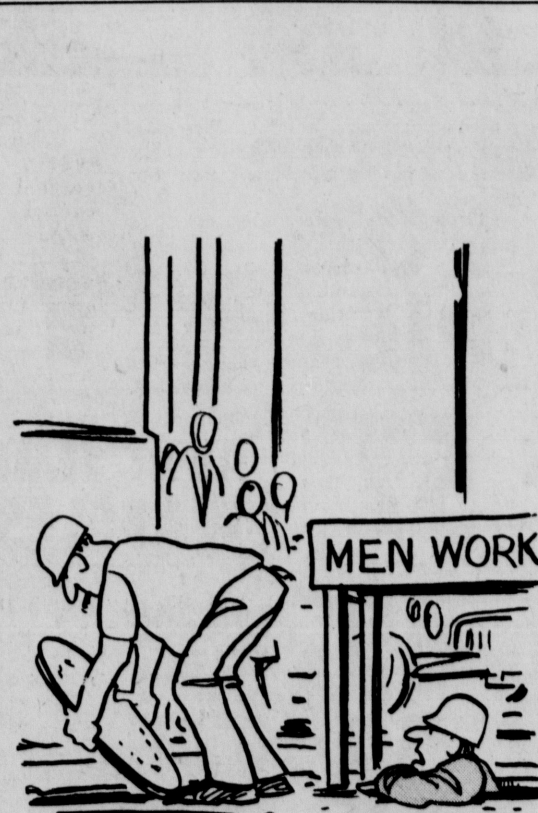

Gov. James B. Edwards of South Carolina: A strong Reagan backer, chairman of Reagan's campaign in his state. Edwards has said he would support Ford if he is the nominee.

Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr., of Virginia: "My position has not changed. I am supporting President Ford for the Republican nomination for president, but I could support either the President or Governor Reagan as the nominee."

Gov. Daniel J. Evans of Washington: A strong Ford backer, but one who has said he will support the party's eventual nominee.

Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr., of West Virginia: A strong Ford backer still, he has said he would support Reagan if he wins the nomination. At one low point in Reagan's campaign, Moore was among some governors who asked him to withdraw.

Miss Ethel and Performing Greyhounds ...Circus attraction

Circus Coming To Town July 11

KINGSTON — It's a three ring circus! And it's coming to Kingston Sunday, July 11, complete with lion tamers, acrobats and a complement of clowns.

The Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Circus will present two performances at 2 and 5:30 p.m. at Kingston Plaza, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Kingston.

The traveling cavalcade of entertainment will roll into the city in the early morning hours and set up in the traditional manner, with performing elephants doubling as tent-raisers by pulling the football field-sized bigtop into the air.

The three-ring show will include three herds of elephants, trained wild and domestic animals, aerialists, jugglers, balancers and a small army of clowns.

The circus side shows will be open on the midway featuring a fire-eater, magician, ventriloquist, knife-throwers and other acts including the Clyde Beatty menagerie.

A free calliope concert opens the side show about one hour before scheduled big top performances.

Clowns and pretty girls ...right ingredients for a circus

Coleman Shows Have Dietz Date

KINGSTON — Fast-moving amusement rides and the regional debut of sword-swallowing, fire-eating sideshow performers will highlight this year's visit of the Coleman Brothers Midway to Dietz Stadium.

The carnival, boasting some 30 rides and a "custom-sized kiddie midway" is slated for a four-day stay in Kingston with 6 p.m. openings Wednesday, July 7, through Friday, July 9, and a special matinee scheduled for noon Saturday.

The show, being sponsored by the Excelsior Hose Company, is the product of work four generations of the Coleman family, says show owner Robert Coleman. The entertainment enterprise, based in Middletown, Conn., is now in its 60th year and will tour 3,000 miles during a seven-month run.

Coleman explained that the show will bring a variety of new "thrill" rides to Kingston, including the elaborate "Flying Bobs" which whizzes passengers at speeds up to 60 miles per hour and is illuminated by more than 3,500 lights. The brave at heart may also venture a trip on the 85-foot tall "Sky Diver" and the new "Zipper."

Also a first for this year will be a discount ride coupon book available daily at the showgrounds which can save patrons up to 15 per cent on ride prices.

VFW Honors Simpson

ROCHESTER—The Veterans of Foreign Wars members held their 57th State Convention and the 52nd meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary in Rochester from June 23 through June 26.

The convention honored Albert DeLuca, commander of the Hudson Valley Counties Council with a White Hat symbolic of an Allstate County Commander, a distinguished service pin and an Allstate wristwatch. Also honored was Commander Frank Simpson of the Joyce-Schirick Post, 1386, in Kingston, who received a White Hat as an Allstate Post Commander. Simpson also was chosen as captain of the Allstate Team for attaining the highest gain in post membership in the state.

The Kingston post also received a trophy and a citation for its post paper which was accepted by the editor, Al DeLuca. Kerhonkson Post 8959 Commander Herb Poppel received a plaque for his dedicated service.

The color guard of the Joyce-Schirick Post led the parade Friday evening. Carrying the post and county colors were Tom Hughes, Charles DeLuca, Gene Broadhead, George Beesmer, James Longendyke and Commander Frank Simpson.

Oneonta Takes Title Over Kingston

Legion Second in Upstate Tourney

PLATTSBURGH — Kingston's American Legion Post 150 baseball team emerged from the weekend's grueling Plattsburgh Invitational Tournament with four victories in six games, but an 8-0 loss to Oneonta cost the locals the championship in the Monday night finale.

A 5-4 setback to Herkimer in the second game sent Kingston into the losers' bracket and forced them to play three consecutive games on Monday. Kingston beat Arlington, Mass., 5-0, then avenged the loss to Herkimer with a 7-1 triumph. In the last game, however, Oneonta jumped out to an early lead, and Kingston didn't have the strength left to come back.

Kingston didn't start play until Saturday night. Marco Tiano gave the locals an auspicious beginning by threehitting Newton, Mass., for a 9-2 victory. Tiano was the major factor in the contest as he blew down 14 batters on strikes while walking only one. Rich Bell powered the offense with a pair of hits and three RBI's.

The costly loss to Herkimer came Sunday afternoon. Kingston had a 3-0 lead in the contest, but Herkimer got to loser Kevin Jordan for a pair of runs in the last of the fifth that turned the outcome around.

With one more defeat meaning elimination, Dave Loeffler took the mound Sunday night and blanked Newburgh with a four-hitter. Val Galm's first inning RBI was all the support Loeffler required as he struck out 11 batters and kept Newburgh at bay for the distance.

The stretch run Monday began with another shutout, this one by Jay Foust who fanned Arlington, Mass., 5-0. Foust stayed on the plate, allowed just three hits, and got all the backing he needed from Joe Augustine who drilled two hits and drove in two runs.

Kingston's strong pitching finally brought it back from the losers' bracket and into a championship berth opposite Oneonta. John Acker and Mike Myer hooked up to turn the tables on Herkimer. Acker started, went four innings and picked up the win. Myer turned in three flawless innings of relief. The Kingston offense meanwhile made the most of just four hits as Jay Foust tripled home two runs and Galm, John Grogan and Bill Stote all knocked in one each.

Myer started the championship contest, Kingston's third game of the day, hit the first Oneonta batter then gave way to Augustine. Augustine faced a three-run deficit after five innings, but the winners broke it wide open with a five-run rally in the sixth.

Six different pitchers worked for Kingston in the finals, but none of them had enough left to stop Oneonta. The champions were led by tournament MVP Warren Pickett who chased home three of the Oneonta runs.

"That last game we were just held together with rubber bands," said Kingston coach Ron Secreto.

You Can't Slip One Past Billy

By UPI

Billy Martin, who threw punches to win games as a player, is now throwing the rulebook as manager.

The tempestuous New York skipper played Monday's game under protest as the Kansas City Royals beat the Yankees 2-1 in a contest between the divisional leaders of the American League.

Martin, spotting an apparent rule violation as obscure as the Dead Sea scrolls, protested the game when Kansas City outfielder Hal McRae took too many warm-up throws after coming into the game in the ninth inning to replace injured Amos Otis.

Despite Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in attendance, no resolution was forthcoming. It takes more than diplomacy to cool an irate Martin.

As Martin sees it, the rulebook allows a new fielder five warm-up throws to loosen his arm. But McRae made seven tosses and Martin jumped from the dugout the moment he saw second base umpire Lou DiMuro signaling the outfielder to stop.

"DiMuro was telling him to stop but he kept on going," Martin said. "When I came out there, DiMuro knew what I was out there for. There was no question that there was a violation of the rule."

If the ruling is not enforced, Martin says, there is little point in having it at all.

"The umpire tried to stop him but McRae wouldn't listen," Martin said. "He couldn't tackle him. It's like a pitcher taking 20 warm-up pitches coming into the game. If they're not going to enforce it, why have the rule on the books? The rule says only five warm-up throws. I wouldn't have filed it if I didn't think I would win."

While Martin concerned himself with winning protests, the Royals won the game on runcoring singles by John Mayberry and Al Cowens in the first inning.

Starter Paul Splittorff gave up five hits in 6 1-3 innings to lift his record to 9-6. Steve Mingori gained his sixth save with 1 2-3 innings of scoreless relief.

The Yankees filled the bases with one out in the ninth but Mingori got Mickey Rivers and Roy White to pop up to give

Kansas City the opening win of the three game series.

Elsewhere in the AL, Boston routed Chicago 11-2, Milwaukee edged Minnesota 3-2, Texas defeated Detroit 8-6, California whipped 8-1 and Oakland beat Baltimore 4-1.

Red Sox 11, White Sox 2

Luis Tiant scattered 11 hits to gain his 10th victory and rookie Butch Hobson drove in three runs with a sacrifice and a single to push Boston to .500 for the first time since April 27 when they were 6-5. Tiant, who earlier in the day was named to the All-Star team, struck out seven and walked only one in boosting his record to 10-5.

Brewers 3, Twins 2

Rod Carew's second error of the seventh inning allowed two runs to score as Bill Travers lifted his record to 9-6 in Milwaukee's win over Minnesota. Travers, also selected for the AL stars, allowed seven hits. He walked six and struck out six. Eddie Bane, 0-2, took the loss.

Rangers 8, Tigers 6

Tom Grieve's two-run single highlighted a four-run, seventh inning and rookie reliever Jeff Terpko pitched three-hit ball for 5 2-3 innings to pick up his second win against one loss. Jeff Burroughs had a pair of doubles and drove in two runs for Texas. Dave Roberts took the loss, lowering his mark to 8-7.

Angels 8, Indians 1

Gary Ross, backed by a season high 15-hit attack, hurled a five-hitter to pitch California over Cleveland and raise his record to 6-9. Dave Chalk and Andy Etchebarren each singled twice and drove in three runs. The Angels tagged Pat Dobson, who had won seven in a row since May 21, for seven runs on seven hits in 2 2-3 innings.

A's 4, Orioles 1

Phil Garner hit a three-run homer to give Mike Torrez his first victory since May 31 in Oakland's victory over Baltimore. All-Star reliever Rollie Fingers preserved Torrez' seventh win with 2 2-3 innings to post his 11th save. Rudy May, 5-6, took the loss.

Killanin Is Worried About Games' Future

MONTREAL (UPI) — Lord Killanin won't come out flatly and say it, but he is worried if the International Olympic Committee does not stand its ground on the issue of Taiwan the Olympic Games could turn into a shambles in Moscow in four years time.

Killanin, looking tired and worried, met the media Monday, 20 minutes after arriving from Dublin with the Irish team.

The Irish aristocrat said, "I'm extremely worried. The Canadian government has violated an Olympic principle and if we set a precedent now, it could have long term repercussions, not just in Moscow in 1980, but in 1984 and thereafter."

A high IOC source told UPI: "Guess who are the only ones walking around with a smile on their faces?"

"Yes, you've got it, the Russians..."

Moscow, which already has a poor track record in the matter of mixing politics and sports, will host the 1980 Summer Games.

At the eye of the storm, with the start of the Montreal Games just 11 days distant, is the question of the participation of the Republic of China.

Canada is only prepared to issue the necessary entry visas if the Taiwanese athletes march in the opening parade as "Taiwan" and leave their national flag back in the Olympic Village.

This is out of the question as far as the Taiwanese and the IOC are concerned.

Killanin said he has received a great deal of correspondence since the IOC's July 1 disclosure of Canada's position in respect of Taiwan.

"I will need two or three days to study the correspondence and to hear the views of the IOC membership and it's executive committee before I meet with officials of the External Affairs department," he said.

Canada's decision was a result of its recognizing the People's Republic of China in 1970 when it broke off diplomatic relations with Taiwan.

Killanin said many of the international sports federations, including major sports like athletics (track and field), swimming, basketball and gymnastics were behind the IOC, "while the judo federation went so far as to suggest we cancel the Games."

The IOC President, an able negotiator, ducked the question of whether the Committee would use the ultimate deterrent open to it: withdrawal of its patronage of the Games.

"I have no comment to make on that question at the moment," he said, adding "but I hope Montreal has a successful Olympics."

In the Canadian parliament, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau Monday called upon the IOC to compromise on the issue of Taiwan, just as it did in 1960 when the Games were staged at Rome.

At that time the IOC ordered Taiwan, which then marched under the name of Formosa, to march as Taiwan.

Killanin said he remembered the decision, "and I recall the team unfurling a banner which said, 'under protest,' when it passed the saluting dias."

Saying the Olympics should concern sport, Killanin drew a laugh when he added, "but sometimes it's hard to believe."

Next week's IOC Congress may be faced with other political issues. The African countries have demanded the exclusion of New Zealand because it still maintains sports ties with South Africa and Rhodesia, while there is a strong possibility the Arab nations may demand the expulsion of Israel.

But for the moment, Killanin has to resolve the matter of government interference in Olympic affairs. The other problems will be "in house."

Royal Crown Dominates Historic Track Opener

GOSHEN — Royal Clown, with Dave Wade in the sulky, swept to victories in both runs of the $12,760 Acorn Stake No. 32 Monday to highlight opening day at Goshen's Historic Track.

Royal Clown posted a 2:08 clocking in the sixth race and came back in the tenth with 2:07.3 for her second win. She paid $11.40 and $4.80 for the first places and made Wade the third driver to win the Acorn Stake twice in the last decade.

An opening day crowd of 4,176, the largest in recent years, weathered a power failure that delayed the start of the meet for nearly 30 minutes. They then watched Clip Along score a first race victory that paid her backers $58.40.

The one-week Goshen meet continues today with an 11 race card. Featured are the E.H. Harriman Cup for two-year-old colts and geldings; the Debutante Stake for two-year-old fillies; the New York Sire Stakes for two-year-old colts and geldings; and the Goshen Cup, also for two-year-old colts and geldings.

Wade's dual wins put him alongside Hall of Famers Ralph Baldwin and Stanley Dancer who also conquered the Acorn Stake twice. Royal Clown is out of his family's stable, and her triumph in the sixth was only her second start.

Dancer was in the field also Monday, and he piloted Mistletoe Shalee to a win in the $13,800 New York Sire Stakes for two-year-old pacing fillies.

The New York Sire Stakes for trotting fillies went to Superceder with Ralph Jarvis in the bike.

In preliminaries to the Grand Circuit, Herve Filion and Elbridge T. Gerry were inducted Sunday into harness racing's Living Hall of Fame.

Filion, a winner of over 5,000 races, was presented his ring by Ralph Grasso, the president of the U.S. Harness Writers Association. Filion, 36, has among his remarkable achievements as a trainer-driver a season record of 637 victories, 67 two-minute miles, and career earnings of nearly $16 million.

Gerry was New York's first harness racing commissioner and was also a founder of the Hall of Fame of the Trotter.

Anthony Takes Top Seed

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Earl Anthony fended off late challenges by Paul Colwell and Keith Craycraft Monday night to take the top seed in the $60,000 Southern California Open Bowling Tournament.

Anthony, of Tacoma, Wash., went into today's finals with a total pinfall of 9,520, followed by Colwell, Tucson, Ariz., with 9,458 and Craycraft, New Martinsville, W. Va., with 9,437.

Also making the finals were Gary Dickinson, Ft. Worth, Tex., 9,426, and Roy Buckley, Columbus, Ohio, 9,353.

Anthony spilled 9,085 actual sticks, a 216 average, and added 435 bonus pins for his 14-9-1 match play record to get his total. Despite knocking down 1,668 pins and going 3-5 in the final round, Anthony said he felt things were better than they looked.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Joe Niekro isn't a regular in the Houston Astros' pitching rotation so he likes to make the most of his starting opportunities.

And in order for that to happen Niekro has to be throwing at maximum efficiency. That means his knuckleball must be dropping and fluttering much like it was Monday night when he defeated the New York Mets 7-3.

"I was behind lot of hitters and threw a lot of pitches but I got the big outs when I needed them," Niekro said after working six innings to pick up his fourth win against seven losses. "I got (John) Milner on a strikeout in the seventh (when the Mets rallied for two runs) on three straight knucklers."

Niekro, who was making his first start since June 7, needed help in the eighth from the Astros' top reliever, Ken Forsch.

"It's a good feeling to have Kenny in the bullpen," Niekro said. "If you go into the seventh or eighth you know he'll come in and save your victory."

Houston manager Bill Virdon took notice of Niekro's performance, especially his knuckleball.

"I hoped Niekro would get through the seventh and we wouldn't have to use Ken but I was satisfied with Joe," Virdon said. "If you get the knuckleball over you have a very good chance of winning. There aren't very many good knuckleball hitters around."

The Astros hit Mets' starter Bob Apodaca, 1-4, for six runs in the fourth inning on a two-run triple by Roger Metzger and Bob Watson's home run with Cesar Cedeno on base.

Watson's ninth homer came on a hit-and-run play and he confessed he wasn't trying to hit it out of the park.

"I saw Cedeno break when I swung and I was just trying for a hit and it went all the way," Watson said. "When Cesar's going good, I go good. I think I've been taking too many good pitches letting him run, rather than playing hit-and-run."

Burt Hooton of the Los Angeles Dodgers has a secret other National League pitchers wish he would share with them: how to pitch to the power-laden Philadelphia Phillies.

The 26-year-old right-hander, who pitched a no-hitter against the Phillies as a member of the Chicago Cubs back in 1972, has beaten them seven straight times for the Dodgers. He turned in a two-hitter Monday night giving the Dodgers a 6-0 triumph before a crowd of 60,942—the largest in Philadelphia baseball history. It was the third time the Phillies have been shut out this season, the first two coming at the hands of San Diego's 15-game winner Randy Jones.

"I pitched that no-hitter against the same name, not the same team," quipped Hooton after the game. "The Phillies are now a fine hitting team and I really can't explain my success against them."

"I just seem to have good stuff when I pitch against them. I challenge them and they challenge me."

"He had an outstanding fastball," explained batterymate Steve Yeager. "On his good days he keeps the ball low and stays ahead of the hitters. He's as good as anybody in the league."

The Dodgers backed Hooton with a 12-hit attack which included solo homers by Steve Garvey and Bill Russell in the first and second innings, respectively. Russell also singled home a run in the fourth inning and Bill Buckner, Garvey and Ron Cey singled in runs in the ninth.

Jim Lonborg, tagged for three runs and seven hits in six innings, suffered his fifth loss against 10 wins for the Phillies, who maintained their nine-game lead in the NL's Eastern Division.

In other NL games, Atlanta defeated Pittsburgh 8-6, Cincinnati walloped Montreal 11-2, Chicago shaded San Diego 1-0 and San Francisco downed St. Louis 6-4.

Braves 8, Pirates 6

Darrel Chaney's bases-filled triple climaxed a seven-run, eighth-inning rally which lifted Atlanta to its victory and prevented Pittsburgh from gaining ground on the Phillies. John Candelaria carried a 6-1 lead into the eighth and retired the first two batters in the inning before the Braves staged their flash rally. Willie Montanez and Cito Gaston also had key hits in the inning. Bill Robinson homered for the Pirates.

Reds 11, Expos 2

Joe Morgan knocked in five runs with a grand slam homer and a sacrifice fly and Doug Flynn added a two-run homer to Cincinnati's attack. Jack Billingham went the distance for his sixth win against six defeats. Pete Mackanin and Andre Thornton homered for Montreal.

Fidrych Named to Star Staff

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rookie sensation Mark Fidrych of the Tigers, whose boyish enthusiasm and emotional antics on the field have already made him a household word in Detroit, was one of nine pitchers chosen by Boston Manager Darrell Johnson today to pitch for the American League in the 47th All-Star game at Philadelphia next Tuesday night.

Johnson went against the usual practice of picking mostly starting pitchers by naming three relievers to the staff, thus bypassing Cy Young award winner Jim Palmer of Baltimore and Pat Dobson of Cleveland, both 10-game winners, as well as Gaylord Perry of Texas (9-5) and Wayne Garland of Baltimore (9-1 with 2.15 ERA).

Along with the 21-year-old Fidrych, who leads the league with a 1.86 earned run average and has posted a 9-1 record, Johnson selected starters Bill Travers (9-6) of Milwaukee, Luis Tiant (10-5) of Boston, Jim "Catfish" Tiant (10-7) of New York, Frank Tanana (10-5) of California and Rich Gossage (5-6) of Chicago along with relievers Dave LaRoche (0-2) of Cleveland, Sparky Lyle (5-4) of New York and Rollie Fingers (4-5) of Oakland.

Fidrych, Travers, Tanana and LaRoche will be making their first All-Star appearances. Hunter, on the other hand, was named for the eighth time; Fingers and Tiant for the third time and Gossage and Lyle for the second time.

The entire staff has a combined earned run average of 2.65 and the starters have posted a record of 52-28 with the relievers turning in 30 saves. Travers is second to Fidrych in earned run average with a 1.96 while Tanana is second in the league in strikeouts with 128.

Fidrych has been an amazing success story, having skyrocketed from non-roster status to All-Star performer in four months. The 6-foot-3 righthander earned himself a spot in the bullpen with a good showing in spring training and was given his first major league start on May 15 when he promptly fared a two-hitter to defeat the Cleveland Indians.

In his next start he lost 2-0 to Boston but allowed only six hits and became a permanent member of the starting rotation on May 31. During the month of June he fashioned a perfect 6-0 record with a 1.99 earned run average and never gave up more than three runs in a game. During that time he earned the nickname "Big Bird" because of his flakey behavior on the field.

A hypertensive youngster who talks to the baseball and openly cheers his teammates from the mound for good plays in the field, Fidrych gained national attention by stopping the Yankees on seven hits, 5-1, on ABC-TV's Game of the Week at Detroit on Monday, June 28. A crowd of 48,000 who turned out to watch his performance gave him a standing ovation at the end of the game and would not leave until he came out of the clubhouse to acknowledge the cheers.

The regular starting lineup for the American League will be released Thursday morning by the baseball commissioner's office and the AL reserves will be announced Friday afternoon.

Pitchers for the National League squad will be released Wednesday morning with the starting NL team released Thursday afternoon and the NL reserves named Friday morning.

Three Unbeatens in Mid-Hudson Soccer

KINGSTON—The first week of play in the Mid-Hudson Soccer League's Youth Division turned out very profitably for three teams that each won two games to grab the early advantage in their respective agegroups.

Yallum's 10-and-under team led the way with two shutout victories, defeating the Saugerties Flyers 7-0 and the Saugerties Yankee Boys 1-0. Goalkeepers Darryl Millman and David McMichael each received credit for a shutout and Keith Douglas scored four goals, Chris Kiegle two, and Guy Krastin and Greg Amato one each.

Kingston Chrysler Plymouth also won two games in the 16 under-16 division, ripping Kingston Sports Club 6-2 and topping Saugerties Dutchmen 3-1. Against the Kingston Sport Club C-P got scores from John Ossmer (two), Greg Grayson, Frank Spadafora, Mike Hoffay and Larry Dawner, with Ed Barnoski in the goal. Terry Malloy scored both goals for the Sports Club and Bob Miller and Ian Black shared netminding duties. Against the Dutchmen, C-P got goals from Ossmer, Lou Vendetti and Charles Sazone.

Dawkins' captured two victories in the under-18 division with a 4-3 come from behind win over West Penn and a 7-1 crushing of Kingston Brumen Motors. Emile Jordan scored a pair of goals in each game, Eric TenBroek added three, and four others scored one goal each. Malcolm Schick was the winning goalie in both games.

In the other games: under-12, Kingston Travel 2, Saugerties Bluestones 2 (tie); under-14, Port Ewen 9, Saugerties Oskar's Tapers 0; Rhinebeck Studio 10 Stars 9, Oskar's Tapers 0 and Saugerties Grenell's 5, Goodwill Travel 2; under-16, Potters 1, SAA Dutchmen 1 (tie).

Top performances for the week included Larry Freidman (three goals) and Steve Krastin (two) for Port Ewen AA; and twins John and Tom Decker scoring five goals between them for Studio 10 Stars.

The new pro shop at the Rondout Pool, Golf and Tennis Association was formally dedicated last weekend. The shop was designed by Percy Greene and built completely with volunteer labor. It replaces a building destroyed by a storm on March 21.

Marchbroda Predicts Another Title

BALTIMORE (UPI) — When the Baltimore Colts reported to preseason camp last year, prospects were dim. But this year coach Ted Marchbroda is predicting another division title for the team.

The Colts 1976 camp opens today with virtually the same team as last year.

Despite a 2-12 record in 1974, a rookie head coach and predictions of another hum season, the Colts surprised the experts by winning the American Football Conference's Eastern Division with a 10-4 record.

"I'd have to go along with picking us," Marchbroda said. "We won the division last year and we've got to be considered champions until somebody beats us out."

"I think the team is coming into camp with an even better attitude this year. We got a taste of success last year, but there's much more for us to accomplish."

Football Drills Begin Tonight
—KINGSTON—The second annual summer-long series of football conditioning drills conducted by Kingston High School coach Tony Badalato and his staff begins tonight at 7 p.m. at Dietz Stadium.

The drills, which will be held behind the bleachers at Dietz, are open to anyone between the ages of 10 and 18 interested in conditioning although the program is aimed at the current and future football prospect. The drills will continue each Tuesday and Thursday throughout the summer.

Several of Badalato's former Kingston High School players will be among the program's guest coaches.

spots are filled with incumbents, except the fullback position, which will be contested by Kim Jones and Roosevelt Leaks.

The vanguard of 29 rookies and 18 veteran Colts arriving at the Goucher College camp will have only three days to prepare for Saturday's "Colt Nite" game in nearby Annapolis against Philadelphia's rookies and second-year players.

The rest of the squad will report after the Philadelphia game.

Tackle Ken Novak and linebacker Ed Simonini—both working out with the College All-Star team for the July 23 clash with the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers — are the only rookies not expected to be in camp.

Marchbroda will be concentrating on building the defense this year. Last year's team surrendered 269 points, which Marchbroda said is "way too high for a winning team."

Hero Who Swam Against the Current

By Ira Berkow

MONTREAL — The sunlight coming through the hotel window seemed to strike too harshly on Mark Spitz's tanned face, smooth except for the trace of boy-like blemishes on his right cheek and the black mustache that allows him at age 26 to look older than a teenager.

He was in Montreal in preparation for the 1976 Olympics in which he will be a color commentator for swimming for ABC television.

Spitz sat now in a green chair and wore a blue-and-gold-striped rubber jersey and blue jeans. His bare feet were propped up on a footstool. His toes appear more bulbous than most, his feet and ankles are thick, too.

He is about 5 feet 9 inches tall and his legs are not particularly long but he has the unusual ability to flex his lower legs slightly forward at the knees, permitting him to kick six to 12 inches deeper in the water than his swimming opponents. It was an advantage that helped him at the 1972 Munich Olympic Games win an unprecedented seven gold medals.

His triumphs — before the marvel of a world-wide television audience — made him nearly instantly one of the most famous people on the face of the earth.

On the morning following his seventh gold-medal victory Spitz was escorted to a press conference to discuss, he thought, his swimming. When he got there, he found "pandemonium." He learned for the first time that terrorists had invaded the quarters of Israeli Olympians.

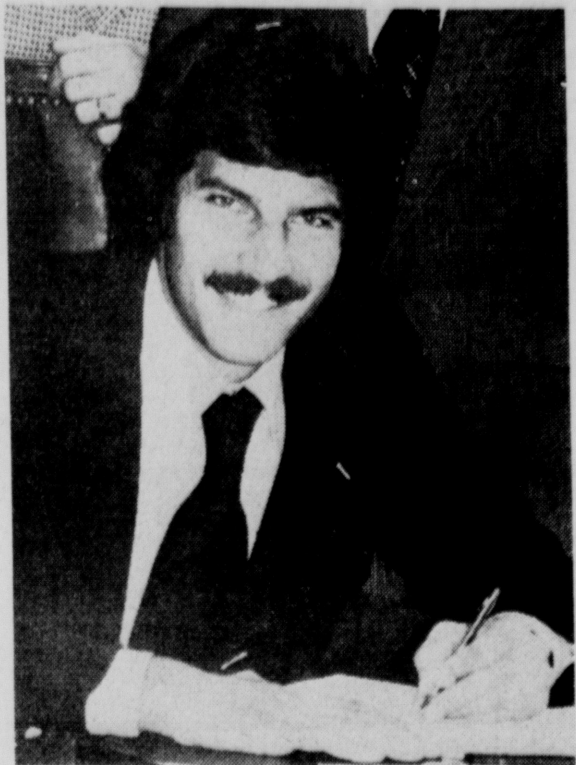

"I was hit with a barrage of questions about it," said Spitz. "I didn't know what to say. I was shocked, stunned, you name it. The press wanted my words because, first, I was Jewish, and second they thought I was some kind of spokesman for the athletes."

"My swimming coaches were there. They kept saying to the press, 'That's an unfair question. Mark's no authority,' and so on and so on."

"Some people thought I was hushed up. I wasn't hushed up. And I wasn't hard-hearted. I didn't know what to say, except that I thought it was a terrible, terrible thing. Then I was taken out of there and returned to my room."

"Nine secret service men were waiting for me there."

"This has never been told before, but I was asked to leave Munich. The International Olympic Committee, The German Munich police and the United States State Department all asked me to leave. They thought it was dangerous for me to stay. I was told to pack my things immediately.

"Well, the television was on and, for the first time, I saw one of those white-hooded guys on the balcony. The newscasters were told to say I was on a boat to the United States, while I sat and watched in my room in Munich. Frankly, I was scared to hell. I was taken to England, and then to the United States."

"What was I to do? What was I to say? But I am certain of one thing. It was the beginning of the end for me."

Mark blinked several times as the sun hit him. But it wasn't the sun that made him blink. It is a nervous habit, as his slight stammer when beginning some sentences.

"I had wanted so much to bask in my wins," he continued. "I had worked my tail off for 14 years for this moment. I had set a goal four years ago to win at least one individual gold medal, after I won only a individual silver one in Mexico City in the '68 Olympics."

"Oh, man. I wanted to walk to the track, walk around the Olympic Village, and have people come over to me, congratulate me — I felt like a cat who wants to lick the milk all over my chops. And then the tragedy struck."

"I prepared myself carefully for the four years leading up to 1972. There was never any way I could have prepared myself for what happened in the next four years."

"There was nothing left for me to do in athletics. I mean, should I strive for eight gold medals in '76? That was ludicrous. I actually nailed myself to the wall as a swimming competitor."

"When I returned home, I was treated as something special. I had tremendous opportunities to make a lot of money. Well, I know that athletes have taken advantage of this — Joe Namath cut off his mustache on TV for $10,000, for example. Swimmers never had such a chance, though. Now I did. I endorsed products, I was asked to do TV variety shows, got book offers, business deals — well, I got an agent, and I tried to get the best of it."

"I did fine financially, but in the process I seemed to anger a lot of people. People said I was a terrible actor. Well, what did they expect, without any training — Charleton Heston? They thought I was a money-grubber. What's wrong with making a dollar?"

"But my biggest mistake was that I became practically a recluse after the Olympics. I didn't know how to handle all this criticism. I didn't know how to handle the press."

"I'd been swimming since I was 10 — when I set my first world record — but I never until now spent much time talking about myself to the press. Every interview seemed to be like I was on a psychiatrist's couch. I began to listen to myself talk. And I hated it. It all seemed so meaningless. Over and over again, what I thought, what I felt — I became sick of myself. I never knew how far down someone could drop, especially after being up so high."

Apparently, Spitz had never been challenged like this, where he was expected to explain views, theories, opinions on matters from politics to advertising integrity that he had rarely ever considered before. He had always been told how to train, when to go to bed, what to eat. Now, he was in a new and frightening and, worst of all, a seemingly alien environment.

"It took a few years to realize that, gee whiz, what do I care if I don't meet the expectations of people I don't even know. Maybe I began to grow up. I began to realize that not all interviewers hated me before they talked to me. I stopped always trying to defend myself. I opened up a little. I began to be happier with myself."

"I began to become more accessible. Then one late afternoon a few months ago I was on a radio talk show in Miami. A woman called and really ripped into me. It was unbelievable. She said I was a rotten Jew, a rotten American, a rotten representative of the Olympics because she said I had fled Munich."

"The engineers finally shut her off. The host on the show began to apologize profusely to me. I hadn't said a word. Then a call came in from a man who said he had just driven off the road to telephone. He said, 'I want you to know how much I disagreed with that woman. What did she expect you to do, grab a bayonet and single-handedly fight the Arabs?'"

"Then another call supporting me. And another. Pretty soon the place was lighting up like a battlefield with people coming to my defense. I felt like crying. It was fantastic. It was the most remarkable thing that ever happened to me in my life."

Dantley Showed Russians

NEW YORK — Adrian Dantley, who may have made the United States Olympic basketball team after the Russian national team beat Notre Dame in Madison Square Garden last winter, is a possible starter for the U.S. team in its game against an NBA all-star contingent at Kutsher's Country Club in Monticello Thursday at 9 p.m.

Russian coach Vladimir Kondrashin said Dantley was "too physical," after the bulky forward scored 24 points against the Soviets in the Garden.

Critical observers feel that anybody who can make that kind of impression on the Russians has the ability to be a member of the United States squad.

Since international rules allow more body contact than our regulations, the U.S. coaching staff feels Dantley is built for this type of game. He is a strong, muscular 210 pounder who loves the contact part of the so-called non-contact sport.

Dantley was so physical while he attended DeMatha High School in Hyattsville, Maryland, a highly regarded basketball institution, he was permitted to play tight end on the football team during his sophomore year.

It was only the fact that his mother insisted that he stick with basketball that forced Dantley to drop off the grid squad. Despite the fact that he didn't play football the last two years in high school he received a total of 25 major football scholarship offers but accepted Notre Dame's basketball bid.

Dantley seriously considered being included on the NBA hardship draft list but withdrew at the last moment at the request of his mother a year ago. This year he has only four courses to take and will graduate in the summer. Dantley was drafted by the Buffalo Braves in first round.

Tickets for the NBA-Olympic team game are priced at $7 and are available at Kutsher's Country Club.

Falcons Win

MERIDIAN, Conn. (UPI) — The Connecticut Falcons of the International Women's Professional Softball Association squeaked out a 4-3 win over the Chicago Ravens Monday.

1,111 Field Goals

Comforted by his wife, Elizabeth, right, his right foot attended to by Dr. Gilbert Kucera, Gordon Tovani rests after kicking 1,111 field goals barefooted, claiming a new world's record. Tovani, 50, had hoped to kick 1,776 for the Bicentennial celebration, but the Dorsaflex muscle in his ankle gave out. He surpassed his old record of 635 consecutive bare-toed kicks and in this endeavour succeeded with 88 percent of his total kicks from 20 yards out.

Women Players May Form An Alternative to Wimbledon

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Women tennis players may form an alternate tournament next year if women don't receive the same prize money as men at Wimbledon, according to Wimbledon tennis champion Chris Evert.

Women players at Wimbledon, except the two players from the Soviet Union, signed a proposal this year to boycott the next tournament unless they get parity with men.

"I think most of the women will stick together," Evert said in a telephone interview Monday from Cleveland.

Evert and the Phoenix Racquets travel to Pittsburgh Thursday to play the Triangles and Evonne Goolagong, whom she defeated in the finals at Wimbledon.

Evert and Goolagong each have lost only one singles match this year in World Team Tennis. Evert has shut out seven opponents.

"I think WTT is more exciting," Evert said. "There is pressure on you every point." Playing WTT, she said, helped her win Wimbledon.

"The Phoenix team is very close," she said.

"We give each other a lot of support." Evert hadn't had a chance to celebrate her Wimbledon victory because "it's hard to celebrate at the Wimbledon Ball with all those British people."

Nastase Returns to WTT Team

HONOLULU (UPI) — Ilie Nastase, loser to Bjorn Borg in the Wimbledon tournament, the league and the team threatened him with a $4 million suit for breach of contract but dropped the idea because of his pledge to return and take a $70,000 reduction in his $125,000 annual salary.

But Nastase's legal woes were not over here. A $65,000 suit against him remained on the docket. A Kona lawyer filed the action, saying Nastase struck him with a tennis ball during the World Championship Challenge Cup series earlier in the year.

Ali Had a Surprise for His Visitor

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Ken Norton, the world's No. 2 ranked heavy-weight boxing contender, felt sorry when he heard the news that Muhammad Ali was in the hospital with what sounded like serious leg ailments that could affect their championship bout this fall.

So, he came calling at St. John's Sunday afternoon, bearing flowers and a $10 stuffed teddy bear as a peace offering to the ailing champ. A similar visit had taken place once before, in San Diego in 1973, after Norton had defeated the then-uncrowned Ali by breaking his jaw.

Norton didn't expect what he got Sunday.

Since Ali was admitted to the hospital Thursday, suffering from "extreme muscle damage and anemia" along with blood clots in his knees, Ali had refused visits from reporters and photographers, seeing only carefully screened friends.

The same held Sunday, when the press was told they would have to wait in the lobby while Norton went up to the fifth floor to visit Ali.

"Ali's changed his mind, you can all go up now," the hospital's public relations director suddenly told the gathering of newsmen. "Ali will see you, but he'll be in a wheelchair."

Newsmen were told to set up shop in the Solarium where they would soon be joined by the champ after he finished lunch.

Ali entered the room on his own two feet, without the wheel chair, dressed in a red hospital robe and wearing heavy white socks on his bruised legs.

"I feel real good," Ali told reporters. "My blood clots have been dissolved by medication and a couple of busted blood vessels and veins have started to mend. I still have to stay off the leg for a while, though."

A few more medical facts followed, along with his immediate plans to accompany actor Marlon Brando on a flight Monday morning to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, to appear at the trial of two members of the American Indian Movement.

Ali was released from the hospital late Sunday and spent the night at a private residence.

His legs permitting, Ali then will fly to Istanbul, Turkey, July 11 to accept a 500-acre land gift from that country's government along with a palace overlooking the Mediterranean.

It wasn't long before the conversation turned to the Sept. 25 title bout at Yankee Stadium and Ali's belief that his injuries would not cause a postponement.

"I don't start training for Norton until the first of next month," Ali said. "And this thing (pointing to his legs) should be well in four or five more days. You mean we're going to have 20 some days and things still aren't well? Then we're in trouble."

"I'm almost healed now. Give me two more weeks and I'll be doing road work again."

The champ, looking healthy and in good spirits despite his hidden ailments, then fixed his eyes trance-like and, in a monotone voice, took up the chant:

"I want Norton. I got to get Norton. I will stop Norton. I stopped Joe Frazier. I stopped George Foreman. I'll stop Norton."

Ali then rose to his feet and you could almost guess what was coming next.

"You're a healthy man, let me see you throw a punch," Ali clowned, trying to entice Norton into a mock sparring session. "Be your own man, take off your ring. C'mon, I ain't gonna see you no more. It's good to get the feeling, man."

Ali's mood was more serious, however, at the beginning of the interview.

He spoke of his exhibition martial arts bout in Tokyo June 24 in which Japanese wrestler Antonio Inoki inflicted a steady pounding of Ali's legs with a scissor kick.

"I found out I lost three pints of blood during the fight," Ali said. "And I haven't told you this before, but I collapsed getting off the elevator going to the hotel after the fight because I lost so much blood."

"The doctors told me if I hadn't come here that the blood clots could have run up — like something (former President Richard) Nixon had — and could have caused death."

Will the leg injuries affect his career?

"It will if I don't heal properly. The doctor said I'll always have a sore spot. I'll always have something wrong with it (left leg)."

"But still if you re-show that fight and watch all the kicking and damage to my leg, Muhammad Ali was still dancing in round 15 with three pints of blood out of him and his blood vessels burst, which shows you how really blessed I've been to have a lot of power."

Palmer Lashes Out at Johnson

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Baltimore Orioles, incensed that two of their pitchers were bypassed by Darrell Johnson for the American League All-Star pitching staff, reacted bitterly, claiming the Red Sox manager struck out in his choices.

Cy Young Award winner Jim Palmer, a perennial pick who was bypassed by Johnson for the American League All-Star pitching staff, lashed out at Johnson Monday night.

"Johnson proved what kind of manager he was in the World Series last year by the way he handled his pitchers in the ninth inning of the seventh game," Palmer said. "He's an idiot, and maybe this is why the American League seldom wins an All-Star game."

Palmer, who takes a 10-7 record against the A's here tonight, said apparently Johnson chose several of his pitchers because "they're the only guys from their teams he could think of putting on the All-Star squad. I'm talking about Rich Gossage of Chicago and Dave LaRoche of Cleveland. I can understand those picks, I guess, but I don't see how he can ignore a guy like Gaylord Perry of Texas."

Teammate Wayne Garland, also passed up despite a 9-1 record, said, "I would have liked to have made the All-Star team. It would have been a great thrill but that's the way baseball is. I'm surprised I didn't make it, though, because I threw a two-hit shutout against the Red Sox and I figured maybe Johnson was impressed with that."

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver said he thought Palmer deserved to be picked on the basis of his record.

"He is after all a two-time Cy Young Award winner and a man who has pitched nine straight scoreless innings against the National League," Weaver said. "He's the kind of pitcher you want on your staff for an All-Star game. His overall record in baseball should be taken into consideration and he's got as many wins as anybody else in the league."

Bob Lemon and Robin Roberts, a pair of Hall of Fame pitchers who will be enshrined at Cooperstown, N.Y., next month, were selected Monday as honorary captains for the 47th All-Star game on July 13 in Philadelphia.

Lemon, a New York Yankee pitching coach, won 207 games during 13 years with the Cleveland Indians, 1946 through 1958. He is one of four American League pitchers to win 20 games seven or more seasons.

Roberts was a 20-game winner six times as he posted 286 major league victories, most of them with the Philadelphia Phillies. Roberts also pitched for Baltimore, Houston and the Chicago Cubs in a career that stretched from 1948 through 1968.

This is the second year in which honorary captains were appointed for the games. Stan Musial, former St. Louis Cardinal great, and ex-Yankee Mickey Mantle were nominated in 1975.

Trap Shoot At Saugerties

SAUGERTIES — Some 200 sharpshooters are expected to turn out Sunday for the 3rd Annual Kendall Trophy Trap Shoot at the Saugerties Fish and Game Club.

Seven classes of trapshooting will be included in the day's events. Entry fee is $8.00, and a donation from the proceeds will be made to Gateway Industries, a charitable organization devoted to the assistance of the handicapped. Registration will end at 1:30 p.m.

The competition will be governed by the rules of the American Trapshooting Association. Ulster County Federation and ATA card averages will be used. Each contestant will fire 100 rounds from the 16 yard distance behind the trap.

Practice rounds begin at 9 a.m. Competition begins at 10:30 a.m.

A Kendall Trophy and a case of Kendall Superb Motor Oil will be given to the winner in each class. The shoot will be sponsored by A.L. Zangrillo and Jim Mack of Royal Tire Service, a distributor of Kendall Refining Company products.

Armbror Ranger Cops Tarport Effrat Pace

MEADOW LANDS, Pa. (UPI) — Armbror Ranger, last year's 2-year-old champion, Monday won the $23,033 Tarport Effrat Pace at the Meadows in a track record-tying time of 1:57.4.

Richmond, driven by Ross Hayter, pushed Armbror Ranger most of the trip and it was not until the field turned into the stretch that Joe O'Brien was able to put daylight between his horse and his pursuers.

Armbror Ranger finished with a 5-1/4 length margin. Earth Lite, handled by Hal Hetzler, finished third, another six lengths back.

Boxers Earn Berths

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — Three U.S. boxers punched their way Monday to berths on the Olympic team in hard fought contests at the University of Vermont.

The Hotter It Gets in Britain, The Lower Odds Get on Jack

SOUTHPORT, England (UPI) — The hotter it gets in Britain, the lower the odds get for Jack Nicklaus to win his third British Open golf championship.

The more his fellow golfers complained of the record setting heat wave that was baking the Royal Birkdale course, the more Jack Nicklaus enjoyed it. He has been listed as a 5-1 favorite to win the 105th British Open Golf Championship.

"I like a fast bouncy course," said the 36-year-old Golden Bear, basking in the sunshine as he warmed up for his bid to land the coveted crown for the third time after successes in 1966 and 1971.

"Those who have had enough experience of playing several times in the Open and have had a certain amount of success are much better off on a fast course than a slow one," he added.

Nicklaus, whose victories in last year's U.S. Masters and PGA Championships brought his major tournament wins to a record 16, has missed out on the big ones this year and hopes to put that right at the British Open despite a poor track record on Royal Birkdale's seaside links.

"I have not yet played Birkdale well before and it's about time I did," he said.

Nicklaus played in a foursome Monday with major rivals Tom Weiskopf, Hubie Green and Hale Irwin and then stayed on for some extra practice holes while his colleagues headed back to the clubhouse. Ever a perfectionist, Nicklaus can't get enough practice and still hopes to improve on his dazzling five-under-par 67 weekend practice round.

Players have found the course playing long after two weeks of continual sunshine and are having to change their targets. Arnold Palmer, who set the British Open aggregate low-scoring record of 276 in 1962, says his mark will fall this week if the winds stay away—a feeling shared by most of the top liners in the 150-plus field.

"I am positive the record will go if the weather remains," said three-time winner Gary Player.

Floyd, who has played three practice rounds, has found no difficulty in reaching the greens Monday, commenting,

"I did not drive more than four times—I used a one iron the rest of the time."

The less Johnny Miller sees of a course, the better he likes it, Miller, the 8-1 second favorite, delayed his arrival until Monday, three days after Nicklaus.

"If I arrive early and I am playing well, then I get bored," said Miller, who was tied for third last year and finished second in 1973. "It's just as well to show up the night before. I have broken course records the first time around a course because I have a good eye. I am better off playing blind man's bluff. If I don't know where the trouble is I swing better. It is not necessary to know every blade of grass. Sometimes you can get too much respect for a course. A good caddy and two rounds is enough for me."

Miller said he was still annoyed at missing out on last year's Open, which was won by Tom Watson in a play-off against Australian Jack Newton.

"I overplayed my hand in the last round last year," said Miller. "If I just aimed at par I would have been a winner. I was too greedy."

"I have been knocking on the door and I think I have paid my dues. So if I win now, then no one will complain."

Old Dutch Museum Room Open for Tours

VISITORS ON OPENING DAY at the Old Dutch Church museum room were at left, Alderman Peter Mancuso, representing the City of Kingston, and at right, James Gold, administrator of the Senate House Museum Site. Henry Millonig (c) is chairman of the museum room committee. (Freeman photos by Haines)

KINGSTON—A milestone in three years of preparation and meetings was reached July 1 when the Old Dutch Church American Bicentennial Committee opened the church museum room where many memento s of the 317-year history of the Kingston church will be kept.

The museum room was one of the major projects of the committee to provide suitable surroundings for display of items such as old Bibles, bulletins, pictures and descriptions of events over the years. It will be open for viewing only on Saturday afternoons from 2 to 4 o'clock in conjunction with the tours of the church.

Edwin Ford, Old Dutch Bicentennial Committee chairman, appointed Henry Millonig as general chairman for the project in April 1974. He chose from the congregation for his committee: Harry Halverson, Dr. Elbert H. Loughran, Harry Elmendorf, Robert Haines and E. Robert Johnson to work with him on the project design, construction and finance. Fred J. Johnston assisted as consultant. Additional people were added as needs developed including E. Ronald Rifenburg, John Haulenbeck, George Krom, Minford Overfield who is custodian of the archives at the church; Irvin H. Etchells, Mrs. William Hilton, Mrs. Morton D. Alling III and Jan Bell.

WINE PITCHERS AND BEAKERS used in the Communion Service at Old Dutch Church are displayed in a Dutch Kaas. Fred J. Johnston of the congregation is consultant on the museum room committee. Original beakers used in the early church are now on display at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York.

AN OLD CHEST for church records admired by Mrs. Morton Alling III, member of the museum room committee, and her daughter, Darlene who was celebrating her second birthday on opening day.

Awarded Creative Writing Fellowship

NEW PALTZ—Audrey Borenstein, visiting assistant professor of sociology at the State University College at New Paltz, has been awarded a $6,000 creative writing fellowship by the National Endowment for the Arts.

Dr. Borenstein was one of 165 writers chosen from 2,436 applicants from throughout the country. Her grant will support her in writing a collection of fiction on the deep south in the early 1960's.

The author of novels, short stories, essays, prose poems and poetry, Dr. Borenstein's work has been published in such magazines as the University Review, The North American Review, Satire Newsletter and Ascent. She is presently working on a collection of essays on the social sciences and literature. The first of these is published in the current issue of Antioch Review. Upon completion of these essays, she will turn to writing the works on the south.

Dr. Borenstein, a native of Chicago, is a graduate of the University of Illinois. The wife of Walter Borenstein, chairman of the Spanish department at New Paltz, Dr. Borenstein has taught part-time at Louisiana State University and Cornell.

The National Endowment for the Arts is an independent agency of the federal government created in 1965 to encourage and assist the nation's cultural resources.

MRS. THOMAS J. KELLY
(Kathleen Mary Lane)
(Lakeside Studio)

Lane-Kelly

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Van Vliet of Shokan announce the marriage of their daughter, Kathleen Mary Lane, to Thomas J. Kelly, son of Mrs. Dorothy Kelly, 119 Wrentham St., and the late Thomas J. Kelly.

The ceremony was performed at St. Mary's Church, Kingston, with the Rev. James Derrenbacher officiating. Robert Moore was organist. Soloist was Mrs. Virginia Mancuso.

Francis Van Vliet gave the bride in marriage. She wore a gown of French silk jersey fashioned with an Empire styled bodice featuring a modified scoop neckline, long tapered sleeves and softly gathered demi-bell jersey skirt. Venice lace hand-clipped motifs accented the gown.

Mrs. Martin Stoutenburg of Kingston was matron of honor. Bridal attendants were Mrs. James Strubel, sister of the bride and Miss Grace Kelly, sister of the bridegroom, both of Kingston. Heidi Cable, niece of the bridegroom, of Saugerties, was flower girl. Her gown was made by Mrs. Jean Van Vliet of Kingston.

Fredrick Schiskie, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were John Kelly, brother of the bridegroom of Kingston and Robert Clausi, cousin of the bridegroom, Saugerties.

A wedding reception was given at the Capri 400.

The bride was graduated in 1972 from Onteora Central High School and is employed in the tax map department of the Ulster County Real Property Tax Service Agency. Her husband was graduated in 1969 from Kingston High School, attended Ulster County Community College and is employed at Utility Platers Inc.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly will make their home in Kingston

25th Anniversaries Observed Recently

KINGSTON—Mr. and Mrs. E. Robert Johnson, 5 Jeffrey Court, Kings Village, Saugerties, observed their 25th wedding anniversary recently by renewing their marriage vows at Old Dutch Church. The vows were said before the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, pastor emeritus of Old Dutch and their daughter, Betsy, who participated in the ceremony.

Afterward a dinner party in their honor was given by close friends at the Colonade Restaurant. Recently friends from the area, from Glens Falls and Cohasset, Mass., honored Mr. and Mrs. Johnson at an anniversary party at the Holiday Inn.

Johnson is the executive director of the Hudson Valley American Lung Association.

KINGSTON—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brocco of 98 Tubby St. were guests of honor at a 25th wedding party given at the Glasco Fire Hall. Hosting the party were their daughter, Mrs. John (Marlene) Gumaer and three sons, Richard, Ronald and Thomas Brocco.

Mr. and Mrs. Brocco were married June 10, 1951 at St. Mary's Church, Kingston, with the Rev. Msgr. Edward I. Farrelly, officiating. In the wedding party were Miss Theresa Brocco, maid of honor; Cosmo Brocco, best man; Mrs. Kathy Brocco, Michael Cafaldo, James and Betty Parkes.

Mrs. Brocco is employed by the Kingston City Schools Consolidated and her husband is employed at IBM, Kingston.

(Steven's Photography)

Webster-Schallenkamp Vows Are Exchanged

The wedding of Cheryl Ann Webster of Springfield, Mass., and Steven Allen Schallenkamp, also of Springfield, took place at the First Baptist Church, West Springfield, Mass.

The bride is the daughter of Donald Webster of West Springfield and Mrs. Frank Van Dyke of Springfield, Mass. Her husband is the stepson and son, respectively, of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Ellsworth of 43 Clinton Ave., Kingston. He also is the son of the late John Schallenkamp.

The Rev. Robert E. Miller officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Mr. Webster gave his daughter in marriage. She chose a gown of organza styled with Victorian neckline and chapel length train. It was enhanced with Chantilly lace accented with seed pearls.

Nancy Robertson, cousin of the bride, of West Springfield, Mass., was honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Linda Evans of West Springfield, Patti Webster, Springfield and Lori Webster of Agawam, Mass. The attendants' gowns were made by the bride's grandmother.

Gary Jenkins of New Haven, Conn., was best man. Ushers were Jeff Brooks, West Springfield, Mass.; Daniel Webster, brother of the bride, Springfield, Mass., and Scott Schallenkamp, brother of the bridegroom, of Kingston.

A wedding reception was given at The Oaks Inn, Springfield, Mass.

Mrs. Schallenkamp was graduated from West Springfield High School in 1973 and Springfield Technical Community College in 1976. She is employed by Baystate Medical Center at Springfield. Her husband was graduated from Kingston High School in 1972 and is a senior at the University of Massachusetts where he is majoring in history with a concentration in secondary education. He is employed by Baystate Medical Center, Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Schallenkamp will make their home in Springfield following a wedding trip to Montreal and Quebec, Canada.

MARY C. HEFFERNAN J. A. FLANDREAU

Betrothals Announced

Mr. and Mrs. William Heffernan of Cork, Ireland, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Claire, to Capt. William W. Buddenhagen of 9 Harrison St., Kingston.

Miss Heffernan completed the dental surgery assistant's course at the Cork Dental Hospital in June 1972 and is employed by University College, Cork, as a dental recorder which involves participation in the university's dental research programs. Miss Heffernan resides with her family in Cork, Ireland.

Capt. Buddenhagen is an alumnus of Kingston High School and a 1970 graduate of Rutgers University where he received a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Business Administration. After graduation he began active duty in the U. S. Air Force, entering pilot training. For the past six years, Capt. Buddenhagen has been serving as a pilot in the Strategic Air Command in various assignments throughout the U. S., Europe and Southeast Asia. He is assigned to Pease Air Force Base in New Hampshire.

The couple is planning a September wedding in Ireland. They will reside in Hampton, N. H., upon their return.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. William Flandreau of RFD Tivoli of the engagement of their daughter, Josephine Anne, to Walter W. Middaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Middaugh of West Chester Street, Kingston.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Red Hook High School and attended Dutchess County BOCES for nursing. She is employed on the staff of Kingston Hospital.

Her fiancé attended Kingston High School and was graduated from U.S. Armed Forces Institute. He served with the U.S. Marine Corps in Vietnam. He is employed at Duplex Products in Kingston as a cameraman.

The wedding is planned for October 30.

DEAR ABBY

Needed Operation, Didn't Have It; Never Felt Better

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote to say that her husband had gone to a doctor six years ago and had a complete physical examination. The doctor told him he needed an operation. She said her husband never had the operation and never went back, and he's never felt better in his life.

This reminds me of the following:

Doctor to Patient: "You're in bad shape. You should have an operation."

Patient: "How much will it cost?"

Doc: "Eight thousand dollars."

Patient: "Gee, Doc, you know I don't have that kind of money."

Doc: "I'll make it easy for you. Give me $3,000 down and pay me $100 a month until the bill is paid."

Patient: "That's just like buying a new car."

Doc: "I am."—NO DOPE IN N.J.

DEAR ABBY: I have put off writing to you long enough. I have fallen out of love with my husband. We've been married for eight years, we have two beautiful children and a nice home. I don't have to work, I have a car of my own, and from all outside appearances I have it made.

My husband is a good father, is generous and is easy to live with and I know he loves me, but I am sick to death of faking it in the bedroom. I just don't feel a thing for him romantically. I respect him and I really like him, but he's more like a big brother than a husband.

I haven't told him how I feel because I just hate to hurt him. He's such a decent guy. He really deserves better than a wife who can't return his love. We talk about everything but this. Please help me.—TIED OF ACTING.

DEAR TIED: Tell your husband that you and he should see a marriage counselor. Then do it. If you can't work through the problems that have made you more of a "sister" than a loving wife, level with him. You're right. He deserves better. And there's much more to marriage than you're getting.

DEAR ABBY: I have something to say to HISTORY BUFF who claims that a double-wedding ring ceremony has no meaning. According to him, his old German Bible (1888) says the wedding ring signifies that a woman is no longer a free and independent person, but she's in bondage to her husband. She owes him obedience as a subject owes obedience to his master.

Well, in MY book, a double-ring ceremony joins a man and woman together in holy matrimony as equals.

So, HISTORY BUFF, stick it in your ear and blow it through your nose. For your information, I am only 12, and I plan to have a double-ring ceremony whether you like it or not!—A STRONG VIEW AT 12.

DEAR STRONG VIEW: My guess is you're speaking for the second generation of women's libbers, right?

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

English Instructor at MJM Named Teacher of Year

KINGSTON—Teacher of the Year at Myron J. Michael Junior High School is Wendell A. Scherer, ninth grade English instructor. But this is not the first time, but the second time in six years that the students have voted him this honor.

Scherer, who resides at 40 West O'Reilly St., came to MJM just six years ago following graduation from Fordham University. A popular member of the faculty, he also advises the drama group at the school which during the past year has presented "Alice in Wonderland" and several holiday plays. He has also organized trips for students to attend plays in New York City.

The English teacher has just been elected president of the local Coach House Players and has appeared in their productions. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Scherer.

The Teacher of the Year Award, which is a tradition at MJM, was named this year by the Student Council in memory of David W. Brehse, an English teacher, who died last fall.

Mental Health Drive Continues

KINGSTON—Ulster County Association for Mental Health membership drive continues in an effort to increase its ranks and effectiveness in working for better mental health services. Mrs. Frieda H. Dingee of Kingston, treasurer of the association is pleased with the quick response of many people to the billing which was recently sent out. It is her hope that the remainder of the association members who have not yet replied will do so shortly.

The Association programs relating to local mental health education, promotion of good mental health throughout Ulster County and the information and referral service, depend in large measure on the voluntary support of the members.

Anyone interested in joining may contact the Association office at 27 East O'Reilly St. The office is open Tuesdays Wednesdays and Thursdays. It is a member agency of the United Way of Ulster County.

LIZ TAYLOR

tifully." Liz announces she's too tired to continue the trip. The last word is that Zahedi has arranged for her to stay in Iran an extra week for rest and relaxation. Perhaps she'll need it. Reportedly the two plan a rendezvous at Zahedi's chalet in the Swiss Alps.

DAY 7: Boarding the plane for home via London, honored guests collapse into their seats. Many are suffering from dysentery. A Dr. Walsh from Washington, said to be Jackie Onassis's favorite physician, is handing out hel pful little white pills.

Everyone is talking about the red tape snaring the Iranian way of life. There are phones in Tehran — but no phone books. To get a telephone number requires days of patient negotiating, generous payoffs and, in the end, heaven knows if you've gotten the right number.

Someone quips they tried to reach Liz Taylor in Tehran but the line is busy, because Liz is talking to Zahedi in Washington. Zahedi, incidentally, made daily calls to male friends on the trip to ask how things were going. He is said to like first-hand reports.

Auxiliary Installation

KINGSTON—Kingston Unit of American Legion Auxiliary No. 150 held its installation dinner recently at Holiday Inn. Officers installed were Mrs. Marge Keizer, president; Mrs. Jeanne Bittner, first vice president; Mrs. Eunice Scully, second vice president. Mrs. Norma Fox, secretary; Mrs. Thelma Van Aiken, treasurer; and Mrs. Molly Maurer, chaplain.

Mrs. Hilda Dais, third district chairman, was installing officers.

The Kingston unit will be represented at the state convention in Syracuse this July by Mrs. Norma Fox.

REGISTRATION for the Art's Community summer sessions in New Paltz are now in progress with the first session starting July 7. Courses in the visual and performing arts for young people four to 18 are being scheduled. A catalog of information may be obtained from New Paltz Chamber of Commerce. Bonnie MacLeod, instructor, is shown interacting with young people.

Interior Design Courses Scheduled

MILLBROOK—This summer Bennett College is offering a three credit course in Interior Design. The course will include lectures by professionals in the Dutchess County and neighboring Connecticut areas

The first speaker, John Kent Jackson, A.S.I.D., will present his views on "The Need for Professionalism" with specific reference to the interior design profession. Born and educated in England, Jackson received his training in interior design at the Ryerson Institute in Canada. For many years he was on the design staff at B. Altman & Co. in New York City. After operating his own business there from 1963 to 1973, he moved to Poughkeepsie to open a business there. Jackson is an active member of the American Institute of Interior Designers and has given a great many lectures on design related topics.

The lecture at Bennett will be given July 8 at 10 a.m. and is free of charge.

Dried-up mud bottom of reservoir in England (UPI)

Europe's Worst Drought ...There's No End to It

LONDON (UPI) — "The outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday, I'm very much afraid, is more of the same — very hot and dry. There seems to be no end to it."

British weather forecasters normally couch their reports in more formal terms. But after more than two weeks of heat and Europe's worst drought in generations, even stalwart civil servants were beginning to wilt.

Conditions on the continent today were much the same.

Thunderstorms were predicted in Belgium, but the Belgian Farmers Union said the showers — if they came — would be too late for most crops.

Even if it started raining regularly, it would take several months to rebuild Belgium's water reserves and years to regrow thousands of acres of forest and heath destroyed by fires.

Grass and woodland fires have been licking the land in parts of Britain for days. French officials said they would probably ban fireworks on Bastille Day, July 14, for the first time since the French Revolution in 1789 because of tinder-dry conditions.

Portugal cut electric power for regular periods because there was too little water to run the country's hydroelectric plants.

In Genoa, Italy, city officials banned the use of drinkable water for washing cars, watering gardens and "for every other use not strictly tied to civilian and industrial needs."

Poland has not suffered badly from the drought, but farmers said the heat will take its toll on the country's grain harvest.

The weather was wreaking havoc on German agriculture, too — but brewery stocks rose in value on the Frankfurt exchange.

An annual dog show had to cancel four of its events because the contestants refused to lie down in the heat. In East Germany rail workers changed their shift to nighttime hours to avoid baking in the sun.

There was no scarcity of water in Dutch homes, but Defense Minister Henk Vredeling ordered his troops to tap Holland's canals to irrigate farmlands.

In most suburbs of Salonica in northern Greece, water was available only in the evenings when residents were allowed to fill buckets and bathtubs for use the following day.

But the summer was just right for the tourist business in southern Greece. "Let's not forget we sell sunlight," said National Tourist Organization President George Daskalakis. "It is one of our main assets."

In 1768, Paul Revere placed this notice in the Boston Gazette

WHEREAS many persons are so unfortunate as to lose their ForeTeeth by accident, and otherways, to their great detriment, not only in Looks, but speaking both in Public and Private: This is to inform all such, that they may have them replaced with artificial Ones that looks as well as the Natural, & answers the End of Speaking to all Intents, by PAUL REVERE, Goldsmith, near the Head of Dr. Clarke's Wharf, Boston.

Revere was an ordinary citizen and a successful tradesman. In addition to his "dentistry" business, he manufactured gunpowder and cannon and fashioned fine gold and silver ware. His name still lives on as a symbol of quality workmanship. And his Midnight Ride lives on as a symbol of colonial patriotism.

Traveler Back Home

GREENVILLE, Ohio (UPI) — A Siamese cat named Fujii has returned to his home after inadvertently taking a 2,079-mile, two-week trip across the United States.

Fujii was reunited with his owner, Gene North, a 42-year-old sales engineer, last Saturday.

The cat's trip began when he climbed inside a plumber's truck.

"I had a plumber out to the house to fix the kitchen sink on June 19th," North said. The driver said he heard a squeal and a thump several blocks from North's home. He stopped and saw the cat running up the street.

North thought he had lost his pet, but then received a telephone call from Spokane, Wash.

"I thought someone was pulling a hell of a big joke at first," North said. "But they finally convinced me that my cat was in the state of Washington. You know, a couple of thousand miles is unbelievable. He never went 30 feet out of the yard before."

The cat, identified by an address tag around his neck, apparently had boarded a freight train and wound up in a cooled boxcar at the Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. plant near Spokane — half starved.

"I guess Union Pacific felt responsible since the cat wound up on one of their trains, so they picked up the entire tab of flying the cat back to me," North said.

North thought he had lost his pet, but then received a telephone call from Spokane, Wash.

"I thought someone was pulling a hell of a big joke at first," North said. "But they finally convinced me that my cat was in the state of Washington. You know, a couple of thousand miles is unbelievable. He never went 30 feet out of the yard before."

The cat, identified by an address tag around his neck, apparently had boarded a freight train and wound up in a cooled boxcar at the Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. plant near Spokane — half starved.

"I guess Union Pacific felt responsible since the cat wound up on one of their trains, so they picked up the entire tab of flying the cat back to me," North said.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, JULY 7

Your birthday today: Take bold initiative this year, whether it's original with you or an adaptation of others' methods. With much trial and error you'll eventually design your own approach. Perseverance and intuition are your most helpful qualities; cultivate them. Relationships undergo periods of change. Today's natives have a flexible creative streak.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Time and money are too easily frittered away. Avoid annoyance by staying busy and minding your own business. Don't bring the day's earlier moods into evening hours.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Systematic thought shows why your plans lack acceptance and what to do about it. Sidestep arguments; even minor bickering has serious after-effects.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Exercise caution with budget-changes and exceptions to the rule. Be wary of bargains. Give everybody a breather; announce no decisions yet.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): The minimum is enough as you clear up existing situations. Let others sort their affairs to suit themselves. Friends are remote; think nothing of it.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Extreme action is ill-advised; stop, look for a safe channel for nervous energy. Home events run contrary to business convenience. Choices are necessary.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Incoming information is incomplete; your informants know less than you think. Be sparing in your judgment of people who see less of the truth than you.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Bear up: Have faith in the future. Resist advertised shortcuts to perfection. Friends offer differing ideas, none suited to your needs.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): If you can spend part of this confusing day with a relaxing hobby, fine. Don't do spur-of-the-moment things. A soft answer is best as you weather a stormy phase.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Past momentum fades out, leaving projects more or less at a standstill. Have the good sense and patience to wait while others rationalize these circumstances.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Drift with the times: things work themselves out if you steadily pursue obvious necessities. Don't respond to people's abrupt tempers. Avoid loans.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): There's no point trying to keep up with those who have more energy or cash. Meditation is your good investment. Use any mechanical equipment with thoughtful care.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Keep a sense of humor and optimism through today's muddled crosscurrents. If you can postpone errands, by all means do so; if not, make them short, relevant.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Ph.D.

TO KISS?: (Q.) There is this guy Charles, my very close and dear friend, whom I LIKE (not love) a lot. The other day he asked me to kiss him and I said no, so he told me to think about it.

I did and I don't know what to say because there are two other problems. He has been going with this girl (whom he only likes for what he can get — he told me so). And, the biggest problem, I don't want him to think I'm a pushover whom he can get a kiss off any time he gets ready. I really would like to kiss him but I don't want him to think wrong of me. I'm 16 and he is too.

P.S. He and the girl are going to break up. I know because she said they were. —Careful in Calif.

(A.) It is wise to be careful about whom you kiss. A kiss is in order for two 16-year-olds when BOTH want to kiss. Both you and Charles seem to want to.

Do not be too concerned about a boy's past if he is honest with you and treats you with respect. I could say that so far Charles has filled both these qualifications.

SCARED: (Q.) Linda is very cute. One of her friends told me Linda thought I was cute. So I started saying "Hi" and talking to her. I like her very much and would like to go with her. She talks to me a lot and acts like she likes me.

But I am afraid that she will turn me down. Would it be best to get someone to ask her for me or to call and ask her? I would appreciate your help. —First Time in Maine.

(A.) Linda has given you every sign that she would be glad for you to ask her for a date. She, of course, might possibly say no, but that wouldn't be the end of the world.

Call her today and get better acquainted. If all goes well, call her again in a few days and ask her for a date.

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

the first top expert to lean the other way. He probably went a trifle too far, but his arguments with Culbertson and the real old timers did a lot to lead to the modern theory that if a hand is worth an opening bid in one seat, it is worth an opening bid in all seats.

Hal also thought of the Sims three bid to ask for aces. The idea was good; unfortunately the hand hardly ever came up. When it did, the results were likely to be very good.

Today's hand occurred in the 1930 Eastons. Hal and Willard Karn, his partner, were one of the few pairs to play at six hearts.

Others played seven hearts or six or seven spades with one pair actually playing seven notrump doubled and going down nine.

Even with the best modern methods it is very probable that most pairs in a match-point game would go astray with this monstrosity.

Bloodiest Day Yet in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Thousands of leftist and Palestinian troops attacked the Christian town of Chekka today to avenge the 15-day siege of a Palestinian refugee camp. Action on all fronts gave Lebanon the bloodiest fighting of the 15-month-old war and destroyed the latest Arab League peace efforts.

Casualties were estimated at more than 260 dead and 500 wounded — the worst one day total since April, 1975.

Fighting was reported at Chekka, at the Palestinian refugee camp of Tal Zaatar, in the Christian town of Zghorta, and along the 35-mile confrontation line in Beirut.

The leftist-Palestinian forces moved against Chekka, 10 miles south of the northern port of Tripoli, after the Christians launched another offensive to close a 400-yard gap in their circle around Tal Zaatar.

Heavy fighting around the camp in southeast Beirut blocked the second attempt by the Red Cross in two days to send a convoy into the camp to evacuate hundreds of wounded who have been without water and medical supplies for days.

Heeding leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt's call for a "popular war" to avenge the siege, the leftist-Palestinian force attacked Chekka and claimed the capture of four villages.

Rightists, however, said the attackers were beaten back during the night.

The reports of fighting in Chekka prompted Christians to walk out of a meeting between them and Palestinian and Syrian representatives called by League Secretary General Mahmoud Riad at Sofar southeast of Beirut.

The right-wing radio also said that in retaliation for the attack on Chekka, Christian forces stormed and captured the Koura district "capital" of Amion and raised the Lebanese flag on the town hall of the mainly Greek Orthodox town with strong leftist leanings.

The leftist radio said Amion came under heavy artillery shelling Monday night and that fierce fighting was continuing after leftist forces "foiled all attacks on the town."

Libyan mediator, Premier Abdel Salam Jalloud, returned to Beirut unexpectedly late Monday night to try to renew — without much hope of success — the Libyan peace initiative that collapsed last week with the Christian capture of the Jisr al Pasha camp and the siege on neighboring Tal Zaatar.

Despite 15 days of heavy fighting, the Christians have not managed to enter the inner perimeters of the 75-acre camp as they had claimed, although they have secured all of the surrounding residential and industrial area previously held by the Palestinians.

South Africa Recants

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South Africa today withdrew a rule that sparked the nation's bloodiest race riots this century — the compulsory use of Afrikaans as a medium of instruction in black schools.

Bantu (African) Affairs Minister Michael Botha said black schools could now choose Afrikaans, English or the pupils' mother tongue as the classroom language.

Dr. Manas Buthelezi of the Black Parents Association in Soweto, the segregated township near Johannesburg where rioting first flared June 16, said "We are very happy to hear about it, but at the same time it is a little belated."

"Small concessions are not a solution," said Mrs. Winnie Mandela, wife of Nelson Mandela, a black nationalist leader serving life imprisonment. "As long as there is a Bantu education (system) there will be unrest."

Rape, Robbery, Kidnap Going Before Top Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court will turn to the rest of the 71 capital punishment cases left on its docket before adjourning until next October.

The death sentence opinions handed down Friday dealt only with murder. The court said it was not ruling on whether death could be meted out for rape, robbery, kidnapping or other crime when no death results.

The 71 cases before the court bring up such matters. Death row inmates can also raise other issues, such as errors in picking a jury, which are critical in individual cases.

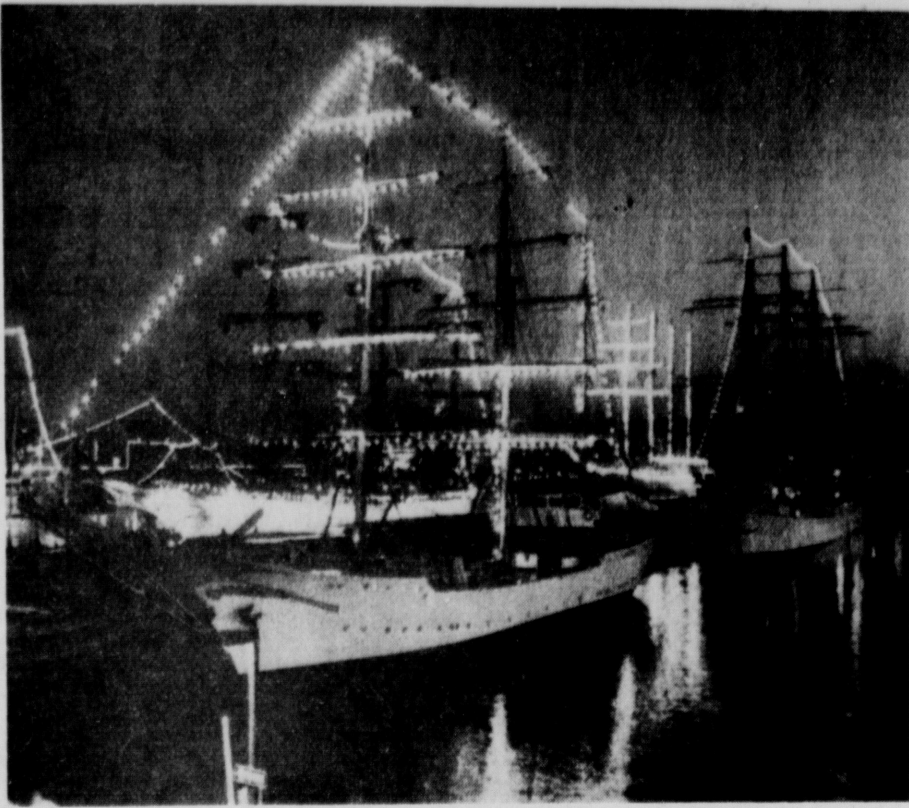

The justices could accept one or more appeal for consideration next fall.

After a week-long outpouring of major opinions, the justices have a handful left to render. They include important issues relating to evidence permitted at criminal trials.

In a case brought against Black Panther leader David L. Rice of Omaha, the court is faced with a challenge to a long-standing rule against admission of evidence seized by police under an invalid warrant. Nebraska asked the justices to permit use of this evidence if it is determined police acted in good faith.

A related question is whether persons convicted in state courts who had a chance to challenge evidence may do so again in a federal court.

OAU's Summit Talks Fizzle, New Crises Are Shaping Up

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius (UPI) — A four-day summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity ended today in disarray, failing to solve major continental problems and facing several new crises.

Delegates said it was one of the most disappointing and divisive meetings of heads of state in OAU history, attended by a record low number of seven leaders.

The summit approved more than 70 resolutions, but many of them sidestepped major problems or were watered-down versions of original drafts on such issues as South Africa.

The conference failed to heal long-standing and potentially dangerous differences between Ethiopia and Somalia over the future of French Somaliland and between rival factions of the Rhodesian African National Council.

It sidestepped the issue of Western Sahara, where Algerian-backed guerrillas have been waging a hit-and-run war against Morocco and Mauritania, which annexed the territory last year. The meeting referred the question to a special summit to be convened at a place and time to be announced later.

The Israeli raid into Uganda and an attempted coup in Sudan presented the 48-member organization with major new problems.

Although Kenya endorsed a resolution condemning Israel for the attack, Nairobi came under criticism from many member states for its apparent cooperation with Tel Aviv. Many delegates feared that despite public assurances from Uganda, the incident could provoke a major showdown in East Africa.

President Jaafar Numeiry of Sudan made a special trip to the closing session to accuse Libya of masterminding last week's "mad and senseless" attempt to topple him from power.

Libyan spokesman Ali Toureki denied Benghazi was involved and in turn accused Sudan of "collusion" with the United States both in Lebanon and against the Palestinian people.

The exchange sparked another crisis between the two Arab countries.

"The meeting started on a positive note but we have ended up with more problems than we began with," said a disappointed Kenyan delegate.

Among the resolutions the conference did adopt was a package of drafts on South Africa. Many were watered down, but nevertheless called for member states to "consider" boycotting the Olympic Games if New Zealand participates and the start of an "armed struggle" or guerrilla war against South Africa.

Jimmy's Rx Clearer for Veep

UPI

Jimmy Carter's criteria for a running mate are clearer now as the almost certain Democratic presidential candidate wades through his face-to-face meetings with men being considered for the job.

Carter spent the day Monday at his Plains, Ga., home with Maine Sen. Edmund Muskie and told reporters a final decision will not be made until next week, when the Democrats convene in New York City.

Muskie was the first of several possible vice presidential candidates Carter intends to meet before that time.

Carter, who traveled to a breakfast of Democratic governors assembled for the National Governors Conference in Hershey, Pa., today, told reporters he believes a good running mate should have:

- Personal compatibility.
- Leadership ability.
- A geopolitical balance to his own candidacy.

— A lack of "political contention" with Carter's programs.

"A constant consultation between the two leaders would be a very important element in a vice presidential relationship with me," the former Georgia governor said.

"I think, as Senator Muskie and I discussed this morning, it'd be hopefully an ever-expanding relationship without any fear of political contention or struggling for political authority."

While Carter looked ahead, President Ford and his campaign strategists continued to map plans for a challenge that is very real — one that could end in a floor fight with Ronald Reagan in the Republicans' Kansas City convention.

But even with the close fight, Ford's only real campaigning was scheduled for July 17 in Hartford, Conn.

LONELY HALLS

An empty hallway at Myron J. Michael Jr. Junior High School, which not long ago resounded with pitter-patter and pupil's chatter, stands lonely and silent as the summer sun streaks through the doorway. Vacation time beckoned and not even Little Sir Echo stayed around.

Nine Dutch Sloops Arriving Tomorrow

KINGSTON—At 3:30 tomorrow afternoon, nine Dutch sloops will ghost their way up the Rondout Creek and moor at the pier in Rondout for an overnight visit.

The cruise is really a pilgrimage, retracing the route of Hudson. The graceful ships all boast flat or round bottoms especially designed for shoal-draft waters. Leeboards in the shape of fins on either side provide stability when the sloops heel with the wind.

The oldest of the craft, the Minke Lokke, will be 100 years old in 1978. Roughly half are vintage boats lovingly maintained and sailed by their owners. The rest are replicas, the most recent was launched in 1975. They range in size from 25 to 50 feet.

Kingston's host families will entertain the crews on their overnight stay. On Thursday morning they will tour landmarks associated with the deep Dutch roots in the area. After a luncheon at the Colonnade, they'll set sail for their next port of call.

The Kingston Indians Drum and Bugle Corps will be on hand Wednesday to orchestrate the city's welcome. They have been trying to master the Dutch National Anthem in time for the occasion.

Although the ships will not be open for inspection, the public is invited to the Rondout at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday to welcome the pilgrims cruising in the wake of the Half Moon.

'Bobcat' Sighting Sets Off Search in Shadaken

SHANDAKEN — A reported bobcat sighting on Garfield Road here touched off a search by the local constables, the Ulster County Sheriff's Department and other officials over the holiday weekend.

Sheriff's Deputy Tom Johnson said a long-time summer resident in the area called police to say she'd seen a "large furry animal" resembling a bobcat near the road by her home while she was preparing breakfast.

The search failed to turn up any sign of the animal, which Town Constable Chris Lays believes could have been "an extremely large domestic cat."

The Department of Environmental Conservation was notified of the report, however, and Johnson said today his department is interested in hearing from any other residents of the area who might sight the creature.

Bobcats once roamed the Catskills freely and, a century or so ago, occasionally turned up wandering down Fifth Avenue in New York City, according to Johnson.

Although the small, fierce-looking wildcats are not as numerous as they once were in the Catskills, they sometimes surface.

Three bobcats were taken in the Shandaken area last year during hunting season, although there is no season on the animals. An exceptionally big one was reported on a hunter's car at a DEC deer checking station on the Thruway locally during the most recent hunting season, and last year a Sawkill hunter was savagely attacked in the Shandaken woods by a bobcat dropping from a tree.

In parts of Ulster County where bears are more frequently sighted, bobcats have been known for vicious attacks with teeth and claws when cornered, said Sgt. Harry Van Vliet, who is conducting the investigation on the most recent possible sighting for the Sheriff's Department.

Law Keeps Mobster Study under Wraps

ALBANY — Secrecy provisions in state law prohibit the airing of the New York Organized Crime Task Force Special Report which Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101st Dist., wants made public.

A full airing of the underworld's attempts to move in on garbage removal operations in Ulster, Dutchess and Orange counties is being called for by the assemblyman, much to the dismay of local prosecutors who see the proposal as compromising ongoing investigations.

Hinchey believes otherwise.

The harsh glare of publicity and public scrutiny may cause the mobsters to discontinue their activities, he claimed. He disagrees that disclosure would hinder the investigations, contending that much of what is in the task force secret intelligence memorandum has been leaked to the news media and has been the topic of conversation for months.

He called upon the state attorney general to set the record straight.

But Organized Crime Task Force Chief Maxwell Spont said this morning that his office cannot, by law, release its report, which outlines underworld extortion and blackmailing activity in the garbage business.

While Spont refused to comment further, Ulster County First Assistant District Attorney Michael Kavanagh was annoyed that Hinchey failed to contact District Attorney Francis J. Vogt or him if he was interested in seeing the report. As an elected official, he would be entitled to see it, Kavanagh suggested, but he feels it would serve no legitimate purpose to make the information public.

As yet, none of the information in the report has been presented to the Ulster County Grand Jury because more convincing evidence is needed, Vogt said.

"The fact that people own a business is not a crime in itself," Kavanagh explained, agreeing that until subsequent investigation turns up more evidence, making the report public is inadvisable.

Hinchey's reference to the report having been leaked to the press is believed to stem from a Dutchess County reporter's attempts to have his publisher print the contents of the task force report which he managed to obtain.

Objection to the assemblyman's attempt to alert the public to the growing crime menace in the local area also came from Orange County Prosecutor David S. Ritter, who said most legislators have respected the police-prosecutorial area of responsibility and are against disclosure.

"Usually the only people who are helping are those being investigated," he said.

Queen's Visit Starts

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth II of England and her husband, Prince Philip, the Duke of Edinburgh, arrived today aboard the royal yacht Britannia on the first leg of a seven-day visit to the United States.

As the royal couple came down the gangway of the yacht berthed at Penn's Landing they were greeted by Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, Mayor Frank L. Rizzo and other dignitaries.

After brief ceremonies at the landing, the couple departed by motorcade for City Hall where a formal welcome was held.

Philadelphia was hardly prepared for the arrival of the royal visitors after the weekend's celebration of America's 200th birthday. Its main streets were still littered with thousands of tons of trash — empty beer bottles and cans, sandwich bags and unending vistas of paper dumped in the streets by the weekend's celebrants.

By no means all Philadelphians were aware just who today's visitors were. A taxi driver said he thought the city could have done better cleaning up to welcome such visitors as "King Philip and the Queen of England."

The royal visitors were due to berth at the ocean gateway to Philadelphia, Penn's Landing, aboard the royal yacht Britannia at 10 a.m. to visit the city's most historic spots and to dine and wine its most prominent citizens and to be dined and wined in return.

Among the Queen's stops were to be the Liberty Bell Pavilion and the Penn Mutual observation deck, from which she could enjoy a breathtaking view of Philadelphia.

The highlight of her visit was to be the presentation in the afternoon of a specially cast Bicentennial bell she will present to the city in her only speech of the day.

In the afternoon, she was to entertain the governors attending the National Governor's Conference at nearby Hershey, Pa., along with their wives, and at night to attend a banquet at the Art Museum given by the city.

After spending the night aboard Britannia, the royal couple fly to Washington Wednesday morning.

Fireman Stops Gas Blaze

SAUGERTIES — Quick action by fireman James Armstrong of the Centerville Fire Company was credited with putting out a potentially dangerous flash fire at a local filling station Sunday that could have resulted in tragedy.

Kerin Campbell, assistant manager of the Gasland station, said a New Jersey car towing a boat trailer gassed up at the station during the mid-morning. The driver allegedly pulled away from the pump with the pump hose still in his gas tank. Campbell said the trailer side-swiped and pulled down one pump and twisted another, rupturing a gas line. Apparently a spark ignited the flowing gas.

Responding to a fire alarm, volunteer firefighter Armstrong used a small dry powder fire extinguisher, which he carried in his car, to contain the flames until the arrival of six pieces of apparatus from the Centerville Company.

Fire Chief Warren Benz praised Armstrong for helping to avert what could have been a costly or tragic fire through his quick action in extinguishing the gas pump blaze. Several other vehicles at the pumps narrowly escaped the conflagration because of Armstrong's presence, he said.

Chief Benz closed the station until repairs could be made.

DEC Bars Target Shooting in Mangled Grove of Trees in the Town of Hurley

TOWN OF HURLEY — The Department of Environmental Conservation Tuesday morning posted a warning sign on a badly shot up area on Dug Hill Road in an effort to protect it from further damage by illegal target shooters.

Norman Van Valkenburgh, DEC Region 3 director, and Frederick Faerber III, president of the Ulster County Sportsmen's Federation, nailed the sign to a post on state forest preserve land along sparsely settled Dug Hill Road. The extent of the problem was apparent in the sign's support post, which had been shot five times since being installed Friday.

DEC has received numerous complaints from people living along Dug Hill Road about target shooting there, and conditions at the site support their complaints. A miniature "battlefield" has been chewed out of the wooded setting for a depth of more than 100 yards from the road, with trees as large as 18 inches at the butt severed and felled by shotgun blasts, rifled slugs, and high velocity bullets of all calibers.

Faerber, VanValkenburgh and the sign.

VanValkenburgh amid shot-blasted trees.

Faerber pledged the "full might" of the federation in cooperating with conservation authorities to fine violators, jail them, or confiscate their guns.

"If the people doing this (shooting) will contact me, I'll put them in a club so they can shoot in a bona fide shooting range," Faerber promised.

Van Valkenburgh went along with the idea. "We don't deny the right to target shoot, but not like this," he said. "They can join a club."

Forest Ranger Roger Blatter noted that even if a tree is not severed by shooting it is likely to be killed.

"Once a tree is damaged, it is more susceptible to damage from insects and diseases," he said.

Regional Forester Paul Keller said he was making arrangements to have the badly littered area cleaned up by workers from the Youth Conservation Corps Camp in Sundown. The youths arrived last weekend and Keller said he hopes to have them on the scene and working by next week.

There will be no lack of work for them to do. The area is littered with beer cans, broken glass, shell casings and other debris. Paper targets have been nailed to numerous trees and a large bundle of newspaper inserts is just off the highway in the woods.

Town of Hurley highway foreman Tony Naccarato was at the sign posting and pledged the cooperation of his crews in helping identify illegal shooters.

Bishop McManus Dies, Was Episcopal Vicar

LONG BRANCH, N.J. — Bishop James E. McManus, former Roman Catholic episcopal vicar of Sullivan and Ulster Counties, died Thursday at the Monmouth Medical Center, Long Branch, N.J. He was 69 years old and had been living in retirement in Opalocka, Fla.

Bishop McManus, a Redemptorist, served as Bishop of Ponce, Puerto Rico, from 1947 to 1963. He was transferred to New York as Auxiliary Bishop to Francis Cardinal Spellman in 1963.

Born in Brooklyn, he was ordained at the Redemptorist Seminary of Mount St. Alphonsus at Esopus in 1927 by Patrick Cardinal Hayes of New York, and two years later was assigned to the Puerto Rican mission of Caguas. He returned to the United States to study at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., and took his doctorate in Canon Law there in 1937.

In 1945, he was appointed pastor in Mayaguez, Puerto Rico. He was engaged in these parish duties when he was named the third Bishop of Ponce in 1947.

Upon his return to New York in 1963, Bishop McManus served as pastor of St. Cecilia's Parish in Manhattan. He was named episcopal vicar of Sullivan and Ulster Counties, the position he held until his retirement in 1970.

He is survived by his sister, Mrs. O'Leary of Tamarac, Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and two nieces.

A concelebrated funeral Mass was offered at St. Patrick's Cathedral today at 10:30 a.m. with Terence Cardinal Cooke as the Principal Celebrant. Bishop-elect Ronald G. Connors was the homilist. There was also a Mass of the Holy Eucharist at his home parish of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, Brooklyn on Monday at 8 p.m. Bishop John Boardman presided at the Mass. Bishop McManus will be buried at Mount St. Alphonsus, Esopus.

Local arrangements were under the direction of the Henry J. Bruck Funeral Home, 411 Albany Avenue.

PICTORIAL REVIEW OF LOCAL BICENTENNIAL

Ruth Ann Golden is probably too young to recall in later years that she celebrated the nation's Bicentennial in Kingston, but she did.

Drowning Victim's Body Recovered

ELLENVILLE — The body of a Queens man missing since Sunday afternoon was recovered Monday from Lake Ulster by state police divers. The death of Alex Androszewski, 24, of 85 19 123rd St., Kew Gardens was an "apparent" accidental drowning, state police said.

He was last seen swimming in the lake Sunday, and a person who saw him sink called state troopers, who dragged the lake Sunday night to no avail. An autopsy is pending.

Four Arrested

Four young men were arrested Monday in connection with the theft and unauthorized use of two all-terrain vehicles (ATVs) from the Pine Grove Ranch in Kerhonkson Sunday.

State police officer Douglas Diamond after an investigation arrested David Krom, 16, and Matthew Sahler, 17, both of Kerhonkson on two charges of third degree burglary, a felony. Steven Ennenga, 17, of Accord, was charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, while a Kerhonkson juvenile was also charged with burglary.

The three adults were arraigned before Warwarsing Town Judge Harold Sashin and released in their parents' custody pending a court appearance before Rochester Town Judge Harold Lipton tomorrow. The juvenile was released in his parents' custody pending a Family Court appearance at a later date.

Expensive Ticket

Tearing up a traffic ticket led to a $25 fine on a charge of obstructing governmental administration for Sonny Fletcher 23, of Woodstock yesterday, and the arrest of Gloria Katz, 40, also of Woodstock on the same charge. Officer Ludwig Baumgarten placed a ticket for obstructing traffic on the windshield of a car operated by Fletcher and owned by Ms. Katz. After Fletcher tore up the ticket, Officer Baumgarten tried to arrest him, but the suspect fled to Ms. Katz's home.

She refused to turn Fletcher over to Woodstock policemen for two hours until the police obtained a search warrant. Her lawyer then produced Fletcher. The two were arraigned before Judge Kevin Sweeney, who fined Fletcher

Dutchess Barn Fire

An early morning barn fire on the Dutchess County fair grounds in Rhinebeck resulted in the death of one Black Angus heifer and minor damage to the 4 H shed where the fire broke out at 5:34 a.m. today.

The blaze began in a pile of hay which had apparently been ignited by a short circuit or spark from an electrical fan in the barn, according to Rhinebeck Fire Chief Jeff Strong. Thirty-seven Rhinebeck firemen fought the fire until 6:15 a.m.

STAFF'S CHANCE

A Modest Proposal

My grandmother once told me the trouble with my generation was that we had never fought our way overland in a Conestoga wagon despite drought, blizzards and hostile Indians. We remembered her words recently when we went to Rhinebeck to see the Bicentennial Wagon Train and its prairie schooners.

A few weeks later, when we visited the Bicentennial Barge in Kingston, it occurred to us the lack in our upbringing also extended to never having suffered through a canal trip into virgin lands at a mile-and-a-half an hour, while sharing deck space with spare animals and being knocked down by low bridges at indecent intervals.

Indeed, what has my generation ever done but speed along on four-lane superhighways? So, if this Bicentennial year has brought covered wagons and barges to our area, what shall we of Ulster County today build for our posterity? What should we now begin preparing for the country's 400th birthday celebration, so people then will understand what sort of people now forged the legacy handed down to them?

My proposal is that a few stretches of today's primeval highway be set aside immediately along the Thruway or Route 28 here in Ulster so that in 2176, people will know how it used to be. They'll know how it was to spend an hour behind three wheels, or a motorcycle gang riding six abreast.

Let them experience firsthand the glaring lights of oncoming traffic, the eyes and the vision-confusing blinking of portable electronic flash. Instead of resurrecting chuckwagons, spinning wheels, weaving looms, wooden plows and handmade chisels to show them their heritage, as we are doing today, let us allow them to enjoy the speed trap and tire check, the thrill of a narrow under 15 inches of Catskills snow, and the 25-minute round-trip to the Taverne Hollow Bridge.

Let them ride covered wagons on unexplored mountain passes, pulled along towpaths by straining mules. Today, it's too late, let's set aside a few sections of Ulster County in its current condition. It will be, I'm sure, very educational in attracting tourists here 200 years from now.

People who are traveling long distances this year to see Kingston's pioneering Old Stockade and quaint Huguenot Street in New Paltz will pour into Ulster during the Quadricentennial and pay admission to travel on a road just like the one their great granddaddies used to maneuver.

Let the Thruway or Route 28 go the way of the Santa Fe Trail and the Delaware and Hudson Canal, let's preserve them, at least if we expect those who follow us to have any respect for the sufferings, struggles and rigors of these olden days.

OWP Enjoyed Kingston

Dear Editor:

I had the pleasure of meeting you briefly during my two week stay in Kingston. As advance coordinator for Up With People's visit to your city, I was able to meet and get to know many fine citizens of Kingston.

During my five years of traveling with Up With People I've worked and lived in several hundred cities in a number of countries, but I can truly say I've never experienced more warmth and enthusiasm than I found among the residents of Kingston.

The whole community seemed to be so open and willing to help make our stay so successful. The Kingston community, our sponsor, really went out to make Up With People's visit the highlight of their year, and activities for the community.

The local media, service organizations, churches, and general public all lent their support to making our time in Kingston rewarding. It's a city each cast member will long remember as one of the highlights of their year with Up With People. Many lasting friendships were made.

Up With People is looking forward to returning to Kingston in the not-too-distant future. Till then, I'd like to thank the Freeman for all the support given us and everyone in your beautiful city who contributed to the success of our visit.

Thank you and all the best from Cast Bill of Up With People.

Ford: Surrender to Reagan

Dear President Ford:

Democracy's scandals might give Republicans hope nationwide, but your own actions are misleading. Surrender the Republican presidential nomination to Reagan.

New York State delegates were asked to vote by high-tax-Rocky supporters, Rosenthal, etc. These people presently represent the grass root Republicans of New York State.

Rocky and his cohorts' "moral obligations" seemingly bankrupt New York State. Rocky and his cohorts did not allow New York State Republicans a primary. He does not represent the New York State Republicans or Independents. Knowing the apparent moral character of the so-called "moral obligation" citizens, I wouldn't be surprised if you could win the Republican party nomination with Rocky's trailing and the New York

State delegation's support. Your vote tally in New York State might be zero to 1,500,000 on election day — you with the zero and Carter the winner. Your moral obligation supporters probably wouldn't even vote for you.

White collar crime is supported, grandfathers' mayhem, murder and avarice is condoned, and silver spoons are in the mouths of some people that are born.

We have Rocky.

So far as I know Reagan is not a crook; he is not a part of the Washington establishment or "morally obligated" and he is not amoral. He might be a winner.

Regardless, I will vote against Rocky and/or you because I had no primary. Reagan I would vote for.

IBM Not Moving to Endicott

Mr. Jack Walter, who has been quoted as saying that IBM is moving its manufacturing facilities to Endicott, New York, has been quoted as saying that the rumor is false. IBM will continue to work in the Endicott area, and some of the manufacturing facilities will be transferred to the Endicott area.

Second, IBM's existing facilities in Endicott are served by New York State

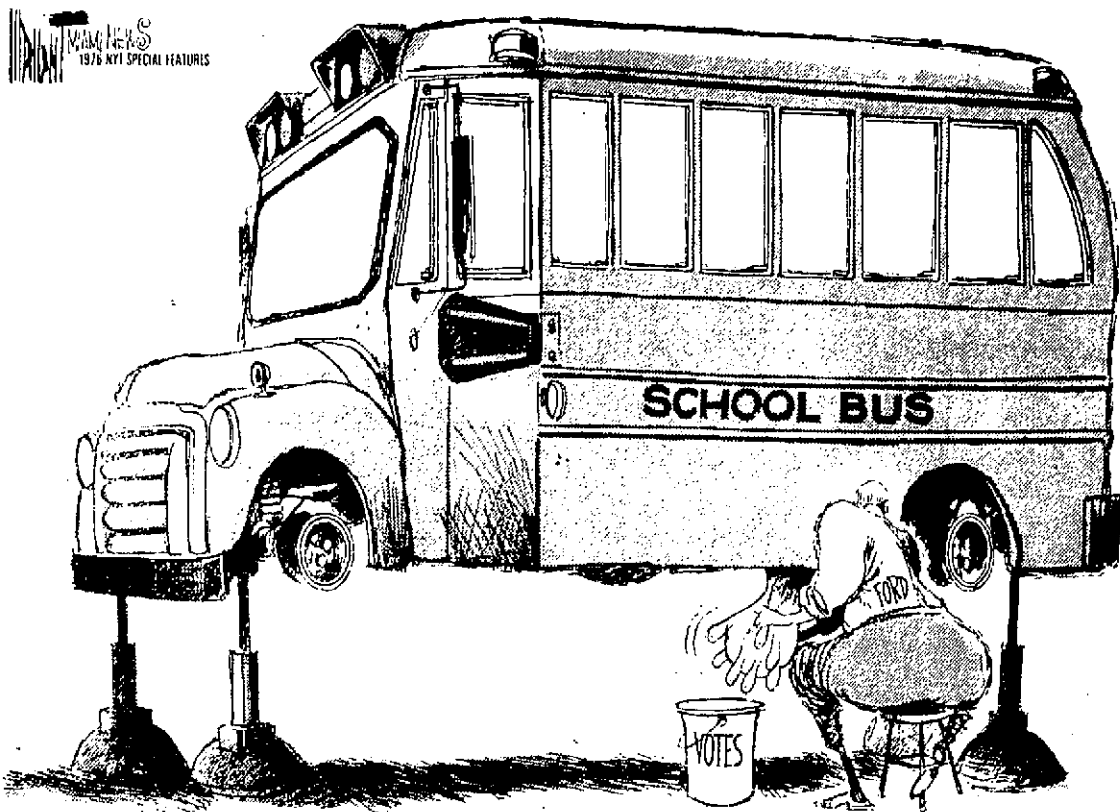

Electric and Gas Corp., an investor-owned electric company similar to Central Hudson. Furthermore, even if IBM's manufacturing facilities in Ulster County were to be moved to Endicott, they would not be eligible for service from the local municipal company, according to the regulations of the power authority of the State of New York, which supplies power to the municipal system.

It appears that Mr. Walter misunderstood the IBM announcement and made an incorrect assumption regarding the operation of the Endicott municipal system.

Political Torture in Cuba

Pursuant to my commitment to give presumptive credence to tales of torture that satisfy three conditions: 1) They must allegedly have taken place in a closed society; 2) the society in question must have declined to permit an investigation of them; and 3) the operation must not give off an overwhelming ideological stink — I report on a massacre said to have taken place at the federal prison of Puerto Boniato in Oriente Province, Cuba, last September 1.

It was 11 a.m. in Ward 4. One hundred political prisoners are listening to Laureano Valdes-Gallardo in cell 13 howling in pain from a tetanus infection caused when he hammered out two of his teeth with a prison spoon. The prisoners have been in solitary for six years; naked; locked inside windowless steel-planked cells. Several have lost their minds. One is blind. The howling of Valdes-Gallardo increases. His fellow inmates start to hammer with their aluminum plates and mugs at the heavy steel planks that cover the windows, to draw attention to the sick man.

11:30 a.m. Patrols surround the building. Machine guns are mounted and pointed at the steel windows. Visitors spending time with the non-political prisoners are ordered to leave the prison because a mass escape is allegedly under way. The premises cleared, the guards break into Ward 4, open up the cells, take out the prisoners, hitting them with rifle butts, fracturing skulls with machetes. They are pushed to the end of the hallway.

Gerardo Gonzalez-Alvarez, a Protestant minister, opens his arms and intones the sacred phrase, "Forgive them Lord, for they know not what they do." Lt. Paul Perez de-la-Rosa orders a machine gun burst. It cuts off the head of the minister. Enrique Diaz-Correa rushes to his friend. Three bullets pierce his body. He falls dead over the minister's corpse. The blind man, Wilfredo Martinez, is whiplashed with a thick steel cable; he too is mortally wounded.

Others among the survivors are savagely beaten. One cell door has remained shut. The cell's occupant shouts out, protesting the massacre. Lt. Figueroa opens the door and shouts Evelio Hernandez. The guards pick up the body and throw it into the hallway.

3 p.m. Six of the wounded have been transferred to the hospital. The remaining 64 wounded are piled seven or eight per narrow cell. The guards hose down the bloodstained floors and walls and begin to fill in the bullet holes.

September 6, 12:00 noon. Guards wielding sledge hammers break down the doors to Ward 4. Other soldiers, dressed in yellow uniform and underwear and armed with rods and chains, stage a mock mutiny. They attack the guards as if attempting a mass escape. Guards fall to the ground. The scene is filmed and photographed by cameramen from the Ministry of the Interior. It is a grotesque effort to justify the murders of the previous week.

Way back on November 13, Senator Jesse Helms put that story into the Congressional Record. He was not, he said, himself in a position to guarantee the authenticity of the document that brought him the allegations.

"If anyone has any doubt that these events took place, then let him apply to Castro for permission to go to Cuba onto see for himself. Indeed, let a whole group of Newsmen go, newsmen representing a broad political spectrum and different countries. Let them have permission to go where they like to talk to whomsoever they like, without intimidation of witnesses. Then we shall know the truth."

It is time now, six months later, to note the record. No delegation constituted, no committee from the United Nations, no public clamor. From Amnesty International (in reply to a query from the quarter) only this: "All is currently attempting to ascertain the authenticity of the allegations."

Remember the rule: Under the circumstances, presume Castro guilty.

Search for Carter Gears Up

WASHINGTON—The New York Times is now in the process of searching for the Loch Ness monster. It has underwritten a scientific expedition with underwater TV cameras, sonar equipment and other monster gear heretofore unknown to man. So far they haven't found him/her/it, but if they do, it could be the story of the year—well, almost. There is another search going on right now by almost everyone to find the real Jimmy Carter.

Unlike the Loch Ness monster, Jimmy Carter has not only been seen, but photographed. Scientists who have studied the photographs say he probably comes from the South, and his jaw and teeth indicate his main source of food has been peanuts and Democratic presidential candidates.

One anthropologist told me, "We know he smiles a lot, but we have no idea what is behind the smile. It's hard to believe we have so much information and yet know so little about him."

Another scientist said, "If we could only figure out what was going on in his brain I think we could find out what kind of animal he is, but we can't tell from pictures or television. We'd have to capture him and study him closely in a cage, and I don't think the public would go for that."

I said, "Jimmy Carter has been showing up everywhere. He's been sighted in 48 of the 50 states. Is it possible that there are more than one of him?"

"We don't think so," the scientist replied. "We believe the sightings have all been of the same thing, but nobody can make head or tail of it. A few years ago no one knew a Jimmy Carter existed. But suddenly he showed up out of nowhere. It could be a new species of presidential candidate, or an old species that just looks different."

"The question is why did he surface now and how has he managed to capture the imagination of the American people?" "Perhaps the people are getting tired of the same old species of President and are looking for something new. Maybe they see in Jimmy Carter something that isn't there."

"We scientists can't deal in hypothesis," he replied. "We have to stick with what we know. We know he chewed up all the other presidential candidates. We found their bones in almost every state where there was a primary. We also know that the only place he avoids is Washington, D.C. If we can find out what it is in Washington, D.C., that keeps him away, we might unlock the mystery."

"Is he dangerous?"

"The Republicans think he is. They're scared silly of him, after what he did to his own kind in the primaries. The Republicans thought the South was safe, but now with Jimmy Carter roaming around they're afraid to go near the place."

"How does he protect himself?" "With his teeth. Whenever he gets hungry he just opens his mouth and chomps off whatever is standing in his way. Then he smiles as if nothing happened."

"What about his skin?"

"It's very tough. Anyone who has tried to get under it has been sorry he tried. A year ago the regular Democrats tried to stop him with every machine they had. But now everyone, including those who run the machines, is eating out of his hand. They don't understand it themselves, but they're going along with it, because they don't have a choice."

"Do you think you can get a closer look at him and find out more about him?"

"Well, he's going on display at the Democratic Circus in Madison Square Garden next week, and we've got a special team stationed there to make a new study to observe him, and find out if there is anything we overlooked. But we're not optimistic. He may remain a mystery until he gets to the White House."

"The White House. But that's in Washington, D.C."

"We know that. But that seems to be where he's trying to get to now. If he gets there the mystery of who or what a Jimmy Carter is may finally be solved."

Where Has U.S. Aid Loot, Gone?

WASHINGTON — Just about every nation in real or apparent need has received an outpouring of economic and military aid from the United States. But all too often, the American taxpayers have offered handouts to hands that have been only too quick to pick their pockets.

The United States has showered Nicaragua, for example, with hundreds of millions of dollars. But not until we documented last year how Nicaragua's pot-bellied potentate, Anastasio Somoza, has wound up with most of the economic benefits did Congress start to ask critical questions.

We reported that Somoza even managed to make a profit off the 1972 earthquake that devastated his capital city of Managua. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, thereafter, dispatched two investigators to Nicaragua to determine what happened to the $100 million that the United States donated to help the earthquake victims.

The investigators brought back enough disturbing information that Sens. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., and Clifford Case, R-N.J., have now asked the General Accounting Office (GAO) to conduct a careful audit. Here are just a few of the facts that the two Foreign Relations Committee investigators uncovered:

— The United States put up $3 million to help build an emergency housing project called Las Americas. The homes are hopelessly inadequate wooden duplexes resembling oversized matchboxes. We have personally received a petition signed by 134 residents of Las Americas, asking us to investigate the substandard construction of their homes.

— The Inter-American Development Bank may loan Nicaragua $24.4 million for the construction of a superhighway around the capital city. The lion's share of this longterm, low-interest loan, about $16 million, would come out of the U.S. till. To no one's particular surprise, the new highway would increase the value of Somoza's personal property by millions of dollars.

— The Senate investigators have also raised questions about other loans to Nicaragua from international financial institutions, which depend heavily upon U.S. contributions.

On the House side, a foreign affairs subcommittee headed by Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., has been investigating Somoza's police state tactics. If serious human rights violations are discovered, the law requires that U.S. military and economic aid be cut off.

Fraser's inquiry brought a quick, quiet reaction from Managua. U.S. Ambassador James Theberge flew to Washington and met with Rep. Edward Koch, D-N.Y., a Somoza critic who could influence the attitude of Congress. To his knowledge, swore Theberge, there were no "systematic violations of human rights in Nicaragua."

The Big Banana himself also asked for a private meeting with Koch. The congressman and the dictator met in New York City's Waldorf-Astoria, where Somoza had taken a penthouse suite.

The Fraser investigation, complained Somoza, was inspired by persons engaged in an "international effort" to wreck U.S.-Nicaraguan relations. The dictator added ominously that Fidel Castro was supporting the insurgents who sought to depose him.

Classified Pentagon intelligence, on the contrary, reveals that the guerrilla movement in Nicaragua is so inconsequential that it can't be taken seriously.

Rep. Fraser, nevertheless, went ahead with hearings. But there was one hitch. His star anti-Somoza witness, a courageous Nicaraguan newspaper publisher named Pedro Joaquin Chamorro, never appeared. Somoza had refused to let him leave the country.

We have seen a portion of the testimony Chamorro would have given. On February 11, he was dumped into jail on libel charges brought by a Somoza flunky. He was prepared to testify that he had seen two hooded prisoners being led to a nearby cell. Thereafter, he heard moans and screams and pleas ... I also heard loud crashes as if someone were being thrown against a metal door and a strange sound similar to the cracking of a whip.

Chamorro was later taken to the police barracks where he saw "a series of more than 15 small cells, each about two and one-half square meters in size and each holding a man. All of the men were silent, in different positions, emaciated and seemingly out of touch with reality. In this well-lighted section, the scene resembled a collection of living dead men, each in his own tomb."

To add credibility to his statement, the newspaper publisher swore out an affidavit before the archbishop of Managua, Monsignor Miguel Obando y Bravo.

Footnote: We asked Nicaraguan Ambassador Guillermo Sevilla-Sacasa for a full explanation of why Chamorro wasn't allowed to testify before the Fraser committee. "I don't know why," he said. But he promised to find out. That was May 19. We are still waiting for the ambassador's response.

MEDICARE MESS: Under the medicare program, most physicians' fees are paid by the Federal Bureau of Health Insurance. As an economy measure, the agency has been reducing the claims submitted by elderly patients.

This has cut down on the taxpayers' outlay. However, statistics show that it isn't the doctors but their patients who are taking the cut. The doctors merely have been demanding more money from their elderly, often impecunious patients.

Thomas Tierney, the bureau's director, conceded that the problem is serious. But determining an equitable formula for physician payments, he contended, is a complex task.

Soviet Weaknesses

Last week I promised some thoughts the weaknesses of our enemy, the USSR, weaknesses which I see us not as interested in as our own. To me, their converting Marx's version of a society governed "by the people" and for the people" into one run by a tiny self-perpetuating clique has sown seeds of its own destruction. These are already well sprouted in the European Communist parties which are beginning to follow Tito's lead in breaking away from the discipline demanded by the Russians. There is no need to remind anyone of how their first great convert, China, feels about their hypocrisy. The Maoists' description of Russian as an imperial power with world conquering ambitions is an accurate one.

Clearly, that leaves them with only their armed forces to sustain their expansion and this is still a pretty big world to police, Russian - or any other - style.

But I see an even more basic flaw in their arrogant confidence that a few people know what's best for the future of millions whom they happen to have under their thumb at the moment. I just don't think that, in the long run, it will work. There was the same flaw inherent in the inbred monarchical system. They might, indeed, remind themselves that it was that kind of thinking that produced the Czarism which their forefathers overthrew.

Human beings have survived on Earth because they got new ideas, which enabled them to meet new problems — and master old ones. But the human gene structure is much too complicated for any individual or small group to know who is going to come up with one.

To bet your nation's survival — as the Russians are — on being able to squeeze the originality out of its people — and make them accept conformity to your ideas — is to doom your country eventually to running short of the nonconformity which is the foundation of every "new" idea.

QED: when the changes which are inevitable in the process of survival on this Earth come, you will find your people — and yourselves — unable to meet them successfully.

Karl Marx began it all with big talk about the contradictions in the capitalist system. Those who inherited his ideas should do a little pondering on the conflicts in their own.

A lot has happened to all of us since Marx's day. The doctrine Marxist might ask himself whether the state nourished only by his ideas or the one whose bicentennial we are now celebrating had proved the abler in adjusting to new circumstances. Our founding Fathers' ideas were as impractically idealistic as his. Of course they were full of contradictions and imperfections. Just as obviously they still are. But how much skill in the art of adjustment to a changed world has Marx's society demonstrated in the last 50 years, compared to ours?

If one of Marx's foundation stones was his belief in the workers' inherent right to own what he created, how much does the average worker in The Soviet Union own of what he is under orders to produce - compared to his opposite number here? As I understand it, the largest owners of equity stock in the largest companies in The United States are their workers' own pension funds. (If I'm wrong, it is not by much.) So who has the best track record for adapting?

Well, enough speculation is enough. It all adds up to my feeling that, if we don't let ourselves get sucked into an old-fashioned shoot-out with the USSR (to our mutual annihilation), history will undo it without our help. To me, doctrinaire Soviet Communism is coming, and fairly rapidly, to look more and more like the mammoth dinosaur which pigny man didn't have to dispose of because its own nature did the job for him.

Liberals Boycot New Spanish Cabinet

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — A boycott by outgoing liberal ministers today postponed formation of conservative Prime Minister Adolfo Suarez Gonzalez' government.

Associates who at first said the cabinet would be announced today pushed the date back until at least Wednesday.

Suarez, 43, took the oath of office Monday, swearing "absolute loyalty" to King

Juan Carlos and "strict fidelity to the principles of the National Movement," the Franco-era party of which Suarez was general secretary. Afterwards, he conferred for more than three hours with the king.

Influential economist Ramon Tamames, a Communist, predicted Suarez would reorder Spain's priorities in favor of the economy, temporarily abandoning reform of the authoritarian Franco machinery.

The slogan of the new government will probably be "first resolve Spain's economic crisis and bring democracy later," Tamames said.

Interior Minister Manuel Fraga Iribarne, Foreign Minister Jose Maria Areilza and other liberal ministers under former Prime Minister Carlos Arias Navarro said they would refuse to participate in the new cabinet.

Fraga and Areilza, chief architects of the reform program, sent letters to Suarez communicating their attitude. Areilza said he took his decision "to keep intact my ideological convictions," the national news agency Cifra reported.

Opposition members predicted technocrats of the Catholic lay organization

Opus Dei who ran Spain in the 1960's were on the way back in. But political sources said Suarez was trying to balance his cabinet by naming one or two leftists.

The new chief of government also met Monday with Social Democrat Antonio Garcia Lopez and Cifra said Garcia Lopez was under consideration for a post.

Is The Flu Battle Doomed?

By CRAIG A. PALMER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's campaign to inoculate every American against swine flu may be doomed.

The plan is beset with uncertainties such as the proper vaccine dose for children, and a big political certainty — Congress will not touch it because of insurance problems.

After two days of work on a bill "to provide indemnification against claims for injury related to inoculation with vaccine," Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., told lawyers, insurers, vaccine manufacturers and health officials Thursday they should look elsewhere.

"That ought to be handled by agreement rather than by law, because I don't think the committee (working on the bill) is in a position to write a law at this time," Rogers said.

Government officials and corporate lawyers representing vaccine companies are to resume their talks this week.

There have been other problems:

— One drug company made the wrong kind of vaccine.

— Dr. Albert Sabin, developer of one of the polio vaccines, said the government should vaccinate only older and high-risk persons suffering from chronic illness.

— Some states complain their share of a $135 million aid bill for the distribution of vaccine is inadequate.

— Nobody knows whether Americans will line up this fall for shots against an epidemic, which may not come this winter.

The toughest problems come with insurance.

Because of "virtually unmeasurable" risks of lawsuits, insurers are reducing or eliminating coverage of swine flu vaccine.

Drug companies say they must have some protection this month against suits not related to their own negligence if they are to continue making vaccine.

The mass vaccination program got its start last February when several hundred Army recruits at Fort Dix, N.J., became ill — one died — from a virus confined to pigs and the butchers and hog farmers, who work with them.

The virus resembled that, which caused the 1918-19 world epidemic and killed 20 million, including 548,000 Americans.

GOP Governors Favor Ford 11-2; Unsure About Reagan,

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

As GOP governors met at the National Governors' Conference this week, earlier presidential endorsements appeared firm, but some aren't sure, or won't say they will support the nominee if their man loses.

From a survey by UPI of the 13 Republican governors attending the conference in Hershey, Pa., today, the following picture emerged:

The governors are still 11-2 in favor of President Ford over Ronald Reagan, but some are reluctant to pledge unequivocal support to whoever is the nominee.

Gov. Jay S. Hammond of Alaska: A Ford man, so strongly that he says about the possibility of a Reagan nomination, "I haven't really thought about supporting Reagan."

Gov. Otis R. Bowen of Indiana: A Ford backer, but "I will support whoever comes out of the convention." Bowen and Reagan have worked together at national governors' conferences and are cordial to each other.

Gov. Robert D. Ray of Iowa: Still a strong Ford man. He will go with the nominee, whoever it is.

Gov. Robert F. Bennett of Kansas: A whole-hearted backer of Ford now as before, was asked if he could support Reagan if he is the nominee. "Yes," he said, without elaboration.

Gov. William G. Milliken of Michigan: A strong backer of Ford's. He believes "the President is going to take it on the first ballot." As for supporting Reagan, Milliken said, "I will face that issue should it develop — and I don't think it will."

Gov. Christopher S. Bond of Missouri: A firm supporter of Ford in a state where Reagan has a 30-16 lead in delegates. Bond told UPI that if Reagan is the nominee he will support him as vigorously as he does Ford.

Gov. Meldrim Thomson Jr., of New Hampshire: A strong Reagan backer, who is imprecise on whether he could go for Ford if the President wins the nomination. Gov. James

E. Holshouser Jr., of North Carolina: A strong Ford backer, who managed Ford's southern campaign. He would support Reagan if he wins the nomination. "I intend to support the Republican nominee and I expect that to be President Ford."

Gov. James A. Rhodes of Ohio: Still supports Ford. But Rhodes would not comment when UPI asked him if he could support Reagan if nominated.

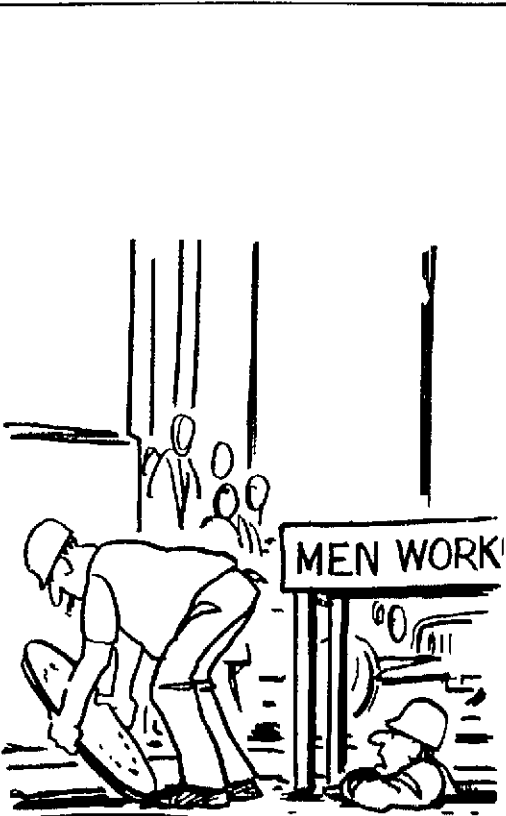

Gov. James B. Edwards of South Carolina: A strong Reagan backer, chairman of Reagan's campaign in his state. Edwards has said he would support Ford if he is the nominee.

Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr., of Virginia: "My position has not changed. I am supporting President Ford for the Republican nomination for president, but I could support either the President or Governor Reagan as the nominee."

Gov. Daniel J. Evans of Washington: A strong Ford backer, but one who has said he will support the party's eventual nominee.

Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr., of West Virginia: A strong Ford backer still, he has said he would support Reagan if he wins the nomination. At one low point in Reagan's campaign, Moore was among some governors who asked him to withdraw.

Miss Ethel and Performing Greyhounds ...Circus attraction

Circus Coming To Town July 11

KINGSTON — It's a three ring circus! And it's coming to Kingston Sunday, July 11, complete with lion tamers, acrobats and a complement of clowns.

The Clyde Beatty Cole Bros. Circus will present two performances at 2 and 5:30 p.m. at Kingston Plaza, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Kingston.

The traveling cavalcade of entertainment will roll into the city in the early morning hours and set up in the traditional manner with performing elephants doubling as tent-raisers by pulling the football field sized bigtop into the air.

The three ring show will include three herds of elephants, trained wild and domestic animals, aerialists, jugglers, balancers and a small army of clowns.

The circus side shows will be open on the midway featuring a fire eater, magician, ventriloquist, knife-throwers and other acts including the Clyde Beatty menagerie.

A free callopie concert opens the side show about one hour before scheduled big top performances.

Coleman Shows Have Dietz Date

KINGSTON — Fast moving amusement rides and the regional debut of sword-swallowing, fire eating sideshow performers will highlight this year's visit of the Coleman Brothers Midway to Dietz Stadium.

The carnival, boasting some 30 rides and a "custom-sized kiddie midway" is slated for a four-day stay in Kingston with 6 p.m. openings Wednesday, July 7, through Friday, July 9, and a special matinee scheduled for noon Saturday.

The show, being sponsored by the Excelsior Hose Company, is the product of work four generations of the Coleman family, says show owner Robert Coleman. The entertainment enterprise, based in Middletown, Conn., is now in its 60th year and will tour 3,000 miles during a seven-month run.

Coleman explained that the show will bring a variety of new "thrill" rides to Kingston including the elaborate "Flying Bobs" which whizzes passengers at speeds up to 60 miles per hour and is illuminated by more than 3,500 lights. The brave at heart may also venture a trip on the 85-foot tall "Sky Diver" and the new "Zipper."

Also a first for this year will be a discount ride coupon book available daily at the show grounds which can save patrons up to 15 per cent on ride prices.

VFW Honors Simpson

ROCHESTER—The Veterans of Foreign Wars members held their 57th State Convention and the 52nd meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary in Rochester from June 23 through June 26.

Simpson ..member gain

The convention honored Albert DeLuca, commander of the Hudson Valley Counties Council with a White Hat symbolic of an Allstate County Commander, a distinguished service pin and an Allstate wristwatch. Also honored was Commander Frank Simpson of the Joyce Schrick Post, 1386 in Kingston, who received a White Hat as an Allstate Post Commander. Simpson also was chosen as captain of the Allstate Team for attaining the highest gain in post membership in the state.

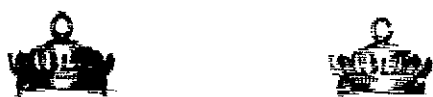

The Kingston post also received a trophy and a citation for its post paper which was accepted by the editor, Al DeLuca. Kerhonkson Post 8959 Commander Herb Poppel received a plaque for his dedicated service.

The color guard of the Joyce Schrick Post led the parade Friday evening. Carrying the post and county colors were Tom Hughes, Charles DeLuca, Gene Broadhead, George Beesmer, James Longendyke and Commander Frank Simpson.

Killanin Is Worried About Games' Future

MONTREAL (UPI) — Lord Killanin won't come out flatly and say it, but he is worried if the International Olympic Committee does not stand its ground on the issue of Taiwan the Olympic Games could turn into a shambles in Moscow in four years time.

Killanin, looking tired and worried, met the media Monday, 20 minutes after arriving from Dublin with the Irish team.

The Irish aristocrat said, "I'm extremely worried. The Canadian government has violated an Olympic principle and if we set a precedent now, it could have long term repercussions, not just in Moscow in 1980, but in 1984 and thereafter."

A high IOC source told UPI: "Guess who are the only ones walking around with a smile on their faces?"

"Yes, you've got it, the Russians..."

Moscow, which already has a poor track record in the matter of mixing politics and sports, will host the 1980 Summer Games.

At the eye of the storm, with the start of the Montreal Games just 11 days distant, is the question of the participation of the Republic of China.

Canada is only prepared to issue the necessary entry visas if the Taiwanese athletes march in the opening parade as "Taiwan" and leave their national flag back in the Olympic Village.

This is out of the question as far as the Taiwanese and the IOC are concerned.

Killanin said he has received a great deal of correspondence since the IOC's July 1 disclosure of Canada's position in respect of Taiwan.

"I will need two or three days to study the correspondence and to hear the views of the IOC membership and it's executive committee before I meet with officials of the External Affairs department," he said.

Canada's decision was a result of its recognizing the People's Republic of China in 1970 when it broke off diplomatic relations with Taiwan.

Killanin said many of the international sports federations, including major sports like athletics (track and field), swimming, basketball and gymnastics were behind the IOC, "while the judo federation went so far as to suggest we cancel the Games."

The IOC President, an able negotiator, ducked the question of whether the Committee would use the ultimate deterrent open to it: withdrawal of its patronage of the Games.

"I have no comment to make on that question at the moment," he said, adding "but I hope Montreal has a successful Olympics."

In the Canadian parliament, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau Monday called upon the IOC to compromise on the issue of Taiwan, just as it did in 1960 when the Games were staged at Rome.

At that time the IOC ordered Taiwan, which then marched under the name of Formosa, to march as Taiwan.

Killanin said he remembered the decision, "and I recall the team unfurling a banner which said, 'under protest,' when it passed the saluting dais."

Saying the Olympics should concern sport, Killanin drew a laugh when he added, "but sometimes it's hard to believe."

Next week's IOC Congress may be faced with other political issues. The African countries have demanded the exclusion of New Zealand because it still maintains sports ties with South Africa and Rhodesia, while there is a strong possibility the Arab nations may demand the expulsion of Israel.

But for the moment, Killanin has to resolve the matter of government interference in Olympic affairs. The other problems will be "in house."

Royal Crown Dominates Historic Track Opener

GOSHEN — Royal Crown, with Dave Wade in the sulky, swept to victories in both runs of the $12,760 Acorn Stake No. 32 Monday to highlight opening day at Goshen's Historic Track.

Royal Crown posted a 2:08 clocking in the sixth race and came back in the tenth with 2:07.3 for her second win. She paid $11.40 and $4.80 for the first places and made Wade the third driver to win the Acorn Stake twice in the last decade.

An opening day crowd of 4,176, the largest in recent years, weathered a power failure that delayed the start of the meet for nearly 30 minutes. They then watched Clip Along score a first race victory that paid her backers $58.40.

The one-week Goshen meet continues today with an 11 race card. Featured are the E.H. Harriman Cup for two-year-old colts and geldings; the Debutante Stake for two-year-old fillies; the New York Sire Stakes for two-year-old colts and geldings; and the Goshen Cup, also for two-year-old colts and geldings.

Wade's dual wins put him alongside Hall of Famers Ralph Baldwin and Stanley Dancer who also conquered the Acorn Stake twice. Royal Crown is out of his family's stable, and her triumph in the sixth was only her second start.

Dancer was in the field also Monday, and he piloted Mistletoe Shalee to a win in the $13,800 New York Sire Stakes for two-year-old pacing fillies.

The New York Sire Stakes for trotting fillies went to Superceder with Ralph Jarvis in the bike.

In preliminaries to the Grand Circuit, Herve Filion and Elbridge T. Gerry were inducted Sunday into harness racing's Living Hall of Fame.

Filion, a winner of over 5,000 races, was presented his ring by Ralph Grasso, the president of the U.S. Harness Writers' Association. Filion, 26, has among his remarkable achievements as a trainer-driver a season record of 637 victories, 67 two-minute miles, and career earnings of nearly $16 million.

Gerry was New York's first harness racing commissioner and was also a founder of the Hall of Fame of the Trotter.

Also making the finals were Gary Dickinson, Ft. Worth, Tex., 9,426, and Roy Buckley, Columbus, Ohio, 9,353.

Anthony spilled 9,085 actual sticks, a 216 average, and added 435 bonus pins for his 14-9-1 match play record to get his total. Despite knocking down 1,668 pins and going 3-5 in the final round, Anthony said he felt things were better than they looked.

Anthony Takes Top Seed

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Earl Anthony fended off late challenges by Paul Colwell and Keith Craycraft Monday night to take the top seed in the $60,000 Southern California Open Bowling Tournament.

Anthony, of Tacoma, Wash., went into today's finals with a total pinfall of 9,520, followed by Colwell, Tucson, Ariz., with 9,458 and Craycraft, New Martinsville, W. Va., with 9,437.

Oneonta Takes Title Over Kingston

Legion Second in Upstate Tourney

PLATTSBURGH — Kingston's American Legion Post 150 baseball team emerged from the weekend's grueling Plattsburgh Invitational Tournament with four victories in six games, but an 8-0 loss to Oneonta cost the locals the championship in the Monday night finale.

A 5-4 setback to Herkimer in the second game sent Kingston into the losers' bracket and forced them to play three consecutive games on Monday. Kingston beat Arlington, Mass., 5-0, then avenged the loss to Herkimer with a 7-1 triumph. In the last game, however, Oneonta jumped out to an early lead, and Kingston didn't have the strength left to come back.

Kingston didn't start play until Saturday night. Marco Tiano gave the locals an auspicious beginning by threehitting Newton, Mass., for a 9-2 victory.

Tiano was the major factor in the contest as he blew down 14 batters on strikes while walking only one. Rich Bell powered the offense with a pair of hits and three RBI's.

The costly loss to Herkimer came Sunday afternoon. Kingston had a 3-0 lead in the contest, but Herkimer got to loser Kevin Jordan for a pair of runs in the last of the fifth that turned the outcome around.

With one more defeat meaning elimination, Dave Loeffler took the mound Sunday night and blanked Newburgh with a four-hitter. Val Galm's first inning RBI was all the support Loeffler required as he struck out 11 batters and kept Newburgh at bay for the distance.

The stretch run Monday began with another shutout, this one by Jay Foust who fanned Arlington, Mass., 5-0. Foust stayed on the plate, allowed just three hits, and got all the backing he needed from Joe Augustine who drilled two hits and drove in two runs.

Kingston's strong pitching finally brought it back from the losers' bracket and into a championship berth opposite Oneonta. John Acker and Mike Myer hooked up to turn the tables on Herkimer. Acker started, went four innings and picked up the win. Myer turned in three flawless innings of relief. The Kingston offense meanwhile made the most of just four hits as Jay Foust tripled home two runs and Galm, John Grogan and Bill Stote all knocked in one each.

Myer started the championship contest, Kingston's third game of the day, hit the first Oneonta batter then gave way to Augustine. Augustine faced a three-run deficit after five innings, but the winners broke it wide open with a five-run rally in the sixth.

Six different pitchers worked for Kingston in the finals, but none of them had enough left to stop Oneonta. The champions were led by tournament MVP Warren Pickett who chased home three of the Oneonta runs.

"That last game we were just held together with rubber bands," said Kingston coach Ron Secreto.

SPORTS TODAY

You Can't Slip One Past Billy

By UPI

Billy Martin, who threw punches to win games as a player, is now throwing the rulebook as manager.

The tempestuous New York skipper played Monday's game under protest as the Kansas City Royals beat the Yankees 2-1 in a contest between the divisional leaders of the American League.

Martin, spotting an apparent rule violation as obscure as the Dead Sea scrolls, protested the game when Kansas City outfielder Hal McRae took too many warm-up throws after coming into the game in the ninth inning to replace injured Amos Otis.

Despite Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in attendance, no resolution was forthcoming. It takes more than diplomacy to cool an irate Martin.

As Martin sees it, the rulebook allows a new fielder five warm-up throws to loosen his arm. But McRae made seven tosses and Martin jumped from the dugout the moment he saw second base umpire Lou DiMuro signaling the outfielder to stop.

"DiMuro was telling him to stop but he kept on going," Martin said. "When I came out there, DiMuro knew what I was out there for. There was no question that there was a violation of the rule."

If the ruling is not enforced, Martin says, there is little point in having it at all.

"The umpire tried to stop him but McRae wouldn't listen," Martin said. "He couldn't tackle him. It's like a pitcher taking 20 warm-up pitches coming into the game. If they're not going to enforce it, why have the rule on the books? The rule says only five warm-up throws. I wouldn't have filed it if I didn't think I would win."

While Martin concerned himself with winning protests, the Royals won the game on runscoring singles by John Mayberry and Al Cowens in the first inning.

Starter Paul Splittorff gave up five hits in 6 1-3 innings to lift his record to 9-6. Steve Mingori gained his sixth save with 1 2-3 innings of scoreless relief.

The Yankees filled the bases with one out in the ninth but Mingori got Mickey Rivers and Roy White to pop up to give

Kansas City the opening win of the three game series.

Elsewhere in the AL, Boston routed Chicago 11-2, Milwaukee edged Minnesota 3-2, Texas defeated Detroit 8-6, California whipped 8-1 and Oakland beat Baltimore 4-1.

Red Sox 11, White Sox 2

Luis Tiant scattered 11 hits to gain his 10th victory and rookie Butch Hobson drove in three runs with a sacrifice and a single to push Boston to .500 for the first time since April 27 when they were 6-5. Tiant, who earlier in the day was named to the All-Star team, struck out seven and walked only one in boosting his record to 10-5.

Brewers 3, Twins 2

Rod Carew's second error of the seventh inning allowed two runs to score as Bill Travers lifted his record to 9-6 in Milwaukee's win over Minnesota. Travers, also selected for the AL stars, allowed seven hits. He walked six and struck out six. Eddie Bane, 0-2, took the loss.

Rangers 8, Tigers 6

Tom Grieve's two-run single high-

Angels 8, Indians 1

Gary Ross, backed by a season high 15-hit attack, hurled a five-hitter to pitch California over Cleveland and raise his record to 6-9. Dave Chalk and Andy Etchebarren each singled twice and drove in three runs. The Angels tagged Pat Dubson, who had won seven in a row since May 21, for seven runs on seven hits in 2 2-3 innings.

A's 4, Orioles 1

Phil Garner hit a three-run homer to give Mike Torrez his first victory since May 31 in Oakland's victory over Baltimore. All-Star reliever Rollie Fingers preserved Torrez' seventh win with 2 2-3 innings to post his 11th save. Rudy May, 5-6, took the loss.

Niekro Makes Most of Opportunities

HOUSTON (UPI) — Joe Niekro isn't a regular in the Houston Astros' pitching rotation so he likes to make the most of his starting opportunities.

And in order for that to happen Niekro has to be throwing at maximum efficiency. That means his knuckleball must be dropping and fluttering much like it was Monday night when he defeated the New York Mets 7-3.

"I was behind lot of hitters and threw a lot of pitches but I got the big outs when I needed them," Niekro said after working six innings to pick up his fourth win against seven losses. "I got (John) Milner on a strikeout in the seventh (when the Mets rallied for two runs) on three straight knucklers."

Niekro, who was making his first start since June 7, needed help in the eighth from the Astros' top reliever, Ken Forsch.

"It's a good feeling to have Kenny in the bullpen," Niekro said. "If you go into the seventh or eighth you know he'll come in and save your victory."

Houston manager Bill Virdon took notice of Niekro's performance, especially his knuckleball.

"I hoped Niekro would get through the seventh and we wouldn't have to use Ken but I was satisfied with Joe," Virdon said. "If you get the knuckleball over you have a very good chance of winning. There aren't very many good knuckleball hitters around."

The Astros hit Mets' starter Bob Apodaca, 1-4, for six runs in the fourth inning on a two-run triple by Roger Metzger and Bob Watson's home run with Cesar Cedeno on base.

Watson's ninth homer came on a hit-and-run play and he confessed he wasn't trying to hit it out of the park.

"I saw Cedeno break when I swung and I was just trying for a hit and it went all the way," Watson said. "When Cesar's going good, I go good. I think I've been taking too many good pitches letting him run, rather than playing hit-and-run."

Burt Hooton of the Los Angeles Dodgers has a secret other National League pitchers wish he would share with them: how to pitch to the power-laden Philadelphia Phillies.

The 26-year-old right-hander, who pitched a no-hitter against the Phillies as a member of the Chicago Cubs back in 1972, has beaten them seven straight times for the Dodgers. He turned in a two-hitter Monday night giving the Dodgers a 6-0 triumph before a crowd of 60,942—the largest in Philadelphia baseball history. It was the third time the Phillies have been shut out this season, the first two coming at the hands of San Diego's 15-game winner Randy Jones.

"I pitched that no-hitter against the same name, not the same team," quipped Hooton after the game. "The Phillies are now a fine hitting team and I really can't explain my success against them."

"I just seem to have good stuff when I pitch against them. I challenge them and they challenge me."

"He had an outstanding fastball," explained batterymate Steve Yeager. "On his good days he keeps the ball low and stays ahead of the hitters. He's as good as anybody in the league."

The Dodgers backed Hooton with a 12-hit attack which included solo homers by Steve Garvey and Bill Russell in the first and second innings, respectively. Russell also singled home a run in the fourth inning and Bill Buckner, Garvey and Ron Cey singled in runs in the ninth.

Jim Lonborg, tagged for three runs and seven hits in six innings, suffered his fifth loss against 10 wins for the Phillies, who maintained their nine-game lead in the NL's Eastern Division.

In other NL games, Atlanta defeated Pittsburgh 8-6, Cincinnati walloped Montreal 11-2, Chicago shaded San Diego 1-0 and San Francisco downed St. Louis 6-4.

Braves 8, Pirates 6

Darrel Chaney's bases-filled triple climaxed a seven-run, eighth-inning rally which lifted Atlanta to its victory and prevented Pittsburgh from gaining ground on the Phillies. John Candelaria carried a 6-1 lead into the eighth and retired the first two batters in the inning before the Braves staged their flash rally. Willie Montanez and Cito Gaston also had key hits in the inning. Bill Robinson homered for the Pirates.

Reds 11, Expos 2

Joe Morgan knocked in five runs with a grand slam homer and a sacrifice fly and Doug Flynn added a two-run homer to Cincinnati's attack. Jack Billingham went the distance for his sixth win against six defeats. Pete Mackanin and Andre Thornton homered for Montreal.

Cubs 1, Padres 0

Rick Monday scored the game's only run on a throwing error by catcher Mike

Ivic and Steve Renko and Joe Coleman combined on a three-hitter for Chicago. Brent Strom was the loser—marking the fourth time in his last eight starts the Padres were shut out. It was the second straight win for the Cubs after a nine-game losing streak.

Giants 6, Cards 4

Bobby Murcer doubled in the eighth inning for his third hit of the game, went to third on a sacrifice and scored the tie-breaking run for San Francisco as Ken Reitz grounded into a double play. Gary Lavelle shut out St. Louis for the last three innings to win his third game.

Fidrych Named to Star Staff

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rookie sensation Mark Fidrych of the Tigers, whose boyish enthusiasm and emotional antics on the field have already made him a household word in Detroit, was one of nine pitchers chosen by Boston Manager Darrell Johnson today to pitch for the American League in the 47th All-Star game at Philadelphia next Tuesday night.

Johnson went against the usual practice of picking mostly starting pitchers by naming three relievers to the staff, thus bypassing Cy Young award winner Jim Palmer of Baltimore and Pat Dobson of Cleveland, both 10-game winners, as well as Gaylord Perry of Texas (9-5) and Wayne Garland of Baltimore (9-1 with 2.15 ERA).

Along with the 21-year-old Fidrych, who leads the league with a 1.86 earned run average and has posted a 9-1 record, Johnson selected starters Bill Travers (9-6) of Milwaukee, Luis Tiant (10-5) of Boston, Jim "Catfish" Hunter (10-7) of New York, Frank Tanana (10-5) of California and Rich Gossage (5-6) of Chicago along with relievers Dave LaRoche (0-2) of Cleveland, Sparky Lyle (5-4) of New York and Rollie Fingers (4-5) of Oakland.

Fidrych, Travers, Tanana and LaRoche will be making their first All-Star appearances. Hunter, on the other hand, was named for the eighth time; Fingers and Tiant for the third time and Gossage and Lyle for the second time.

The entire staff has a combined earned run average of 2.65 and the starters have posted a record of 52-28 with the relievers turning in 30 saves. Travers is second to Fidrych in earned run average with a 1.96 while Tanana is second in the league in strikeouts with 128.

Fidrych has been an amazing success story, having skyrocketed from non-roster status to All-Star performer in four months. The 6-foot-3 righthander earned himself a spot in the bullpen with a good showing in spring training and was given his first major league start on May 15 when he promptly fired a two-hitter to defeat the Cleveland Indians.

In his next start he lost 2-0 to Boston but allowed only six hits and became a permanent member of the starting rotation on May 31. During the month of June he fashioned a perfect 6-0 record with a 1.99 earned run average and never gave up more than three runs in a game. During that time he earned the nickname "Big Bird" because of his flakey behavior on the field.

A hypertensive youngster who talks to the baseball and openly cheers his teammates from the mound for good plays in the field, Fidrych gained national attention by stopping the Yankees on seven hits, 5-1, on ABC-TV's Game of the Week at Detroit on Monday, June 28. A crowd of 48,000 who turned out to watch his performance gave him a standing ovation at the end of the game and would not leave until he came out of the clubhouse to acknowledge the cheers.

The regular starting lineup for the American League will be released Thursday morning by the baseball commissioner's office and the AL reserves will be announced Friday afternoon.

Pitchers for the National League squad will be released Wednesday morning with the starting NL team released Thursday afternoon and the NL reserves named Friday morning.

Hero Who Swam Against the Current

By Ira Berkow

MONTREAL — The sunlight coming through the hotel window seemed to strike too harshly on Mark Spitz's tanned face, smooth except for the trace of boy-like blemishes on his right cheek and the black mustache that allows him at age 26 to look older than a teenager.

He was in Montreal in preparation for the 1976 Olympics in which he will be a color commentator for swimming for ABC television.

Spitz sat now in a green chair and wore a blue-and-gold-striped rubber jersey and blue jeans. His bare feet were propped up on a footstool. His toes appear more bulbous than most, his feet and ankles are thick, too.

He is about 5 feet 9 inches tall and his legs are not particularly long but he has the unusual ability to flex his lower legs slightly forward at the knees, permitting him to kick six to 12 inches deeper in the water than his swimming opponents. It was an advantage that helped him at the 1972 Munich Olympic Games win an unprecedented seven gold medals.

His triumphs — before the marvel of a world-wide television audience — made him nearly instantly one of the most famous people on the face of the earth.

On the morning following his seventh gold-medal victory Spitz was escorted to a press conference to discuss, he thought, his swimming. When he got there, he found "pandemonium." He learned for the first time that terrorists had invaded the quarters of Israeli Olympians.

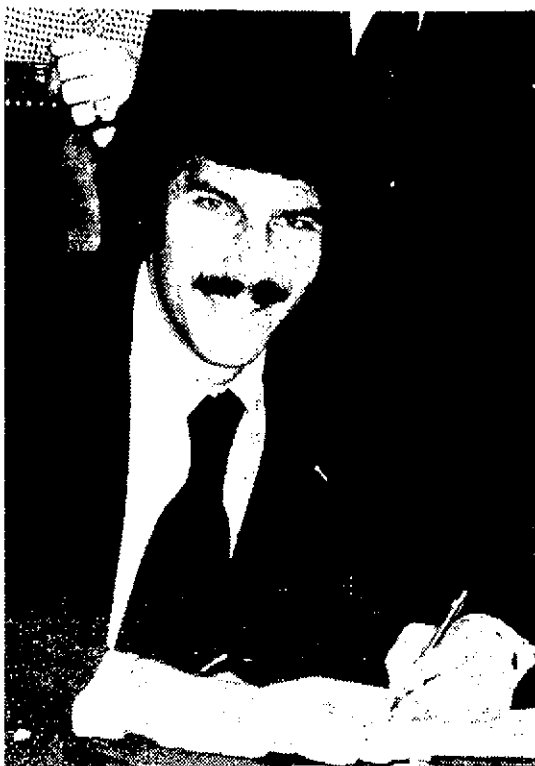

"I was hit with a barrage of questions about it," said Spitz. "I didn't know what to say. I was shocked, stunned, you name it. The press wanted my words because, first, I was Jewish, and second they thought I was some kind of spokesman for the athletes."

"My swimming coaches were there. They kept saying to the press, 'That's an unfair question. Mark's no authority,' and so on and so on."

"Some people thought I was hushed up. I wasn't hushed up. And I wasn't hard-hearted. I didn't know what to say, except that I thought it was a terrible, terrible thing. Then I was taken out of there and returned to my room."

"Nine secret service men were waiting for me there."

"This has never been told before, but I was asked to leave Munich. The International Olympic Committee, The German Munich police and the United States State Department all asked me to leave. They thought it was dangerous for me to stay. I was told to pack my things immediately.

FATEFUL SIGNING of commercial endorsement contract by Olympics' hero Mark Spitz seemed to many former fans he was also signing away his soul.

"Well, the television was on and, for the first time, I saw one of those white-hooded guys on the balcony. The newscasters were told to say I was on a boat to the United States, while I sat and watched in my room in Munich. Frankly, I was scared to hell. I was taken to England, and then to the United States."

"What was I to do? What was I to say? But I am certain of one thing. It was the beginning of the end for me."

Mark blinked several times as the sun hit him. But it wasn't the sun that made him blink. It is a nervous habit, as his slight stammer when beginning some sentences.

"I had wanted so much to bask in my wins," he continued. "I had worked my tail off for 14 years for this moment. I had set a goal four years ago to win at least one individual gold medal, after I won only a individual silver one in Mexico City in the '68 Olympics."

"Oh, man. I wanted to walk to the track, walk around the Olympic Village, and have people come over to me, congratulate me — I felt like a cat who wants to lick the milk all over my chops. And then the tragedy struck."

"I prepared myself carefully for the four years leading up to 1972. There was never any way I could have prepared myself for what happened in the next four years."

"There was nothing left for me to do in athletics. I mean, should I strive for eight gold medals in '76? That was ludicrous. I actually nailed myself to the wall as a swimming competitor."

"When I returned home, I was treated as something special. I had tremendous opportunities to make a lot of money. Well, I know that athletes have taken advantage of this — Joe Namath cut off his mustache on TV for $10,000, for example. Swimmers never had such a chance, though. Now I did. I endorsed products. I was asked to do TV variety shows, got book offers, business deals — well, I got an agent, and I tried to get the best of it."

"I did fine financially, but in the process I seemed to anger a lot of people. People said I was a terrible actor. Well, what did they expect, without any training — Charleton Heston? They thought I was a money-grubber. What's wrong with making a dollar?"

"But my biggest mistake was that I became practically a recluse after the Olympics. I didn't know how to handle all this criticism. I didn't know how to handle the press."

"I'd been swimming since I was 10 — when I set my first world record — but I never until now spent much time talking about myself to the press. Every interview seemed to be like I was on a psychiatrist's couch. I began to listen to myself talk. And I hated it. It all seemed so meaningless. Over and over again, what I thought, what I felt — I became sick of myself. I never knew how far down someone could drop, especially after being up so high."

Apparently, Spitz had never been challenged like this, where he was expected to explain views, theories, opinions on matters from politics to advertising integrity that he had rarely ever considered before. He had always been told how to train, when to go to bed, what to eat. Now, he was in a new and frightening and, worst of all, a seemingly alien environment.

"It took a few years to realize that, gee whiz, what do I care if I don't meet the expectations of people I don't even know. Maybe I began to grow up. I began to realize that not all interviewers hated me before they talked to me. I stopped always trying to defend myself. I opened up a little. I began to be happier with myself."

"I began to become more accessible. Then one late afternoon a few months ago I was on a radio talk show in Miami. A woman called and really ripped into me. It was unbelievable. She said I was a rotten Jew, a rotten American, a rotten representative of the Olympics because she said I had fled Munich."

"The engineers finally shut her off. The host on the show began to apologize profusely to me. I hadn't said a word. Then a call came in from a man who said he had just driven off the road to telephone. He said, 'I want you to know how much I disagreed with that woman. What did she expect you to do, grab a bayonet and single-handedly fight the Arabs?'"

"Then another call supporting me. And another. Pretty soon the place was lighting up like a battlefield with people coming to my defense. I felt like crying. It was fantastic. It was the most remarkable thing that ever happened to me in my life."

Dantley Showed Russians

NEW YORK — Adrian Dantley, who may have made the United States Olympic basketball team after the Russian national team beat Notre Dame in Madison Square Garden last winter, is a possible starter for the U.S. team in its game against an NBA all-star contingent at Kutsher's Country Club in Monticello Thursday at 9 p.m.

Russian coach Vladimir Kondrashin said Dantley was "too physical," after the bulky forward scored 24 points against the Soviets in the Garden.

Critical observers feel that anybody who can make that kind of impression on the Russians has the ability to be a member of the United States squad.

Since international rules allow more body contact than our regulations, the U.S. coaching staff feels Dantley is built for this type of game. He is a strong, muscular 210 pounder who loves the contact part of the so-called non-contact sport.

Dantley was so physical while he attended DeMatha High School in Hyattsville, Maryland, a highly regarded basketball institution, he was permitted to play tight end on the football team during his sophomore year.

It was only the fact that his mother insisted that he stick with basketball that forced Dantley to drop off the grid squad. Despite the fact that he didn't play football the last two years in high school he received a total of 25 major football scholarship offers but accepted Notre Dame's basketball bid.

Dantley seriously considered being included on the NBA hardship draft list but withdrew at the last moment at the request of his mother a year ago. This year he has only four courses to take and will graduate in the summer.

Buffalo Braves in first round.

Tickets for the NBA-Olympic team game are priced at $7 and are available at Kutsher's Country Club.

MERIDAN, Conn. (UPI) — The Connecticut Falcons of the International Women's Professional Softball Association squeaked out a 4-3 win over the Chicago Ravens Monday.

1,111 Field Goals

Comforted by his wife, Elizabeth, right, his right foot attended to by Dr. Gilbert Kucera, Gordon Tovani rests after kicking 1,111 field goals barefooted, claiming a new world's record. Tovani, 50, had hoped to kick 1,776 for the Bicentennial celebration, but the Dorsaflex muscle in his ankle gave out. He surpassed his old record of 635 consecutive bare-toed kicks and in this endeavor succeeded with 88 percent of his total kicks from 20 yards out.

Women Players May Form An Alternative to Wimbledon

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Women tennis players may form an alternate tournament next year if women don't receive the same prize money as men at Wimbledon, according to Wimbledon tennis champion Chris Evert.

Women players at Wimbledon, except the two players from the Soviet Union, signed a proposal this year to boycott the next tournament unless they get parity with men.

"I think most of the women will stick together," Evert said in a telephone interview Monday from Cleveland.

Evert and the Phoenix Racquets travel to Pittsburgh Thursday to play the Triangles and Evonne Goolagong, whom she defeated in the finals at Wimbledon.

Evert and Goolagong each have lost only one singles match this year in World Team Tennis. Evert has shut out seven opponents.

"I think WTT is more exciting," Evert said. "There is pressure on you every point." Playing WTT, she said, helped her win Wimbledon.

"The Phoenix team is very close," she said. "We give each other a lot of support."

Evert hadn't had a chance to celebrate her Wimbledon victory because "it's hard to celebrate at the Wimbledon Ball with all those British people."

Nastase Returns to WTT Team

HONOLULU (UPI) — Ilie Nastase, loser to Bjorn Borg in the Wimbledon finals, arrived Monday from Brussels to return to the Hawaii Leis for the remainder of the World Team Tennis season.

Nastase left the Leis in late May shortly before the WTT took its midseason break for the Wimbledon tournament. The league and the team threatened him with a $4 million suit for breach of contract but dropped the idea because of his pledge to return and take a $70,000 reduction in his $125,000 annual salary.

But Nastase's legal woes were not over here. A $65,000 suit against him remained on the docket. A Kona lawyer filed the action, saying Nastase struck him with a tennis ball during the World Championship Challenge Cup series earlier in the year.

Ali Had a Surprise for His Visitor

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Ken Norton, the world's No. 2 ranked heavyweight boxing contender, felt sorry when he heard the news that Muhammad Ali was in the hospital with what sounded like serious leg ailments that could affect their championship bout this fall.

So, he came calling at St. John's Sunday afternoon, bearing flowers and a $10 stuffed teddy bear as a peace offering to the ailing champ.

A similar visit had taken place once before, in San Diego in 1973, after Norton had defeated the then-unwounded Ali by breaking his jaw.

Norton didn't expect what he got Sunday.

Since Ali was admitted to the hospital Thursday, suffering from "extreme muscle damage and anemia" along with blood clots in his knees, Ali had refused visits from reporters and photographers, seeing only carefully screened friends.

The same held Sunday, when the press was told they would have to wait in the lobby while Norton went up to the fifth floor to visit Ali.

"Ali's changed his mind, you can all go up now," the hospital's public relations director suddenly told the gathering of newsmen. "Ali will see you, but he'll be in a wheelchair."

Newsmen were told to set up shop in the Solarium where they would soon be joined by the champ after he finished lunch.

Ali entered the room on his own two feet, without the wheel chair, dressed in a red hospital robe and wearing heavy white socks on his bruised legs.

"I feel real good," Ali told reporters. "My blood clots have been dissolved by medication, and a couple of busted blood vessels and veins have started to mend. I still have to stay off the leg for a while, though."

A few more medical facts followed, along with his immediate plans to accompany actor Marlon Brando on a flight Monday morning to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, to appear at the trial of two members of the American Indian Movement.

Ali was released from the hospital late Sunday and spent the night at a private residence.

His legs permitting, Ali then will fly to Istanbul, Turkey, July 11 to accept a 500-acre land gift from that country's government along with a palace overlooking the Mediterranean.

It wasn't long before the conversation turned to the Sept. 25 title bout at Yankee Stadium and Ali's belief that his injuries would not cause a postponement.

"I don't start training for Norton until the first of next month," Ali said. "And this thing (pointing to his legs) should be well in four or five more days. You mean we're going to have 20 some days and things still aren't well? Then we're in trouble."

"I'm almost healed now. Give me two more weeks and I'll be doing road work again."

The champ, looking healthy and in good spirits despite his hidden ailments, then fixed his eyes trance-like and, in a monotone voice, took up the chant:

"I want Norton. I got to get Norton. I will stop Norton. I stopped Joe Frazier. I stopped George Foreman. I'll stop Norton."

Ali then rose to his feet and you could almost guess what was coming next.

"You're a healthy man. Let me see you throw a punch," Ali clowned, trying to entice Norton into a mock sparring session. "Be your own man, take off your ring. C'mon, I ain't gonna see you no more. It's good to get the feeling, man."

Ali's mood was more serious, however, at the beginning of the interview.

He spoke of his exhibition martial arts bout in Tokyo June 24 in which Japanese wrestler Antonio Inoki inflicted a steady pounding of Ali's legs with a scissor kick.

"I found out I lost three pints of blood during the fight," Ali said. "And I haven't told you this before, but I collapsed getting off the elevator going to the hotel after the fight because I lost so much blood."

"The doctors told me if I hadn't come here that the blood clots could have run up — like something (former President Richard) Nixon had — and could have caused death."

Will the leg injuries affect his career?

"It will if I don't heal properly. The doctor said I'll always have a sore spot. I'll always have something wrong with it (left leg)."

"But still if you re-show that fight and watch all the kicking and damage to my leg, Muhammad Ali was still dancing in round 15 with three pints of blood out of him and his blood vessels burst, which shows you how really blessed I've been to have a lot of power."

Palmer Lashes Out at Johnson

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Baltimore Orioles, incensed that two of their pitchers were bypassed by Darrell Johnson for the American League All-Star pitching staff, reacted bitterly, claiming the Red Sox manager struck out in his choices.

Cy Young Award winner Jim Palmer, a perennial pick who was bypassed by Johnson for the American League All-Star pitching staff, lashed out at Johnson Monday night. "Johnson proved what kind of manager he was in the World Series last year by the way he handled his pitchers in the ninth inning of the seventh game," Palmer said. "He's an idiot, and maybe this is why the American League seldom wins an All-Star game."

Palmer, who takes a 10-7 record against the A's here tonight, said apparently Johnson chose several of his pitchers because "they're the only guys from their teams he could think of putting on the All-Star squad. I'm talking about Rich Gossage of Chicago and Dave LaRoche of Cleveland. I can understand those picks, I guess, but I don't see how he can ignore a guy like

Gaylord Perry of Texas."

Teammate Wayne Garland, also passed up despite a 9-1 record, said, "I would have liked to have made the All-Star team. It would have been a great thrill but that's the way baseball is. I'm surprised I didn't make it, though, because I threw a two-hit shutout against the Red Sox and I figured maybe Johnson was impressed with that."

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver said he thought Palmer deserved to be picked on the basis of his record. "He is after all a two-time Cy Young Award winner and a man who has pitched nine straight scoreless innings against the National League," Weaver said. "He's the kind of pitcher you want on your staff for an All-Star game. His overall record in baseball should be taken into consideration and he's got as many wins as anybody else in the league."

Bob Lemon and Robin Roberts, a pair of Hall of Fame pitchers who will be enshrined at Cooperstown, N.Y., next month, were selected Monday as honorary captains for the 47th All-Star game on July 13 in Philadelphia.

Lemon, a New York Yankee pitching coach, won 207 games during 13 years with the Cleveland Indians, 1946 through 1958. He is one of four American League pitchers to win 20 games seven or more seasons.

Roberts was a 20-game winner six times as he posted 286 major league victories, most of them with the Philadelphia Phillies. Roberts also pitched for Baltimore, Houston and the Chicago Cubs in a career that stretched from 1945 through 1968.

This is the second year in which honorary captains were appointed for the games. Stan Musial, former St. Louis Cardinal great, and ex-Yankee Mickey Mantle were enshrined in 1975.

The Hotter It Gets in Britain, The Lower Odds Get on Jack

SOUTHPORT, England (UPI) — The hotter it gets in Britain, the lower the odds get for Jack Nicklaus to win his third British Open golf championship.

The more his fellow golfers complained of the record setting heat wave that was baking the Royal Birkdale course, the more Jack Nicklaus enjoyed it. He has been listed as a 5-1 favorite to win the 105th British Open Golf Championship. "I like a fast bouncy course," said the 36-year-old Golden Bear, basking in the sunshine as he warmed up for his bid to land the coveted crown for the third time after successes in 1960 and 1971.

"Those who have had enough experience of playing several times in the Open and have had a certain amount of success are much better off on a fast course than a slow one," he added.

Nicklaus, whose victories in last year's U.S. Masters and PGA Championships brought his major tournament wins to a record 16, has missed out on the big ones this year and hopes to put that right at the British Open despite a poor track record on Royal Birkdale's seaside links. "I have not yet played Birkdale well before and it's about time I did," he said.

Nicklaus played in a foursome Monday with major rivals Tom Weiskopf, Hubie Green and Hale Irwin and then stayed on for some extra practice holes while his colleagues headed back to the clubhouse.

Ever a perfectionist, Nicklaus can't get enough practice and still hopes to improve on his dazzling five-under-par 67 weekend practice round.

Players have found the course playing long after two weeks of continual sunshine and are having to change their targets. Arnold Palmer, who set the British Open aggregate low-scoring record of 276 in 1962, says his mark will fall this week if the winds stay away—a feeling shared by most of the top liners in the 150-plus field.

"I am positive the record will go if the weather remains," said three-time winner Gary Player.

Floyd, who has played three practice rounds, has found no difficulty in reaching the greens Monday, commenting,

"I did not drive more than four times—I used a one iron the rest of the time."

The less Johnny Miller sees of a course, the better he likes it. Miller, the 8-1 second favorite, delayed his arrival until Monday, three days after Nicklaus.

"If I arrive early and I am playing well, then I get bored," said Miller, who was tied for third last year and finished second in 1973. "It's just as well to show up the night before. I have broken course records the first time around a course because I have a good eye. I am better off playing blind man's bluff. If I don't know where the trouble is I swing better. It is not necessary to know every blade of grass. Sometimes you can get too much respect for a course. A good caddy and two rounds is enough for me."

Miller said he was still annoyed at missing out on last year's Open, which was won by Tom Watson in a play-off against Australian Jack Newton.

"I overplayed my hand in the last round last year," said Miller. "If I just aimed at par I would have been a winner. I was too greedy."

"I have been knocking on the door and I think I have paid my dues. So if I win now, then no one will complain."

MEADOW LANDS, Pa. (UPI) — Armbro Ranger, last year's 2-year-old champion, Monday won the $23,033 Tarport Effrat Pace at the Meadows in a track record-tying time of 1:57.4.

Richmond, driven by Ross Hayter, pushed Armbro Ranger most of the trip and it was not until the field turned into the stretch that Joe O'Brien was able to put daylight between his horse and his pursuers.

Armbro Ranger finished with a 5-1 length margin. Earth Lite, handled by Hal Hetzler, finished third, another six lengths back.

AN OLD CHEST for church records admired by Mrs. Morton Alling III, member of the museum room committee, and her daughter, Darlene who was celebrating her second birthday on opening day.

NEW PALITZ—Audrey Borenstein, visiting assistant professor of sociology at the State University College at New Paltz, has been awarded a $6,000 creative writing fellowship by the National Endowment for the Arts.

Dr. Borenstein was one of 165 writers chosen from 2,436 applicants from throughout the country. Her grant will support her in writing a collection of fiction on the deep south in the early 1960's.

The author of novels, short stories, essays, prose poems and poetry, Dr. Borenstein's work has been published in such magazines as the University Review, The North American Review, Satire Newsletter and Accent. She is presently working on a collection of essays on the social sciences and literature. The first of these is published in the current issue of Antioch Review. Upon completion of these essays she will turn to writing the works on the south.

Dr. Borenstein, a native of Chicago, is a graduate of the University of Illinois. The wife of Walter Borenstein, chairman of the Spanish department at New Paltz, Dr. Borenstein has taught part time at Louisiana State University and Cornell.

The 'National Endowment' for the Arts is an independent agency of the federal government created in 1965 to encourage and assist the nation's cultural resources.

(Kathleen Mary Lane)
(Lakeside Studio)

Kane-Kelly

Mrs. Francis Van Vliet of Shokan announces the wedding of their daughter, Kathleen Mary Lane, to Thomas J. Kelly, son of Mrs. Dorothy Kelly, 119 Wrentham St., and the late Thomas J. Kelly.

The ceremony was performed at St. Mary's Church, Kingston, with the Rev. James Derrenbacher officiating. Robert Moore was organist. Soloist was Mrs. Virginia Mancuso.

Mrs. Francis Van Vliet gave the bride in marriage. She wore a gown of French silk jersey, fashioned with an Empire styled waist, featuring a modish scoop neckline, long tapered sleeves, a gathered demi bell jersey skirt, Venice lace hand piped motifs accented the gown.

Mrs. Martin Stoutenburg, of Kingston, was matron of honor. Her attendants were Mrs. James Strubel, sister of the bride, and Miss Grace Kelly, sister of the bridegroom, both of Kingston. Heidi Cable, niece of the bridegroom, of Saugerties, was flower girl. Her gown was made by Mrs. Jean Van Vliet, of Kingston.

Fredrick Schakie, brother in law of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were John Kelly, brother of the bridegroom, and Robert Claus, cousin of the bridegroom.

The reception was given at the Capri 400.

The bride is a graduate of Kingston Central High School, and is employed in the tax map department of the Federal Property Service Agency. Her husband, Thomas J. Kelly, is a graduate of Kingston High School, attended Kingston College and is employed at Utility Plants, Inc.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly will make their home in Kingston.

Betrothals Announced

Mr. and Mrs. William Heffernan of Cork, Ireland, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Claire, to Capt. William W. Buddenhagen of 9 Harrison St., Kingston.

Miss Heffernan completed the dental surgery assistant's course at the Cork Dental Hospital in June 1972 and is employed by University College, Cork, as a dental recorder which involves participation in the university's dental research programs. Miss Heffernan resides with her family in Cork, Ireland.

Capt. Buddenhagen is an alumnus of Kingston High School and a 1970 graduate of Rutgers University where he received a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Business Administration. After graduation he began active duty in the U.S. Air Force, entering pilot training. For the past six years Capt. Buddenhagen has been serving as a pilot in the Strategic Air Command in various assignments throughout the U.S., Europe and South East Asia. He is assigned to Pease Air Force Base in New Hampshire.

The couple is planning a September wedding in Ireland. They will reside in Hampton, N.H., upon their return.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. William Flandreau of RFD 170 of the engagement of their daughter, Josephine Anne, to Walter W. Middaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Middaugh of West Chester Street, Kingston.

The bride elect is a graduate of Red Hook High School and attended Dutchess County BOCES for nursing. She is employed on the staff of Kingston Hospital.

Her fiancé attended Kingston High School and was graduated from U.S. Armed Forces Institute. He served with the U.S. Marine Corps in Vietnam. He is employed at Duplex Products in Kingston as a cameraman.

The wedding is planned for October 30.

DEAR ABBY

Needed Operation, Didn't Have It; Never Felt Better

DEAR ABBY A woman wrote to say that her husband had gone to a doctor six years ago and had a complete physical examination. The doctor told him he needed an operation. She said her husband never had the operation and never went back, and he's never felt better in his life. This reminds me of the following.

Doctor to Patient "You're in bad shape. You should have an operation."

Patient: "How much will it cost?"

Doc. "Eight thousand dollars."

Patient "Gee, Doc, you know I don't have that kind of money."

Doc "I'll make it easy for you. Give me $3,000 down and pay me $100 a month until the bill is paid."

Patient "That's just like buying a new car."

Doc "I am"—NO DOPE IN NJ

DEAR ABBY I have put off writing to you long enough. I have fallen out of love with my husband. We've been married for eight years, we have two beautiful children and a nice home. I don't have to work, I have a car of my own, and from all outside appearances I have it made.

My husband is a good father, is generous and is easy to live with and I know he loves me, but I am sick to death of faking it in the bedroom. I just don't feel a thing for him romantically. I respect him and I really like him, but he's more like a big brother than a husband.

I haven't told him how I feel because I just hate to hurt him. He's such a decent guy. He really deserves better than a wife who can't return his love. We talk about everything but this. Please help me—

TIED OF ACTING

DEAR TIRED: Tell your husband that you and he should see a marriage counselor. Then do it. If you can't work through the problems that have made you more of a "sister" than a loving wife, level with him. You're right. He deserves better. And there's much more to marriage than you're getting.

DEAR ABBY I have something to say to HISTORY BUFF who claims that a double-wedding ring ceremony has no meaning. According to him, his old German Bible (1888) says the wedding ring signifies that a woman is no longer a free and independent person, but she's in bondage to her husband. She owes him obedience as a subject owes obedience to his master.

Well, in MY book, a double ring ceremony joins a man and woman together in holy matrimony as equals.

So, HISTORY BUFF, stick it in your ear and blow it through your nose. For your information, I am only 12, and I plan to have a double-ring ceremony whether you like it or not!—A STRONG VIEW AT 12

DEAR STRONG VIEW: My guess is you're speaking for the second generation of women's libbers, right?

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self addressed envelope, please.

English Instructor at MJM Named Teacher of Year

KINGSTON—Teacher of the Year at Myron J. Michael Junior High School is Wendell A. Scherer, ninth grade English instructor. But this is not the first time, but the second time in six years that the students have voted him this honor.

Scherer, who resides at 40 West O'Reilly St., came to MJM just six years ago following graduation from Fordham University. A popular member of the faculty, he also advises the drama group at the school which during the past year has presented "Alice in Wonderland" and several holiday plays. He has also organized trips for students to attend plays in New York City.

The English teacher has just been elected president of the local Coach House Players and has appeared in their productions. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Scherer.

The Teacher of the Year Award, which is a tradition at MJM, was named this year by the Student Council in memory of David W. Brehse, an English teacher, who died last fall.

Mental Health Drive Continues

KINGSTON—Ulster County Association for Mental Health membership drive continues in an effort to increase its ranks and effectiveness in working for better mental health services. Mrs. Frieda H. Dingee of Kingston, treasurer of the association, is pleased with the quick response of many people to the billing which was recently sent out. It is her hope that the remainder of the association members who have not yet replied will do so shortly.

The Association programs relating to local mental health education, promotion of good mental health throughout Ulster County and the information and referral service depend in large measure on the voluntary support of the members.

Anyone interested in joining may contact the Association office at 27 East O'Reilly St. The office is open Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. It is a member agency of the United Way of Ulster County.

Children's Shows Start July 9

FISHKILL—Children's Theatre is being presented at the Cecilwood Theatre this season with the first show, "Winnie-the-Pooh," scheduled for a repeat performance July 9.

Other plays will include "Pinocchio," July 16 and 23, "Cinderella," July 30 and Aug. 6, "The Wizard of Oz," Aug. 13 and 20, "Alice in Wonderland," Aug. 27 and Sept. 3.

All are well known children's classics performed by adults and suitable for youngsters age 3 to 12. Group rates are available for parties of 50 or more.

REGISTRATION for the Art's Community summer sessions in New Paltz are now in progress with the first session starting July 7. Courses in the visual and performing arts for young people four to 18 are being scheduled. A catalog of information may be obtained from New Paltz Chamber of Commerce. Bonnie MacLeod, instructor, is shown interacting with young people.

Interior Design Courses Scheduled

MILLBROOK—This summer Bennett College is offering a three credit course in Interior Design. The course will include lectures by professionals in the Dutchess County and neighboring Connecticut areas.

The first speaker, John Kent Jackson, A.S.D., will present his views on "The Need for Professionalism" with specific reference to the interior design profession. Born and educated in England, Jackson received his training in interior design at the Ryerson Institute in Canada. For many years he was on the design staff at B. Altman & Co. in New York City. After operating his own business there from 1963 to 1973, he moved to Poughkeepsie to open a business there. Jackson is an active member of the American Institute of Interior Designers and has given a great many lectures on design related topics.

The lecture at Bennett will be given July 8 at 10 a.m. and is free of charge.

LIZ TAYLOR

tifully." Liz announces she's too tired to continue the trip. The last word is that Zahedi has arranged for her to stay in Iran an extra week for rest and relaxation. Perhaps she'll need it. Reportedly the two plan a rendezvous at Zahedi's chalet in the Swiss Alps.

DAY 7: Boarding the plane for home via London, honored guests collapse into their seats. Many are suffering from dysentery. A Dr. Walsh from Washington, said to be Jackie Onassis's favorite physician, is handing out helpful little white pills.

Everyone is talking about the red tape snaring the Iranian way of life. There are phones in Tehran—but no phone books. To get a telephone number requires days of patient negotiating, generous payoffs and, in the end, heaven knows if you've gotten the right number.

Someone quips they tried to reach Liz Taylor in Tehran but the line is busy, because Liz is talking to Zahedi in Washington. Zahedi, incidentally, made daily calls to male friends on the trip to ask how things were going. He is said to like first hand reports.

Auxiliary Installation

KINGSTON1—Kingston Unit of American Legion Auxiliary No. 150 held its installation dinner recently at Holiday Inn. Officers installed were Mrs. Marge Keizer, president, Mrs. Jeanne Bittner, first vice president, Mrs. Eunice Scully, second vice president, Mrs. Norma Fox, secretary, Mrs. Thelma Van Aken, treasurer, and Mrs. Molly Maurer, chaplain.

Mrs. Hilda Dais, third district chairman, was installing officers.

The Kingston unit will be represented at the state convention in Syracuse this July by Mrs. Norma Fox.

Dried-up mud bottom of reservoir in England (UPI)

Europe's Worst Drought ...There's No End to It

LONDON (UPI) — The outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday is very much the same — very hot and dry. There seems to be no end to it.

British weather forecasters normally couch their reports in more formal terms. But after more than two weeks of heat and Europe's worst drought in centuries, even stalwart civil servants were beginning to spit.

The data is on the continent, however, which is the same.

Thunderstorms were predicted in Belgium but the Belgian Farmers Union said the showers — if they came — would be too late for most crops.

Even if it started raining regularly, it would take several months to rebuild Belgium's water reserves and years to regrow thousands of acres of forest and heath destroyed by fires.

Grass and woodland fires have been licking the land in parts of Britain for days. French officials said they would probably ban fireworks on Bastille Day, July 14, for the first time since the French Revolution in 1789 because of tinder dry conditions.

Portugal cut electric power for regular periods because there was too little water to run the country's hydroelectric plants.

In Genoa, Italy, city officials banned the use of drinkable water for washing cars, watering gardens and for every other use not strictly tied to civilian and industrial needs.

Poland has not suffered badly from the drought but farmers said the heat will take its toll on the country's grain harvest.

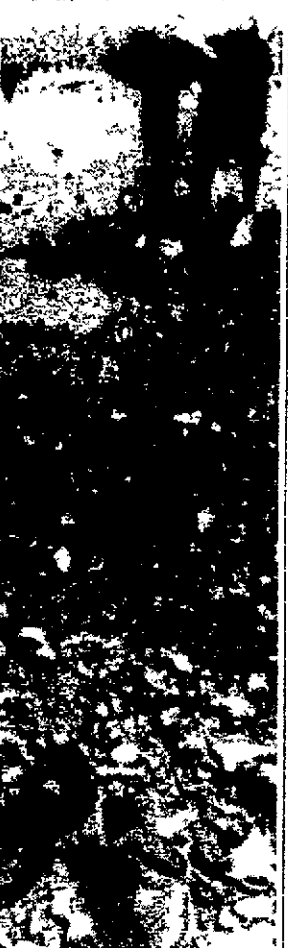

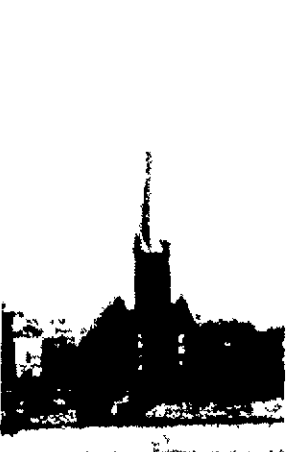

The weather was wreaking havoc on German agriculture too — but brewers stocks rose in value on the Frankfurt exchange.

An annual dog show had to cancel four of its events because the contestants refused to lie down in the heat. In East Germany, rail workers changed their shift to nighttime hours to avoid baking in the sun.

There was no scarcity of water in Dutch homes but Defense Minister Henk Vredeling ordered his troops to tap Holland's canals to irrigate farmlands.

In most suburbs of Salonica in northern Greece, water was available only in the evenings when residents were allowed to fill buckets and bathtubs for use the following day.

But the summer was just right for the tourist business in southern Greece. "Let's not forget we sell sunlight," said National Tourist Organization President George Daskalakis. It is one of our main assets.

has filed a permit application with the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation at its Office, 50 Wolf Road, Albany, New York 12233 where the application and related documents are available for public inspection.
The applicant proposes to discharge a total of 8,100 gallons per day of sanitary wastes into ground waters from 18 individual subsurface disposal systems at the applicant's facility located on Spruce Valley Road, Marbletown (T), Ulster County where the applicant will construct an 18 lot residential subdivision. The New York State Department of Environmental Conservation tentatively intends to issue a State Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (SPDES) permit for the subject discharges. A final issuance will follow (1) review of the application to assure compliance with all applicable provisions of Article 17 of the Environmental Conservation Law of New York State and all applicable provisions of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972 (P.L. 92-500) (2) development of special conditions setting forth specific effluent limitations and other controls applicable to the discharge(s) described above including schedules of compliance (3) development of monitoring and reporting requirements for the applicant's performance. (4) consideration of all written comments from persons who qualify as described below, as interested parties on this notice of application.
Any person interested in this application who wishes to comment thereon or become an interested party in any proceeding regarding this

Dried out pond near Kew Bridge, London (UPI)

In 1768, Paul Revere placed this notice in the Boston Gazette

WHEREAS many persons are so unfortunate as to lose their ForeTeeth by accident, and otherwise, to their great detriment, not only in Looks, but speaking both in Public and Private. This is to inform all such, that they may have them replaced with artificial Ones that look as well as the Natural, & answers the End of Speaking to all Intents, by PAUL REVERE, Goldsmith, near the Head of Dr. Clarke's Wharf, Boston

Revere was an ordinary citizen and a successful tradesman. In addition to his "dentistry" business, he manufactured gunpowder and cannon and fashioned fine gold and silver ware. His name still lives on as a symbol of quality workmanship. And his Midnight Ride lives on as a symbol of colonial patriotism.

Traveler Back Home

GREENVILLE, Ohio (UPI) — A Siamese cat named Fujui has returned to his home after inadvertently taking a 2,079-mile, two-week trip across the United States.

Fujui was reunited with his owner, Gene North, a 42-year-old sales engineer, last Saturday.

The cat's trip began when he climbed inside a plumber's truck.

"I had a plumber out to the house to fix the kitchen sink on June 19th," North said. The driver said he heard a squeal and a thump several blocks from North's home. He stopped and saw the cat running up the street.

North thought he had lost his pet, but then received a telephone call from Spokane, Wash.

"I thought someone was pulling a hell of a big joke at first," North said. "But they finally convinced me that my cat was in the state of Washington. You know, a couple of thousand miles is unbelievable. He never went 30 feet out of the yard before."

The cat, identified by an address tag around his neck, apparently had boarded a freight train and wound up in a cooled boxcar at the Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. plant near Spokane — half starved.

"I guess Union Pacific felt responsible since the cat wound up on one of their trains, so they picked up the entire tab of flying the cat back to me," North said.

Pastor's Wife Wins Her Suit

MIAMI (UPI) — A minister's wife who sued the city so "policemen will learn that not all black women are hookers," has accepted a settlement of $1,500 to clear her name.

Brenda Hunt, a 22-year-old mother of four children, was arrested last June by a Miami policeman who said he thought she was a prostitute. Mrs. Hunt was walking to a convenience store to buy a loaf of bread for dinner when she was stopped by officer Robert Edmonds, who asked for identification.

Despite her protests that she was a minister's wife going to buy bread for dinner, Edmonds arrested Mrs. Hunt.

"They all say they're minister's wives and they are always going to the store," Edmonds said later. He was freed three weeks after the arrest.

The Dade state attorney's office later dropped the charge against Mrs. Hunt because of insufficient evidence supplied in Edmonds' arrest report, which said only that she was obstructing traffic as she walked along the street.

Mrs. Hunt said her husband lost his pastor's job at the New Jerusalem Church of God because of her arrest. She hopes he'll return to his job now that the city has paid her the damage money, which she called a "token."

Proper Way to Faint

VANCOUVER, Canada (UPI) — The order has gone out: Canadian troops may no longer faint in a slovely or unseemly way while on parade.

Soldiers disobeying the order will be put on report.

Conservative Member of Parliament John Reynolds, in a letter to his constituents, disclosed details of a memorandum issued to Canadian troops stationed in West Germany.

According to Reynolds, the memo said: "To avoid the possibility of fainting, a soldier should make sure he has had breakfast on the morning of parade day."

"If worse comes to worse and he must faint, a soldier should fall to the ground under control."

"To do so, he must turn his body approximately 45 degrees, squat down, roll to the left and retain control of his weapon to prevent personal injury and minimize damage to the weapon."

"Every incident of fainting will be investigated by the section commander. We must ensure that soldiers who have not complied with the above instructions be charged."

Bootleg Liquor A Killer

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — A potent bootleg liquor has killed 84 persons in two days in the southern city of Madras, according to Indian officials.

They said many of the nearly 100 others who have been hospitalized may also die from the effects of the illicit brew, which police said Monday included methyl alcohol. Those who recover face possible blindness, the officials said.

Among the dead were two bootleggers who sold the liquor. Police said two other bootleggers have been arrested.

Madras is a dry state where only people medically certified as alcoholics can buy a limited quantity of liquor from government-controlled shops.

Bloodiest Day Yet in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Thousands of leftist and Palestinian troops attacked the Christian town of Chekka today to avenge the 15-day siege of a Palestinian refugee camp. Action on all fronts gave Lebanon the bloodiest fighting of the 15-month-old war and destroyed the latest Arab League peace efforts.

Casualties were estimated at more than 260 dead and 500 wounded — the worst one day total since April, 1975.

Fighting was reported at Chekka, at the Palestinian refugee camp of Tal Zaatar, in the Christian town of Zghorta, and along the 35-mile confrontation line in Beirut.

The leftist-Palestinian forces moved against Chekka, 10 miles south of the northern port of Tripoli, after the Christians launched another offensive to close a 400 yard gap in their circle around Tal Zaatar.

Heavy fighting around the camp in southeast Beirut blocked the second attempt by the Red Cross in two days to send a convoy into the camp to evacuate hundreds of wounded who have been without water and medical supplies for days.

Heeding leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt's call for a "popular war" to avenge the siege, the leftist-Palestinian force attacked Chekka and claimed the capture of four villages.

Rightists, however, said the attackers were beaten back during the night.

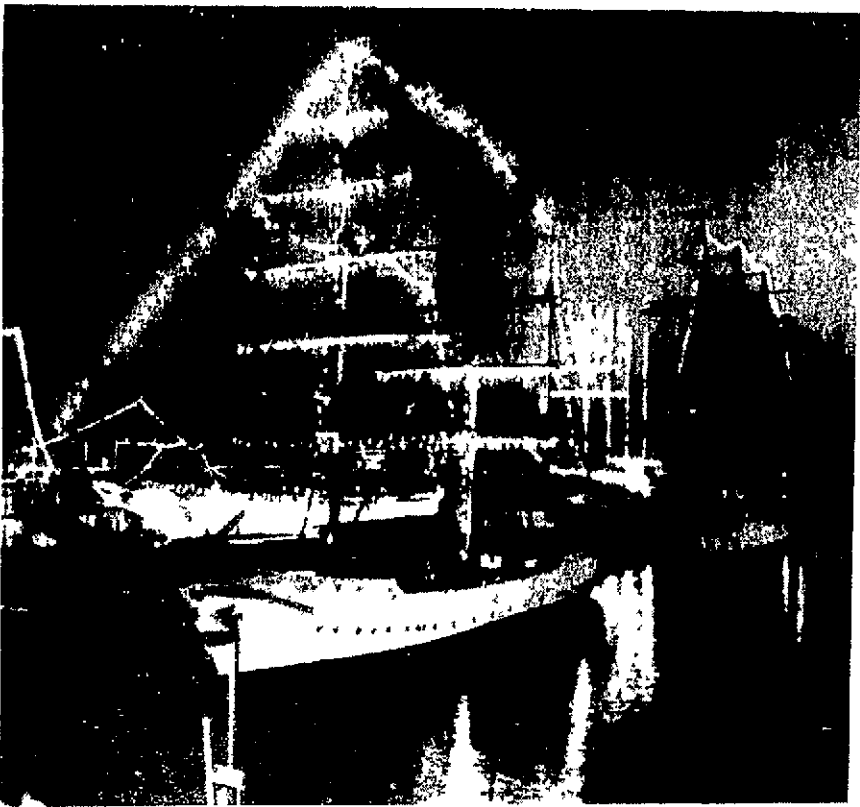

The reports of fighting in Chekka prompted Christians to walk out of a meeting between them and Palestinian and Syrian representatives called by League Secretary General Mahmoud Roud at Sofar southeast of Beirut.

The right-wing radio also said that in retaliation for the attack on Chekka, Christian forces stormed and captured the Koura district "capital" of Amion and raised the Lebanese flag on the town hall of the mainly Greek Orthodox town with strong leftist leanings.

The leftist radio said Amion came under heavy artillery shelling Monday night and that fierce fighting was continuing after leftist forces "foiled all attacks on the town."

Libyan mediator, Premier Abdel Salam Jalloud, returned to Beirut unexpectedly late Monday night to try to renew — without much hope of success — the Libyan peace initiative that collapsed last week with the Christian capture of the Jisr al Pasha camp and the siege on neighboring Tal Zaatar.

Despite 15 days of heavy fighting, the Christians have not managed to enter the inner perimeters of the 75 acre camp as they had claimed, although they have secured all of the surrounding residential and industrial area previously held by the Palestinians.

OAU's Summit Talks Fizzle, New Crises Are Shaping Up

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius (UPI) — A four-day summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity ended today in disarray, failing to solve major continental problems and facing several new crises.

Delegates said it was one of the most disappointing and divisive meetings of heads of state in OAU history, attended by a record low number of seven leaders.

The summit approved more than 70 resolutions, but many of them sidestepped major problems or were watered down versions of original drafts on such issues as South Africa.

The conference failed to heal long-standing and potentially dangerous differences between Ethiopia and Somalia over the future of French Somaliland and between rival factions of the Rhodesian African National Council.

It sidestepped the issue of Western Sahara, where Algerian-backed guerrillas have been waging a hit and run war against Morocco and Mauritania, which annexed the territory last year. The meeting referred the question to a special summit to be convened at a place and time to be announced later.

The Israeli raid into Uganda and an attempted coup in Sudan presented the 48 member organization with major new problems.

Although Kenya endorsed a resolution condemning Israel for the attack, Nairobi came under criticism from many member states for its apparent cooperation with Tel Aviv. Many delegates feared that despite public assurances from Uganda, the incident could provoke a major showdown in East Africa.

President Jaafar Numeiry of Sudan made a special trip to the closing session to accuse Libya of masterminding last week's mad and senseless attempt to topple him from power.

Jimmy's Rx Clearer for Veep

UPI

Jimmy Carter's criteria for a running mate are clearer now as the almost certain Democratic presidential candidate wades through his face-to-face meetings with men being considered for the job.

Carter spent the day Monday at his Plains, Ga., home with Maine Sen. Edmund Muskie and told reporters a final decision will not be made until next week, when the Democrats convene in New York City.

Muskie was the first of several possible vice presidential candidates Carter intends to meet before that time.

Carter, who traveled to a breakfast of Democratic governors assembled for the National Governors Conference in Hershey, Pa., today, told reporters he believes a good running mate should have:

- Personal compatibility
- Leadership ability
- A geopolitical balance to his own candidacy
- A lack of "political contention" with Carter's programs

"A constant consultation between the two leaders would be a very important element in a vice presidential relationship with me," the former Georgia governor said.

"I think, as Senator Muskie and I discussed this morning, it'd be hopefully an ever expanding relationship without any fear of political contention or struggling for political authority."

While Carter looked ahead, President Ford and his campaign strategists continued to map plans for a challenge that is very real — one that could end in a floor fight with Ronald Reagan in the Republican Kansas City convention.

But even with the close fight, Ford's only real campaigning was scheduled for July 17 in Hartford, Conn.

South Africa Recants

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South Africa today withdrew a rule that sparked the nation's bloodiest race riots this century — the compulsory use of Afrikaans as a medium of instruction in black schools.

Bantu (African) Affairs Minister Michael Botha said black schools could now choose Afrikaans, English or the pupils' mother tongue as the classroom language.

Dr. Manas Buthelesi of the Black Parents Association in Soweto, the segregated township near Johannesburg where rioting first flared June 16 said "We are very happy to hear about it, but at the same time it is a little belated."

"Small concessions are not a solution," said Mrs. Winnie Mandela, wife of Nelson Mandela, a black nationalist leader serving life imprisonment. As long as there is a Bantu education (system) there will be unrest."

The summit approved more than 70 resolutions, but many of them sidestepped major problems or were watered down versions of original drafts on such issues as South Africa.

Rape, Robbery, Kidnap Going Before Top Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court will turn to the rest of the 71 capital punishment cases left on its docket before adjourning until next October.

The death sentence opinions handed down Friday dealt only with murder. The court said it was not ruling on whether death could be meted out for rape, robbery, kidnapping or other crime when no death results.

The 71 cases before the court bring up such matters. Death row inmates can also raise other issues, such as errors in picking a jury, which are critical in individual cases.

The justices could accept one or more appeal for consideration next fall.

Girl Charged In Murder

BOONVILLE, N.Y. (UPI) — State police confirmed Monday that a 15-year-old Boonville girl arrested on charges of murdering Frank J. Raymond, 47, was the murder daughter. They said the killing, apparently stemmed from a family argument.

Troopers had declined to identify the girl because she was a minor. Raymond's body was found buried Sunday only a few feet from his trailer home on Furman Road in this Oneida County community.

The man's wife Helen Margaret Raymond, 46, was also arrested in connection with the incident and charged with unlawful disposition of a body and with hindering prosecution.

Troopers said Raymond had been missing since Wednesday. They said their investigation was touched off Sunday when his body was found buried in a wooded area less than 200 ft from his home.
